MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

All school districts were not created equal, but all students are entitled to an equal education.

Traditionally, education has been financed by local property taxes. But this gives the richest school districts in the state a distinct advantage. They can simply raise the taxes a few mills and dramatically increase their school's revenue.

The mill levy is based on a percentage of property values. A levy of one mill can raise $98 per pupil in Minneapolis and $22 in Duluth, for example. One mill in the small town of Barnum would raise only $12.

But Minnesota's Constitution of 1858 requires the Legislature "to establish a general and uniform system of public schools." This means, of course, that the state must help some school districts if students throughout the state are to receive a quality education.

And the state does help. About 66 per cent of the operating revenue of the state's school districts is provided by the state while local property taxes provide about 34 per cent.

Through 1970, the state provided a flat grant per pupil unit in each district. (A "pupil unit" is the way the state counts students, counting less than one to such students as kindergarteners and handicapped students who attend part time and more than one to special education students who require special attention.) The traditional method of funding did not correct the large disparities among the districts.

To decrease the disparities, a system of state foundation aids was created to take into account both the number of students and the district's ability to pay. The state sets a formula allowance for each district which, theoretically, provides for an equitable education in each district.

To figure out state aids: Multiply the number of pupil units times the formula allowance and you get the total that the district can spend. Local income is determined by multiplying the mill rate by the taxable value of the district's land.

Subtract the amount of locally raised income from the amount of allowable spending and you get the amount the state provides. The state makes up this difference and guarantees that a set mill levy will raise the same number of dollars per pupil unit in all districts.

Disparities among districts have declined, but not fast enough as far as I am concerned. Our students are as entitled to a good education as students in the state's richest school districts. The financing of education is one of my greatest concerns and I'm as impatient as anyone about the time it's taking to make education financing equitable.

Gov. Rudy Perpich's goal of making Minnesota the "Brain Power State" can be achieved only if the state provides a quality education to all of its students regardless of where they live and the wealth of their communities.

Free Legal Help Available For Troubled Farmers

A distressed farmer in southern Minnesota was recently surprised to find out there was free legal help available to him. Faced with foreclosure and repossession of the family farm, the farmer was sent to his nearest farm legal aid office where he learned he was eligible for legal assistance. While there, the distressed farmer learned about his right to mediation. He was also told he may be able to survive and continue his family farm operation by using the new Chapter 12 federal bankruptcy law.

If you are a farmer confronting adversity it would be wrong to assume there is no legal remedy available to you or that legal assistance is too expensive. There have been many recent changes in the laws regarding the rights and protections available to farmers, and, in providing legal assistance for farmers in need, according to the Minnesota Attorney General's office.

Among these changes is the Minnesota Family Farm Law Project. This program was established by the Minnesota Legislature to provide legal assistance to eligible farmers. Although there are eligibility requirements, many distressed farmers would qualify for help. In addition, legal referrals can be made for some farmers in the event they are unable to qualify for the program. Priority is given to farmers that are facing foreclosure or repossession. Copies of the eligibility requirements and farm case priority are available at any of the following farm legal aid offices. For the nearest farm legal aid office, phone Moorhead (218) 233-8585 or toll free line 1-800-452-3625.

A farmer looking for specialized legal information to help solve his dilemma may request the information from the St. Paul Family Farm Law Project office, 1-800-233-4534. Booklets with specialized information for farmers are available, such as "Farmer's Rights with FmHA" and "Farmer's Rights with FDIC." Farmers can get specialized information and other booklets on most any area of farm law.

The 1986 Minnesota farm bill provided many new legal rights for farmers, including the right of first refusal on leasing or buying back a farmer's foreclosed farm. A farmer can learn how these new farm-law changes may help resolve his farm problem by contacting his nearest farm legal aid office.

If a farmer is still frustrated and unable to locate the information and legal help needed to resolve his farm problems, he should feel free to call the Attorney General's Farm and Home Preservation Hotline toll free at 1-800-652-9747 or (612) 297-4111.

PERA To Change Survivor And Annuity Options

Public Employees Retirement association (PERA) plans agency rule-making proceedings — complete with public hearing — to formally adopt a new joint and survivor annuity option table that the PERA trustees approved last October.

The trustees' action and the upcoming rule-making proceedings were made necessary by the discovery last August that the current option table was producing annuities that were not "actuarial equivalents" of normal annuities as required by law and was costing the PERA funds millions of dollars each year, according to a PERA news release. The new survivor option table will take effect July 1, 1987, and will apply to PERA members retiring after June 30.

The current table was adopted by the old PERA board of trustees in 1983. That board was turned out of office as a result of action by the state legislature in 1985. The new board of trustees has been in place since April of that year.

Like the current table, the new one will be used to compute the amount by which a retiring member's monthly annuity is reduced to provide survivorship protection. But the new table will result in a reduction in the member's monthly annuity amount that is greater than the reduction made by using the current table.

Since the current table went into effect July 1, 1983, the PERA funds have sustained successive fiscal year-end "mortality" losses that have cost the funds more than $30 million to date. Had the new board of trustees not decided to switch to the new and less generous table, the PERA funds would have incurred extremely large long-term liability costs that could have placed the funds in deficit, the release states.

The problem with the current option table was first identified by PERA's new actuarial consulting firm in August of last year. Said board president Arne Carlson, Minnesota's state auditor, "By approving the new table in October and having it take effect July 1, 1987, following formal rule-making, the board is trying to balance the need to curtail further losses while not moving so swiftly as to disrupt the retirement plans of the thousands of PERA members who have been relying on annuity estimates derived from the current table."

PERA has undertaken to notify its members of the coming change in order to avoid surprises or litigation.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

In the present state of the union address it was almost a carbon copy of the last three or four years. The President talks about how much better the country is now than when he took over six years ago. Well, I for one do not agree. He talks about how the inflation is way down, and how interest on money is cut in half, and millions more people have jobs.

With the increase in population millions more men and women will enter the job market but the sorry part of Reagan is millions of new jobs, over 80 per cent earn less than $7,000 a year, below the poverty line. Now let us just stop for one minute and talk about money, the only thing that makes the wheel of industry and our great U.S.A. work.

As you know, not long ago our country was the envy of the whole world. We were the richest and the smartest and much much more. Today we are a debtor nation meaning we owe so much I would not even begin to mention it. We used to have friends and stepping stones all over the world. Today as it stands we have mostly enemies. We surely must be doing something wrong. We have over the past years tried to buy and help many small countries, but that has backfired too. I cannot figure out really what the president, trustees and elected men and women are doing in Washington to get our country in such a mess.

There doesn't seem to be enough money to go around. We are cutting funds to the elderly, education, medicare, poor vets and farmers, also a lot more. We finally got a clean water bill which passed over Reagan's veto. I guess all I can say is if our country cannot provide clean water, food for the poor, sick, disabled vets and old people, and also education for the young we don't have much of a government.

I am sure if this administration would have carried on where Carter and Sadat of Egypt left off — they worked so hard to bring peace to the far East — things could have been much better. But nobody seemed to care and this is why we have all the killings and hostage takings. We lost 240 U.S. servicemen in one bombing. All this hostility could maybe have been avoided if we would only have tried to make peace with all those countries.

In the late 1970's, there were all kinds of meetings with the Russians and we were almost seeing eye to eye to try and cut down on the killer bombs and bring the arms race under control. There was one treaty made with hopes of more to come. But in the early '80's the new administration took over and nothing more has been accomplished.

All Reagan can think about is star wars and I am sure that will put an end to the arms agreement. With all the deterrents we have on land and sea, why do we want to go up in the high heavens? We would only start a new arms race and we know the Russians would do the same. As for my way of thinking the only place that star wars belong is in the movies and where would we get the money for it? We are in the hole so far now it would take us years to pay back what we have borrowed.

This country now does not seem to be able to house and feed the millions of people that have no homes or money. They beg and live in the streets and subways. All I can say in closing is our government will have to make a lot of changes soon! Time is running out!!! The day of reckoning is coming.

Sincerely,
-s-Melvin Joppru

To The Editor:

This letter is in response to the young lady from Lincoln high. Congratulations. I'm surprised this type of letter has not been written before. I agree with you 100 per cent. This serious problem is nothing new in Thief River Falls. Don't get me wrong, I think a lot of our fair city; however, I know what you're saying.

I was born and raised here, graduated from Lincoln in the late '50's and it was a problem then too. I am now a mother and grandmother. I was involved in 4-H and church activities also. Like you said, movies get boring. We didn't have VCRs and had to go to Warren or Grand Forks for pizza. The young people back then were on the road constantly, whenever they could get their parents' car, as very few had their own. They were always going to another town and I don't mean the bigger towns for entertainment, swimming, roller-skating, etc., and drinking was also due to lack of activities. The smaller towns had more than we did. Indeed it was boring.

Which also brings me to another complaint. Why are so many people going to Grand Forks for shopping, gas, etc. Why does Thief River Falls have to have higher prices on everything? It's sad and I'm afraid if the present situation continues Thief River Falls will slowly close more doors on business steadily. We need industry for employment and a lot more. Our problem affects us all. But Thief River Falls has always been run by the elite few who discourage GROWTH in the common sense of the word.

Yes, you young people are our future and the way things are going now one may wonder if things couldn't be done a lot better by you young people than us adults; our track record isn't the greatest. Our young people learn from us, but when they get into trouble and make headlines, boy, the roof really comes down, doesn't it? Your letter deserved headlines and I for one commend you for your public protest. Please believe me, if I had the funds I'd build you a youth center that would knock your socks off. I know what you kids feel like; I've been there.

Starwatch Gives Areas Of Interest In February Sky

Nights are getting shorter, but the cold, dry winter air still makes for excellent sky viewing. Good conditions will be needed to see two of February's best sights: the appearance of Mercury as a faint evening star and the eclipse of the bright star Spica by the moon on the 18th, according to the University of Minnesota Starwatch program.

The month ends with a new moon, while the full "snow" moon on Friday the 13th ushers in Valentine's day. The moon passes in front of Spica, the brightest star in the constellation Virgo, between 6 and 6:30 a.m. on the 18th. The star will disappear behind the bright limb of a bright moon, but the event should be easy to see with binoculars or a small telescope.

A very young moon will appear just above the western horizon the evening of the 28th. At 23 hours old, it will be just at the limit of naked-eye visibility about half an hour after sunset. This is a good time of year to find very young moons because the moon's path makes a steep angle with the horizon.

Jupiter is slowly sinking westward but is still bright in the evening sky. Above and to the left of Jupiter is Mars, fading as Earth outstrips it in the race around the sun. Mars has been moving steadily eastward and moves from Pisces into Aries on the 18th.

Far below and to the right of Jupiter is tiny Mercury, a dim beacon set in the bright layer of sky near the horizon. Mercury is highest this month the evening of the 11th, when it will be 18 degrees east of the sun. Look for it just after sunset with binoculars; it will be hard to find in the haze. Soon it falls back into the sun's glare, passing directly between Earth and the sun on the 27th.

The morning sky offers the bright duo of Venus and Saturn. Venus isn't quite as bright as last month, but it's still brilliant. Saturn is higher and west of Venus, in the constellation Ophiuchus.

The familiar winter constellations Orion, Taurus, Gemini and the Pleiades are high up in early evening. Trailing close behind Orion in the constellation Canis Major is Sirius, the Dog Star, the brightest star in the sky.

Some interesting comparisons can be made between Sirius and Rigel and Betelgeuse, the brightest stars in Orion. Sirius outshines the other two stars, even though it's only 20 times brighter than the sun while Betelgeuse is 13,000 times brighter and Rigel 40,000 times brighter. The Dog Star is so luminous because it's only 8.7 light-years from Earth, compared to 500 for Betelgeuse and 1,000 for Rigel.

Minnesota Starwatch is a monthly guide to the night sky in the Upper Midwest. Information is provided by members of the astronomy department of the University of Minnesota. To hear a taped version of Starwatch, call (612) 624-2001.

MCCL Speaker Says Euthanasia May Be Common

By the year 2000, euthanasia by lethal injection will be commonplace in America unless mechanisms are developed to protect a person's right to receive as well as to reject medical treatment and life-sustaining care.

This grim prediction was made by Thomas J. Marzen, general counsel for the National Legal Center for the Medically Dependent and Disabled. Marzen addressed an audience of Minnesota Citizens Concerned for Life members and their state legislators at a dinner sponsored by MCCL February 3 at the Prom center in St. Paul.

He said in the decade since the courts decided the Karen Ann Quinlan case, they have moved rapidly from authorizing removal of a respirator from someone thought to be terminally ill to allowing the denial of food and water to people who are not dying but are merely incompetent.

"When withholding nutrition and hydration becomes acceptable, the argument against using lethal injections to make death come quickly, and less painfully becomes very weak," Marzen said. He added that if society accepts "mercy killing" as a benefit to the terminal patient, it will be imposible to deny it to people facing long and difficult illnesses, and even to those unable to request it, such as the comatose, the retarded and the senile.

He said "living will" laws in effect in at least 38 states and proposed for Minnesota don't solve the problem of how to make medical treatment decisions for those who can't direct their own care. Such declarations, he said, can either be too general, in effect giving unlimited power to doctors to interpret them, or too specific, setting out circumstances and conditions unlikely ever to arise.

"There are also all kinds of definitional problems with living wills," Marzen said. "For instance, what is a terminal illness and when does it occur? At the first diagnosis of AIDS or Alzheimer's disease, perhaps, or when a person is found to have diabetes, also an incurable illness?"

Rhetoric advocating living wills has created a "mystique" which leads people to assume that treatment will be provided unless they reject it, Marzen said. "I can tell you from experience that this is not the case," he said. "I suggest that within 10 years people will want to write living wills to ask for treatment, rather than to refuse it."

Marzen said it also is dangerous to empower a third party to make treatment decisions for an incompetent person. "The right to refuse or consent to treatment is personal, like the right to vote," he pointed out. "It cannot safely be turned over to someone else. We cannot assume that the person exercising such a power, even if he or she is a family member, will always act in the patients' best interests."

Marzen said groups promoting active euthanasia are beginning by attacking laws against assisted suicide. For example, the Hemlock society, through its branch called Americans Against Human Suffering, is waging a campaign in Florida, Arizona and California (states with large elderly populations) to legalize "aid in dying." California voters are expected to be presented with a ballot question in 1988 on whether to repeal that state's assisted suicide prohibiton.

For now, Marzen said, such proposals apply to voluntary death requests from people diagnosed as terminally ill. "But," he said, "as we have seen with passive forms of euthanasia, the discussion moves quickly toward extending the 'benefit' of death to those who are merely disabled in some way." In fact, he said, a better argument can be made for quickly ending the suffering of someone who otherwise would have a long time to live with an illness or disability.

Marzen predicted that "aid in dying" eventually will be extended to those who have never expressed their wishes about it. He urged legislators to consider measures that will ensure a patient's autonomy and protect the right to receive as well as reject care.

Archabal Named State Historical Society Director

Nina M. Archabal was named director of the Minnesota Historical society (MHS) recently by Kennon V. Rothchild, president of the society. Archabal had been acting director since Russell W. Fridley announced his retirement June 27, 1986.

The MHS executive committee selected Archabal, 46, of St. Paul, from among 80 applicants in a nationwide search for a new director — the 10th director since MHS was organized in 1849. Archabal joined the society's staff in 1977 as an assistant supervisor in the education division. In 1978 she was appointed depute director for program management, a position she held until being named director.

The Society, which recieves about 70 per cent of its finding from the state, is a non-profit organization with 200 full-time and 150 part-time employees, responsible for collecting, preserving, interpreting and disseminating materials relating to the state's history. As director, Archabal will manage a state-wide history program, including museums and other properties; a substantial publications program; an extensive historic sites network; a public research library; and the development of educational materials and exhibits. She also will have statutory responsibility for the state's historic preservation, public records, archaeology, and folklife programs.

NORTHLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE goalie Kurt Chaffee made the save on University of Minnesota-Crookston wing Rick Dahle in the second period of Monday's Minnesota Community College Conference hockey game played at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena. The Trojans beat the Pioneers 3-1 in front of a large crowd.

Trojans Edge Pioneers 3-1

Playoff hockey came early for Northland Community College Monday when the Pioneers closed out their 1986-87 regular season schedule against rival University of Minnesota-Crookston at the Thief River falls Sports Arena.

After a strong start this winter, Northland found it increasingly more difficult to win down the stretch, losing four of five starts before closing against the Trojans, who had already clinched the regular season Minnesota Community College Conference title.

Those late-season losses backed the Pioneers into a corner. To join UMC, Itasca and Mesabi in the four-team MCCC playoffs this weekend, Northland had to do one of two things in the UMC game — either beat the Trojans, or at least score six goals.

To do either would enable the Pioneers to edge out Hibbing for the final post-season spot. Hibbing, just behind Northland in the standings going into a final regular season start Tuesday against Rainy River, was a heavy favorite to beat the lowly Voyageurs. A combination of a Northland loss and a Hibbing win would have produced a fourth place tie, and put the Cardinals in the playoffs through a tie-breaking system. Northland, though, would still win out, even in losing, by scoring six goals against UMC.

But UMC goalie Gary Vaudrin, a sophomore from Crookston, made sure that wouldn't happen with a strong 39-save performance that led the Trojans to a 3-1 victory that all but guaranteed the Pioneers a spot on the sidelines for the playoffs.

A large crowd was treated to a good show.

"It was a good hockey game," confirmed Northland coach Scott Bergland. "It was an even game. On another night, we might have won 3-1. They (Pioneers) gave it a solid effort. They've got nothing to hang their heads about."

Vaudrin stood up, cut down the angles and controlled the rebounds in making big saves each period. He surrendered only a second period goal when defenseman Stacy Monkman let go with a slap shot from the point. Vaudrin came out of the net to challenge the shooter, making the save, only to have Northland forward Jim Speidel reach behind the goalie to shove the loose puck into the net at 5:20 for a 1-1 tie.

UMC had a 1-0 lead on a goal by Shane Steinmetz at 13:23 of the first period, and regained a 2-1 edge when Tom Thorton scored a shorthanded goal at 11:03 of the second period. Thorton came down 1-on-1 against a Northland defender, then drilled the puck over goalie Kurt Chaffee's shoulder from the top of the face-off circle to the netminder's left side.

An insurance goal came from Mark Lyczewski three minutes later when he sprinted down the ice on a 4-on-4 situation and tucked the puck behind a sprawling Chaffee, moments after the freshman netminder from Fargo North had made a big save on UMC wing Rick Dahle.

Chaffee finished with 35 saves, and Northland wound up with a 14-8 record. "We're disappointed to not be in the playoffs, but 14-8 is a successful season," offered Bergland.

Scoring

First period — UMC, Shane Steinmetz (Mark Lyczewski-Rick Dahle), 13:23.

Second period — NCC, Jim Speidel (Stacy Monkman-Steve Wiskow), 5:20; UMC, Tom Thorton (Billy Nashwinter), 11:03; UMC, Lyczewski (un.), 14:16.

Third period — none.

TRF Wins 5-0 Section 8 Hockey Game . . .

Prowlers Shut Out Lakers

Thief River Falls' recent surge in Section 8 high school hockey continued Tuesday when the Prowlers dominated play in beating Detroit Lakes 5-0.

Scott Grand scored a pair of goals for the Prowlers, while goalies Shayne Anderson and Nathaniel Peres combined for a relatively easy 14-save shutout.

The Prowlers, 7-10-1 for the year, have three wins and a tie in their last five starts — all against Section 8 foes. They finish 1986-87 regular season play with games Saturday vs. Fergus Falls and Tuesday vs. Warroad at the Sports Arena.

"It's a big win for us as far as the (Section 8) seeding process," explained Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand after the Prowlers' second shutout win of the year (the other one was also a 5-0 decision, Dec. 27 at Lake of the Woods). "This could help us get the home ice advantage in the sub-sections."

Thief River Falls overwhelmed Detroit Lakes, a team that was coming off a surprising 4-3 Saturday night win over Moorhead, in the first period when the Prowlers out-shot the visiting Lakers 22-5 in taking a 2-0 lead.

Controlling a face-off in the Detroit Lakes zone, the Prowlers got the draw to Shoan Nelson on the point, and his slap shot was tipped in by Grand at 8:44 to start the scoring.

Bob Geatz made it 2-0 with a power play goal at 14:09 when he was fed right in front of the net on a pass out of the corner by Bill Dicken.

Thief River Falls missed a number of other good scoring opportunities that first period, waiting until 11:44 of the second period before scoring again, another power play goal — this time by Blair Lund. Back-to-back penalties had the Lakers skating shorthanded for nearly four full minutes, with Lund jumping on a loose puck in the slot and slamming it past Detroit Lakes goalie Greg Zabel for a 3-0 cushion.

It became 5-0 in the third period when Grand and Jason Brunkhorst put in centering passes from defensemen Dave Johnson and Dicken at 7:22 and 12:08, respectively. Brunkhorst was one of several reserves who picked up playing time as the Prowlers carried the play.

Thief River Falls played without starters Scott Novak and Jason Lee. Novak, the team's top forward, suffered a knee injury in Saturday's 2-2 overtime tie at Roseau. A bad bruise and stretched ligaments has his availability on a day-to-day basis. Lee, one of four defensemen used by the Prowlers, missed the game because of illness.

Shoan Nelson and Sean Krepp took their places, although Nelson, after starting out on defense, swapped spots with Rob Coltom after the first period. Coltom broke into the line-up as a defenseman earlier this winter when Lee was sidelined by an injury, and has played regularly as a wing in recent games.

Peres made his varsity debut, replacing Anderson with 7:38 remaining in the third period. It was the first time all year that Anderson has vacated the Thief River Falls nets.

Scoring

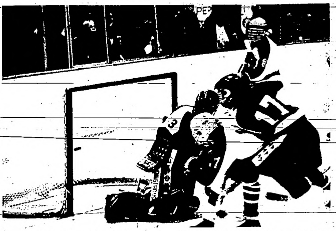
First period — TRF, Jeff Grand (Shoan Nelson-Bob Geatz), 8:44; TRF, Geatz (Bill Dicken-Jim Brelland), 14:09.

Second period — TRF, Blair Lund (Geatz-Dave Johnson), 11:44.

Third period — TRF, Grand (Johnson), 7:22; TRF, Jason Brunkhorst (Dicken-John Dondelinger), 12:08.

Goalie saves — TRF, Shayne Anderson 5-5-0, Nathaniel Peres X-X-4, TRF game total 14; Detroit Lakes, Greg Zabel 20-5-12, 37.



THIEF RIVER FALLS forward Jason Brunkhorst (11) was wrapped up by Detroit Lakes defenseman Byron Sagen (17), but he still shot the puck past Detroit Lakes goalie Greg Zabel in the third period of Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game at the Sports Arena. Brunkhorst directed in a centering pass from Bill Dicken to close out a 5-0 Thief River Falls victory at 12:08 of the final period.

Pioneers Gain State Hockey Playoff Position

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

Miracles do happen. Just ask Northland Community College hockey coach Scott Bergland and members of this team after they learned late Tusday night that the Pioneers, benefiting from a 5-4 Rainy River win over Hibbing, qualified for post-season play.

Bergland and the Pioneers figured their 1986-87 season had ended Monday when Northland dropped a 3-1 decision to the University of Minnesota-Crookston. At that point, the only way the Pioneers could squeeze into the tight Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament picture was to have Hibbing lose to Rainy River the following night.

That was unlikely since the Cardinals had beaten the Voyageurs 10-5 earlier this winter. And Hibbing had playoff incentive, not already-elimination Rainy River.

Hibbing was well on its way to the playoffs, too, when the Cardinals jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead. Rainy River didn't play dead, though. The Voyageurs cut the deficit to 4-3 before the second period ended, and after tying it 4-4, got the game-winner with just nine seconds left in regulation time.

The loss ended a string of 14 consecutive Hibbing state tournament appearances under coach Frank Catani. "It was a good game, very well played," Catani said by telephone this morning.

Northland get the No. 4 MCCC seed for the state tournament weekend semifinals, making the drive to Crookston to face the No. 1-seeded Trojans in a two-game, total-goal series. Games will be played Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Sturday at 1 p.m. No. 2-seeded Itasca will host No. 3 Mesabi in the other weekend semifinal series.

Two winners meet for the MCCC state title in another two-game, total-goal series the following weekend at the site of the highest-seeded semifinal winner.

"Unbelievable," was the way Bergland described his feelings when he learned that Hibbing had lost to Rainy River. "My phone never stopped ringing all night. All the players were calling me to see if it was true."

"We got lucky," admitted Bergland, but he doesn't apologize for backing into the playoffs. The Pioneers have the talent to justifiably be involved in the state title chase. They played very well even in losing two out of three games to Mesabi and UMC to close the year. Maybe they deserved a break, suggested Bergland. At this point the Pioneers aren't concerned how they got into the playoffs, just that they are in. They should have a renewed spirit of enthusiasm that could enable them to challenge the rival Trojans.

MCCC standings this morning show UMC at 16-1, Mesabi 12-4, Itasca 10-4, Northland 10-6, Hibbing 9-7, Rainy River 6-9, Vermilion 2-13 and Brainerd 1-14, with Fergus Falls having withdrawn from league play last week. Itasca is scheduled to meet Brainerd in a make-up game tonight, but that contest will probably be scraped since it would have no bearing on the MCCC playoff situation.

Northland came up with a similar dramatic late-season turn of events a year ago to get into the playoffs. At that time the then-Northmen needed a Wednesday night victory over Fergus Falls and a weekend sweep over Rainy River to gain a post-season berth. They got the win over the Spartans, but only after Ryan Bakke scored with just six seconds left in regulation time to tie it 4-4 and Daryl Grund scored 2:18 into a scheduled 10-minute sudden-death overtime to win it 5-4. They followed with a pair of 4-3 wins at Rainy River.

Hibbing eliminated Northland 8-4 in the playoff semifinals, taking a 6-4 first-game victory and a 2-0 second-game win.

Prowlers Move Up

Three weeks ago Thief River Falls was 4-9 for the year and just 2-8 in Section 8 high school hockey action. But a 5-3 win over East Grand Forks, a 3-2 victory over Moorhead, a 2-2 overtime tie against Roseau and a 5-0 Tuesday night win over Detroit Lakes have given the Prowlers a boost of confidence as post-season play approaches.

Only Thief River Falls setback in the late-season surge was a 5-2 loss to Crookston, a game that was much closer than the final score would indicate.

Thief River Falls has a key Section 8 match-up against Fergus Falls Saturday at the Sports Arena. They finish the regular season schedule at home Tuesday against Section 8 leader Warroad.

At this point the Prowlers figure they have a legitimate shot at being the No. 1 seed for the North Sub-Section 8 playoffs.

Coaches will vote to seed four teams directly into the Section 8 tournament, and at this point it would seem certain those four will be Warroad, Crookston, Roseau and Bemidji. Rest of the teams will compete for the four remaining spots through North and South Sub-Section 8 play.

With Warroad, Crookston and Roseau all coming out of the North, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks figure to be best bets for the No. 1 seed in the North Sub-Section 8 set-up. The Prowlers, with their recent strong play, feel they have the edge over the Green Wave, and a win over Fergus Falls would probably confirm it.

Gaining the valuable No. 1 spot would mean the Prowlers would have a first-round bye in the sub-sectional eliminations, needing just a single win — on home ice — to gain a spot in the Section 8 quarterfinals.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' 1-3 record against North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball teams to date will likely put the Prowlers in the No. 5 spot when the coaches' seeding vote is conducted. The Prowlers own a 68-51 win over Bemidji, but lost to Detroit Lakes 67-62, Moorhead 69-45 and Fergus Falls 54-41. They have another shot at Bemidji Friday in the Lincoln gym. North Sub-Region 8AA play starts March 10 when the No. 4 seeded team hosts the No. 5 seed. Semifinals will be played March 12 at the home sites of the higher-seeded teams. Thief River Falls is 8-7 overall, just 1-4 over the last 3½ weeks.

Spartans Sweep Pioneers

Fergus Falls picked up a pair of five-point wins over Northland Monday in a Minnesota Community College Conference basketball doubleheader in Thief River Falls.

The Spartans won the women's game 82-77, and took the men's game 91-86.

It was a critical setback for both Northland teams, who are competing for MCCC state tournament berths out of the Northwest Division, where the top two regular season finishers qualify for post-season play.

Northland fell to third place in the women's standings with a 6-2 record, trailing 8-0 University of Minnesota-Crookston and 6-1 Fergus Falls. Northland maintained its second place standing in men's play with a 5-3 mark. Fergus Falls is 7-0 and third place UMC is 3-5. Brainerd is out of the picture in both men's and women's play.

The Pioneers host the last-place Red Raiders Saturday. The women's game starts at 12-noon and the men play at 2 p.m.

Northland ends its 1986-87 regular season schedule next week, visiting Fergus Falls Monday and hosting UMC Thursday, February 19, in 6 p.m. doubleheaders.

Northland led Fergus Falls for 37 minutes, but the Spartans took the lead [illegible] counted the most — at the end — in winning a come-from-behind 82-77 women's game.

The Pioneers started with a 13-2 lead. They had a 46-37 halftime advantage, and still enjoyed a nine-point cushion midway through the second half.

But Fergus Falls' Sheila Beaman started hitting from the outside down the stretch, nailing 18 of her 22 points in the Oilers' late-game rally that pulled out the victory.

"Defensively we got a little soft," admitted Northland coach Tom Neibuer. "We were expecting them to miss the 15-footers, and they were making them."

Another Northland sore spot, said Neibauer was the fact the Pioneers

Plummer Tips Grygla 57-55

It was close all the way, but for the first time this year, recalled Plummer coach Jim Baron, the Cardinals held a lead from start to finish Tuesday in collecting a 57-55 boys high school basketball win at Grygla.

Plummer started with a 15-9 first quarter lead, had a 27-23 edge at halftime and took a 39-33 advantage into the fourth quarter when Grygla won a 22-18 shoot-out, but was never able to wrestle the lead away from the Cardinals.

"We just couldn't get over the hump," pointed out Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "Eight points was the biggest lead, but it seemed like it was always four or six points. It's some consolation to play a good team close, but we had some opportunities that we didn't take advantage of, and that was a little disappointing."

Shane Freyholtz led Plummer with a game-high 22 points, but a key contribution came from a 14-point effort out of John Fisher, who has been working his average close to double figures in recent weeks. Wade Grinde chipped in 11. Reed Engelstad led Grygla with 14 points, while Bruce Holte and Thor Smerek both netted 12.

"We played well enough to win," said Baron. "Overall, I guess we played pretty well."

Plummer charts showed the Cardinals 25-for-61 from the field (41 per cent) and the Eagles 22-for-60 (37 per cent), while giving Plummer a 33-27 rebound edge and also a high 20-17 figure in the turnover department. The Cardinals were 7-for-18 at the free throw line, where the Eagles were 11-for-16.

Grygla, 7-7 has a pair of rivals to contend with this weekend, playing at Marshall County Central Friday and at Goodridge Saturday. Plummer, 10-3, hosts Alvarado Saturday.

Marshall County Central picked up its third win in a row Tuesday with a 62-60 victory over Tri-County at Newfolden.

It started with a strong first quarter as the Nordics went 11-for-14 from the field in the first eight minute for a 23-14 lead.

"We were firing on all cylinders in the first quarter," noted Marshall County Central coach RonUeland. "It went exactly the way it's suppose to be done."

Marshall County Central took a 31-24 lead into halftime. Tri-County narrowed the gap to 45-44 at the end of the third quarter, and tested the Nordics the rest of the way, although his team always seemed to meet the challenge, said Ueland. The Rabbits had a shot at a win when they had the ball, trailing 61-60, at the end, but strong defensive work by the Nordics kept Tri-County off the board, and a free throw by Darin Rokke with just two seconds left wrapped up the scoring.

Tri-County standout Brandon Bergeron led all scorers with 31 points. Rokke had 19 for the Nordics, who received a strong game from Tom Bolstad at both ends of the court, contributing 8 points in the process.

Marshall County Central shot 52 per cent from the field (27-for-52) and was 8-for-16 at the free throw line. Tri-County shot 40 per cent from the field (24-for-60) and was 12-for-24 at the line. The Rabbits had a 32-26 rebound edge. Tri-County had nine turnovers, and Marshall County Central had eight.

The win put the Nordics at 8-7 for the year. They host Grygla Friday and visit Middle River Tuesday.

Bemidji Swimmers Defeat Prowlers

Bemidji slapped another loss on the Thief River Falls boys Tuesday as the host Lumberjacks won a one-sided 123-49 dual meet high school swimming meet.

Thief River Falls is 7-2 in dual meet competition, and both losses have come at the hands of the Lumberjacks, who won a 95-74 decision when they met here Jan. 16.

"We were short some varsity swimmers," explained Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney after the second loss. "Given the circumstances we were about as competitive as we could be.

Thief River Falls won just two events, with Shon Thompson collecting 193.0 points in diving and Rick Rosetta going 58.60 in the 100-yard butterfly.

There were some other noteworthy accomplishments, however, said Forney. Aaron Tofte was a Section 8 qualifier in the 50 freestyle with a career-best effort, and also turned in a career-best showing on his leg of the 200 medley relay. Rosetta had a career-best in the 200 individual medley, while Keith Olson turned in his best-ever times in the I.M., 500 freestyle and on his leg in the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Thief River Falls will close out its 1986-87 home season schedule Thursday with a 5 p.m. dual against Grand Forks at the Franklin Middle School pool.

Minnesota Chapter of the Wildlife Society recently awarded the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance its 1986 Conservation Organization Award. This award recognizes the contributions of the group in working for the passage of the landmark, Re-Invest in Minnesota (RIM) legislation.

"The Alliance epitomizes the adage, 'strength in numbers' since they provide a unified voice for Minnesota's hunting, fishing and trapping community," said Dan Svedarsky, chairman of the awards committee.

The 1986 RIM legislation provided $16.1 million for fish and wildlife habitat improvement on state and selected marginal agricultural lands throughout Minnesota. Additionally, a $2.5 million public-private matching account was established for acquisition and development of critical habitat and another $2.5 million for special fish and wildlife management projects. Several other states have taken notice of this innovative law and are considering its application to their own conservation needs.

Minnesota Chapter of the Wildlife Society is the professional organization of Minnesota wildlife biologists, wildlife managers, researchers, and teachers dedicated to improving the fish, wildlife and plant resources of the state. Each year the group recognizes the top individual and organization who have made significant contributions to wildlife management in the state.

Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance is made up of the following statewide groups: Ducks Unlimited, Fish and Wildlife Employees Association, Minnesota Bowhunters, Inc., Minnesota Deerhunters Association, Minnesota Sportfishing Congress, Minnesota State Archery Association, Minnesota Waterfowl Association, Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation, Muskies, Inc., Pheasants Forever, Safari Club International, Turn In Poachers, and the Minnesota Trappers Association. Hundreds of Minnesota sportsmen and women belong as individual members, and so do many local sportsmen's clubs and chapters.

Snowmobile Use Increased In 1986, According To DNR

Registered snowmobiles last winter were used more than 2.4 million times — a 71 per cent increase over the previous year — according to a recently-released survey report by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

"It's hard to say if this represents a significant trend," said Dan Collins, DNR trail programs supervisor. "As you might expect, snowfall has a lot to do with it. This year's lack of snow in many areas of the state will likely translate into lower numbers when our statistics are tabulated at the end of the season."

Survey results showed that most snowmobiling was spread evenly over the northern two-thirds of the state, including the Twin Cities area. St. Louis and Hennepin counties were the most heavily used last winter.

Collins said Minnesota's three most popular snowmobile trails were the Taconite State Trail, running from Grand Rapids to Ely; the Heartland State Trail, running from Park Rapids to Walker to Cass Lake; and the North Shore State Trail, running along the North Shore from Duluth to Grand Marais.

About 70 per cent of all snowmobiling occurred on trails maintained by local units of government and snowmobile clubs funded through the DNR's Grants-In-Aid Program.

Each registered snowmobile owner used their machine an average of 12 times last winter, the survey indicated.

Only 47 per cent of snowmobiling took place on groomed trails, compared with 69 per cent in 1984-85. "This seems to indicate that in years with ample snow cover, a lot of snowmobiling takes place off the designated trail system — in local areas and along roads and ditches," Collins explained.

"The survey also showed that snowmobilers spent about $21 million during trips on designated trails last winter," Collins added. Snowmobilers traveled an average of 28 miles to reach trails, snowmobiled an average of 74 miles per trip and spent an average of $16.96 per person per day on designated snowmobile trails.

Riders generally preferred that snowmobile revenues from their registrations and a share of the state's gas tax be returned to their areas of residence, especially in out-state areas. Only half of Twin Cities snowmobilers wanted funds returned to the metropolitan area with many preferring funded trails in the northeast and central regions.

The survey showed that the vast majority of snowmobilers were satisfied, overall, with the state's snowmobile trail program. Many snowmobilers did, however, indicate a desire for more trails, better trail maintenance, and improved trail markings and maps.

More than 10,700 miles of trails crisscross Minnesota. Money to groom and maintain them (more than $2.6 million this winter) is raised through snowmobile registration fees and a portion of the state gasoline tax based on the amount of gasoline snowmobiles are estimated to consume.

Information about Minnesota's snowmobile trail system is available in "Explore Minnesota By Snowmobile," a publication of the Minnesota Office of Tourism. To order a free copy or to get more information on snowmobiling, call the DNR Information Center toll-free at 1-800-652-9747 (ask for the DNR).

Grafton defeated Thief River Falls 48-39 Tuesday in freshmen boys high school basketball action.

Northland Falls To Lake Region By 85-45 Score

Lake Region showed why it's the No. 1-rated team in Region 13 Tuesday when the Royals posted a one-sided 85-45 win over host Northland in women's community college basketball.

Led by a pair of 6-5 players — Dorene Heisler and Colleen Chaske — the Royals dominated the action, building a 44-25 halftime lead and out-scoring the Pioneers 41-20 in the second half.

"They've got talent," acknowledged Northland coach Tom Neibauer. "They should be playing in the North Central Conference (NCAA Division II), not Thief River Falls."

Northland's Angie Enerson and Janelle Lorsung matched up with the Lake Region talent, said Neibauer, scoring 16 and 15 points, respectively. Chaske, a 240-pounder, led Lake Region with 16 points.

Northland shot just 28 per cent from the field (20-for-71), while Lake Region shot 49 per cent (39-for-79). The Pioneers were 5-for-12 at the free throw line, where the Royals were a perfect 7-for-7.

It was the final nonconference game of the 1986-87 season for the Pioneers, who are 10-9 overall, 6-2 against Minnesota Community College Conference foes. They finish the schedule against Northwest Division rivals, hosting Brainerd Saturday, visiting Fergus Falls Monday and entertaining University of Minnesota-Crookston Thursday, February 18.

Northland shot well from the field, making 32 of 58 attempts (55 per cent), and the Pioneers were 13-for-20 at the free throw line. Fergus Falls got off more shots, though, making 36 of 78 tries (45 per cent) and went 10-for-21 at the line.

MCC Girls Edge Tri-County

Marshall County Central girls held off Tri-County to win a 46-44 girls high school basketball game at Karlstad Monday, stretching the Nordics' winning streak to 14 games following a season-opening 43-40 setback at the hands of unbeaten Class AA Thief River Falls.

It wasn't one of the Nordics' better performances, admitted Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We didn't play very well, and they did," he said. "We let them stay in the game."

Final score, however, was closer than what the game actually was. Marshall County Central had quarter leads of 16-9, 26-21 and 37-32 before opening up a pair of 10-point fourth quarter leads. The Nordics still had a six-point cushion with just 20 seconds left before it got close with a last-second Tri-County basket.

Jodi Foss scored 16 points for the Nordics, with Natalie Ueland getting 12 and Andrea Kragness 10. Ueland played one of her best games of the season, pointed out Mjelde. Karen Porter led Tri-County with 15 points.

Tri-County out-scored Marshall County Central from the field, hitting 19 of 55 shots (35 per cent), while the Nordics made 15 of 50 tries (30 per cent). But Marshall County Central had enough free throw chances to secure the victory, going 16-for-31 at the line, where the Rabbits were 4-for-10.

FRIDAY MARKED the 15th annual Knox Elementary School staff vs. fifth grade floor hockey game. Staff goalie Tippi Benson covered the puck as teammate Nancy Skeim and a pair of fifth grade attackers looked for the rebound in this bit of action. Knox students, who seemed to be equally divided between cheering for the staff or the fifth graders packed the gymnasium stage area and spilled onto the court to watch the 60-minute contest, a midwinter highlight at the school. The staff prevailed for the 15th straight time, 12-7, but the winners admitted it was becoming more difficult to keep the streak alive. "The kids are still 11," they pointed out, "but we're all 15 years older."

— News From Minnesota DNR —

Use of Minnesota's cross-country ski trails by licensed skiers in the state rose significantly last year, according to a recent survey released by the Department of Natural Resources.

Almost 70,000 skiers participated in the license program last year, out of an estimated one million cross-country skiers who are believed to now ski in the state, according to DNR Trail Programs Supervisor Dan Collins.

"Licenses are required for all skiers, age 16 to 64, who use public trails that are groomed and signed with the assistance of state funds," Collins said. "These include state parks, state forests and state-developed trails."

He explained that they are also needed on signed trails in county and municipal recreation areas, as well as in all Hennepin County park reserves where state funds have been used for recreation. Licenses are not required on federal ski trails or in unsigned areas where skiers break trail themselves.

Collins cited two likely reasons for the increase in cross-country trail use during the 1985-86 season.

"Snowfall was abundant and ski conditions were ideal last year, whereas the previous year most of the state had half its average annual snowfall," Collins said. "The increase may also reflect the increasing popularity of cross-country skiing overall and-or the popularity of areas that require the license."

Survey results showed that ski trails in the Twin Cities area received just over half of all licensed ski-trail use, Collins said. A similar survey three years ago indicated 63 per cent of all licensed trail use occurred in this area, indicating that while licensed skiing has become more popular in the Twin Cities, licensed use in outstate areas has grown faster.

Northeastern Minnesota's Arrowhead region was the second most heavily skied area, experiencing about 25 per cent of all licensed ski-trail use in the state, he added.

About 30 per cent of all licensed skiing took place in a state park, according to the survey. William O'Brien and Afton State Parks in Washington County were the most popular.

Ski trails in the Suburban Hennepin Regional Park District were also popular, with 23 per cent of the state's licensed ski-trail use. The most-used trail in the state was a park district trail — Hyland-Bush-Anderson Park Reserve in Bloomington (6.3 per cent).

"The survey also showed that licensed skiers alone spent about $2.8 million during ski trips, even though most trips were close to home," Collins said. Licensed skiers averaged 15 trips a year, traveled one-way an average of 25 miles to reach ski trails, skied about eight miles per outing and spent an average of $5.35 per person each day.

Licensed skiers overwhelmingly preferred that funds from the license program be spent in the skier's county of residence, Collins said. Forty-six per cent preferred the funds be spent in the metro area, and 21 per cent preferred it be spent in the northeast.

"The results showed that most licensed skiers support the state's ski-license program, and most wanted better trail maintenance and development," Collins said. "Of course, these are what license revenues make possible."

Sale of cross-country ski licenses generated $190,000 for the acquisition, development and maintenance of ski trails last year, Collins added.

Annual individual license costs $5. A husband-wife license is $7.50. Also, a daily license is available for $1.

"Explore Minnesota On Skis," published by the Minnesota Office of Tourism, provides a list of 2,700 miles of cross-country trails in the state and indicates which require licenses. To order a free copy or for more information on licenses and the sales locations nearest you, call the DNR Information Center toll-free at 1-800-652-9747.

Arbor Day

Arbor Day is the last Friday in April. This year Arbor Day is April 24. May is Arbor month.

Minnesota DNR will again be supplying trees tro communities, schools and non-profit organizations to commemorate Arbor Day.

Trees produced in DNR nurseries must be planted for woodlots, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control, or permanent food and cover for wildlife. There is one exception: classroom teachers may order seedlings to be given to students.

DNR will pick up and deliver trees, or arrangements can be made so that trees will be picked up from a forestry office. Trees will be available April 23.

Trees will be furnished at no cost. Care should be given the trees. If students will be taking trees home, a plastic bag, a little moisture, and a twist tie should be made available.

Orders will be accepted until about March 20.

Minnesota Foresters Association now has a program whereby communities, schools, organizations, etc., can sell trees as a fund raiser. Information on this program can be obtained by calling the association office at (218) 326-4200.

Bonding Beautifies Smiles, Saves Teeth

Not long ago, mouths of bright, straight, evenly spaced teeth belonged only to Hollywood starlets and a lucky few blessed by nature. Today, the kind of smile that lights up a room is within almost everyone's reach, thanks to one of dentistry's most significant innovations ever — bonding.

The technique is made possible by a substance called composite resin. Composite resins combine the elasticity and durability of plastic with the strength and appearance of ceramics used in dentistry. In the hands of the dentist, these versatile, easy-to-manipulate materials can create a surprising range of esthetic dental alterations.

For example, composite resins can be shaped and bonded to chipped teeth in a way that makes the teeth look as though they've always been perfect and whole. Bonded restorations can repair tooth fractures, cover stains, and fill out or lengthen worn out or misshapen teeth.

As its name implies, bonding depends on the fusion of one material — the composite resin — to another — natural tooth structure. In order to assure a successful bond, the dentist first prepares the tooth with a solution that slightly roughens the tooth surface and readies it for the placement of composite resin. Composite resin is a soft, putty-like substance when it is applied and it hardens through a special chemical process, often with the aid of a special curing light. In some cases, dentists will use preformed composite resin "jackets" for the tooth, called laminate veneers. Laminate veneers require less shaping than composite resins painted on with a brush, and they are often used to cover severe stains.

Bonding has several advantages over its more traditional counterpart, the use of crowns. The main benefit is that bonding doesn't necessitate the removal of natural tooth structure. Though crowning effectively restores cosmetic flaws, a tooth must be made smaller in order to accommodate the porcelain or ceramic "cap".

In addition, bonding is usually less costly than having teeth crowned. Bonding costs approximately one-third of what crowns cost. And the bonding procedure involves no drilling and hence no anesthesia; the procedure is usually painless and is relatively quick, with results usually achieved in one or two appointments.

The technique's major limitation stems from the bonding materials themselves. While composite resins are durable, they last only several years and usually need periodic refinishing.

Dental scientists are working constantly to develop stronger, more wear-resistant composite resins to eliminate this drawback. These materials are being used not only to fix cosmetic flaws, but also to fill cavities in teeth. Unlike amalgam fillings, composite resin fillings are tooth-colored and nearly undetectable by untrained eyes.

Bonding is also being used — with enormous effectiveness — to prevent tooth decay in children's back teeth. Tooth sealants made of composite resin may well eradicate tooth decay within the next couple of generations.

When a child's back teeth are developing, natural grooves and depressions, called "pits and fissures", form in the chewing or biting surfaces of the molars. Bacteria and food particles can easily collect in these grooves, which even a toothbrush cannot keep clean. More than 80% of decay in children's teeth occurs in the pits and fissures of molars.

Using the same procedure used in bonding, dentists can apply clear or tinted sealants to these pits and fissures, forming an impermeable physical barrier between the tooth and the food and bacteria that can cause cavities. The procedure is especially effective when the sealant is applied to first and second molars soon after their eruption, usually when a child is between the ages of 6 and 10.

A seven-year study of 400 schoolchildren provided conclusive evidence that sealants are nearly 100% effective in preventing decay, as long as they remain bonded to tooth surfaces. If a tooth loses all or part of its sealant coating, the chances of its developing a cavity are about the same as if the tooth had never been sealed. However, studies show that after seven years, as many as 66% of sealed teeth completely retained their composite resin sealant.

Sealants not only prevent decay but also arrest the development and spread of tiny cavities, called incipient lesions, on molar chewing surfaces. As long as the sealant provides a physical barrier between the cavity and its surrounding environment, the lesion does not increase in size and the bacteria in the lesion die off, ending the decay process.

The American Dental Association recommends pit and fissure sealants for all children. A total dental care program includes daily use of fluorides, daily brushing and flossing, a sensible diet, and regular dental check-ups.

Old Mill Park Plans Afternoon Of Winter Fun

First in a series of special programs and events to celebrate the 50th anniversary of Old Mill state park will be a day of winter fun on February 15 from 12:30 to 5:30 p.m. This event will include sleigh rides, cross country ski time and naturalist-led hikes.

In addition to these special activities, the park offer sliding, skating, hiking, 3.5 miles of groomed cross country ski trails, snowmobile trails and a warming shelter. Winter trail maps are available free at the park entrance and trail users are urged to pick them up and use them to avoid conflicts with other user groups.

Special snowmobile restrictions will be in effect on Sunday to avoid any conflicts with the horse-drawn sleighs. This information will be provided at the park office as you enter. To cap off the day of winter fun, park visitors are invited to stop at the warming house for a free cup of hot cocoa, hot apple cider or coffee.

The park has gained popularity over the last few years for winter activities such as sliding parties for birthdays, for church youth groups, school groups and just plain family fun. There are still many people who think that the parks are closed in the winter, however, and this event intended to make area residents aware that state parks are open in the winter and provide many possibilities for winter recreation in northwestern Minnesota.

As in the summer a valid state park permit is required on all vehicles entering the park. These may be purchased at the park for $15 for the year of $3 for the daily permit.

TRF Head Start Program Looks Back On Activities

Thief River Falls Head Start program has had a busy fall with home visits, clusters, and center bases. During the home visits, parents and children have made playdough, mixed food coloring in Karo Syrup to create new colors and new pictures; and traced large "Pal Pictures" of the children.

At our clusters this fall, parents and children have baked buns to eat with their own home-made butter; went to the library to see all their books, record, and information they have available; and decorated squash as pumpkins.

Our Center Base, held in the ECFE Room, has been busy with children painting, counting children, talking about the weather season, special seasons, and making a snack at each center such as cheese fondue with apple slices, cinnamon toast, a cereal snack mix, blueberry pancakes, and other snacks.

We have gone to the cosmetology department at the AVTI where Darlene Sunram showed us the chairs that go up and down and two Head Start girls got their hair French braided.

The parents have been invited to hear Terry Pankow speak on "Why Won't My Children Listen To Me?" They have also been involved in parent meetings to plan acitivities such as the Christmas Center.

Warren Resident Appointed To U.S. Advisory Panel

Jerry Kruger, a Warren, Minnesota, wheat producer and member of the Minnesota Wheat research and promotion council, has been appointed as a producer representative to an advisory panel of the office of technology assessment, United States Congress.

According to Minnesota wheat council chairman, John Oberg, of Moorhead, the Office of Technology Assessment (OTA) is a nonpartisan analytical support agency that serves the United States Congress by providing objective analyses of major public policy issues related to scientific and technological change. The OTA draws extensively on the broad technical and professional resources of the private sector, including universities, research organizations, industry, and public interest groups.

"The National Association of Wheat Growers recommended Kruger as their representative on the OTA advisory panel," said Oberg, "which will be responsible for providing input to the OTA's recently initiated study on grain quality."

According to Oberg, the advisory panel consists of key people from agri-business, ranging from plant breeders to end-users. "This team will concentrate its study in basically four areas," he said. "These will include the determination of United States grain quality with particular attention to improving international and domestic trade; analysis of the ability of the United States marketing system to provide quality grain; comparison of major competitor countries grain export systems with that of the United States; and analyses of options for congress and the USDA."

The OTA advisory panel will meet two to three times during the next 15 months to meet these study goals, with travel and expenses covered by the OTA. "Kruger has indicated his intent to watch out for the interests of Spring wheat growers as a participant in the study group, specifically in the area of wheat classification," Oberg concluded.

Saturday
Psalm
27:1-14

Years ago, someone catalogued the following failures.

|---|---|
| Failed in business, '31 | Defeated for elector, '40 |
| Defeated for legislature, '32 | Defeated for Congress, '48 |
| Failed in business again, '33 | Defeated for Senate, '55 |
| Elected to legislature, '34 | Defeated for Vice President, '56 |
| Sweetheart died, '35 | Defeated for Senate, '58 |
| Suffered nervous breakdown, '36 | Elected for President of the United States, '60 |
| Defeated for speaker, '38 | |

This man of failures? Abraham Lincoln.

Failures do not make A FAILURE, but rather CAN MAKE the person. Failures hurt, but they do not stop God. He has a way of taking the tangled failures of persons' lives and weaving a tapestry that not only helps, but becomes a thing of beauty and joy forever.

Manna From The Friendly Skies

According to the Air Transport Association of America, the airlines serving the Minneapolis-St. Paul area contribute more than $3 billion annually to the economy of the Twin Cities. An ATA study found that the airlines fly 17 million passengers and more than 170,000 tons of freight, mail and express into and out of the cities each year.

Area people who have occasion to pass through or visit the airport in Minneapolis can quickly recognize that it is the hub of a good deal of economic activity. Here are some of the other findings of the ATA report:

About 15,000 men and women work for the airlines in Minneapolis-St. Paul with the total annual payroll amounting to approximately $550 million. In addition, an equivalent amount is generated by these airline employees and their families through their expenditures for food, housing, clothing and other goods and services in the area.

The economic contribution of air transportation extends far beyond airline jobs and payrolls. For example, thousands of people throughout the area work in non-airline jobs at the airport and at local travel agencies. There are approximately 335 travel agencies employing more than 2,000 men and women in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

The airlines spend more than $600 million in the Twin Cities area for goods and services, ranging from fuel to advertising.

More than two million visitors, including tourists and businessmen, come to Minneapolis-St. Paul by air each year, and they spend nearly $900 million for lodging, food, entertainment, local transportation and miscellaneous items. These expenditures generate more than 18,000 jobs with an annual payroll of $175 million.

State and local tax payments from airline and airline-related activities total $160 million a year with air visitors generating $470 million, airline employees $55 million, and airlines $35 million.

Minneapolis-St. Paul International airport is economically self sufficient — the result of landing fees, rentals and taxes paid by the airlines and spending by airline passengers at the airport.

Minimum Wage Boost?

Following editorial is from the Sacramento (CA) Union:

Organized labor believes the time is ripe to raise the federal minimum wage law. The minimum wage has been frozen at $3.35 an hour for six years, and with the Democrats in control of the Senate and House, labor union officials are hopeful they can jack the minimum wage up to a whopping $4.85.

Certainly a $1.50 an hour increase would benefit certain members of the labor force. But it would carry a hefty price on two counts: it would force many employers to simply do without young, inexperienced, or marginal employees whose output now has a market value of at least $3.35 an hour; and it would raise the threat of renewed high inflation.

Big labor apparently feels the increased pay for some workers offsets sacrificing jobs for others. But one wonders how the latter feel about that. Boosting the minimum wage would hit hardest on teenagers, especially blacks. The overall unemployment rate currently is 6.7 per cent, but the jobless rate among teenagers is 18 per cent, and among teenage blacks it is nearly 40 per cent.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the new chairman of the Senate Labor Committee, and other key congressional leaders might ask themselves whether an increased minimum wage is worth the price of putting additional restless, footloose teenagers on the streets; not to mention the increased jobless benefits taxpayers would be required to provide.

Congress also should consider the risk of reigniting high inflation through the ripple effect caused by an artificially high minimum wage. Workers who are paid more than the minimum wage could be expected to point to an increase in the floor wage and say "me too."

Certainly it is no easy task for a breadwinner to support a family on the present minimum wage. But it would be far better for the federal government to help the least-skilled workers through job training programs. Admittedly, these programs have brought mixed results in the past, but that's no reason not to keep trying.

A Day In The Life Of Community Journalism

(Following commentary was written by Debra Payne, a writer for the Kalkaska (Michigan) Leader and Kalkasian, and indicates that community journalism is quite a bit the same regardless of where the community is located. We might add that the reporter's situation as noted below goes double for editors.)

"Boy, it must be fun being a reporter."

Yup, it is. Each day is different, and it's a constant education in more ways than one. Here's a typical day in a small community reporter's life:

You see an acquaintance and stop to say hello. You're not thinking of work, but this person is.

"I wish you would be stronger in the way you write. You should write about the way things really are in this town."

How are things really in this town? I ask.

"I can't think of anything specific right now, but sometimes I think you should be tougher."

Okay, I'll try to remember that.

You're manning the office while the other girls go to lunch, and someone comes in to buy an ad. He seems cool, for some reason, and he's usually a friendly guy. Finally he opens up.

"I thought your article last week was too harsh. The press abuses its power sometimes, and some things just don't belong in the newspaper. You should be a little more gentle on the people who live here and work here."

I'll write that down.

You're out having coffee with your husband, and a person who you've seen before but never met approaches your table.

"You should do more articles on the senior citizens in this community. They really deserve more coverage in your paper.

Later, you see a parent of one of the outstanding elementary students.

"You should do more articles on the kids in the community. The kids don't get enough attention."

And yet later:

"Boy, it seems like all your paper is school news and pictures of old people. Don't you ever do any hard news, something we can sink our teeth into?"

I'll try.

A man enters the front office of the newspaper and grabs the latest issue.

"Is this worth a quarter this week? Usually there's nothing in here I read, anyway," he says.

He's a business owner. I want to tell him we only had advertising enough for ten pages this week — he could have helped. I also want to tell him I worked 50 hours that week so he could ask me if he should spend twenty-five cents on the paper. I feel like telling him if he can't find anything to read I'll refund him his quarter out of my paycheck like Mike Royko does. (He's my idol. He doesn't care what anybody thinks of him.)

I'm having a bad day.

I manage a smile.

The phone rings and the secretary says it's for me. I know when I hear the pinched voice on the other end it's going to be a complaint.

"I want to have my name left out of the court news," the voice on the other end of the line says.

What were you accused of? I ask, and he tells me he pleaded guilty to having an open beer in his car. I tell him if he pleaded guilty and was sentenced his name will be on District Court news and we make no exceptions.

"That ain't fair," he says.

I apologize, but say it's the policy of the newspaper.

"What about freedom of the press?" he asks, and slams down the phone.

I'm too dumbfounded to get mad.

A typical small town news reporter's day usually means learning about something never taught in college. It means having people give you dirty looks because of something printed in the newspaper that "ruined" them, or it means having complete strangers come up to you and tell you they like you. (I prefer the latter.)

Because a reporter in a small town is usually the only one for the newspaper, he or she is more visible than writers for a larger paper.

And people never forget who you are.

I'm out that night with friends, ready for a fun evening. It's great, until one of them (who works for a governmental agency) begins talking about internal strifes in her job. I cringe when she looks at me. I know what's coming.

"This is off the record," she says.

AARGH!

Borrowed Nonsense

"You're very pretty," the office worker said to the new employee. "I'll bet a lot of men ask you for dates."

"Yes, they do," the girl smiled sweetly. "But I don't go out with anyone I find unattractive. I just tell them I'm married."

"That seems reasonable," the office worker persisted. "By the way, are you busy Saturday night."

"Yes I am," she answered. "I'm getting married."

Tidbits From Thief River Falls THE TIMES

Excerpts from the Thursday, February 11, 1937, Times, compiled by Sharon LaCoursiere.

The new city directory was being delivered to subscribers and a Times article gave us a little preview of what we would find therein. The new volume contained 199 pages, listing a total of 3,272 names, and...

"This city's recovery from depression is reflected in different ways by the new directory. The book grew thirty pages over its 1934 predecessor. Without any change in the minimum listing age of eighteen, it increased by 584 names and contains more names than any edition of the past. Showing the considerable diversity of the community, the classified department of the directory catalogues 154 varieties of commercial, industrial and professional enterprises.

"Among other things, the city directory distinguishes between married and single persons, home-owners and renters, heads of families and roomers, and employers and employees. Special features are the one-line obituaries for adults deceased since last edition and the new places of residence of movers-out-of-the city during that period.

"Alphas and omega on the new Thief River Falls roster are Gunder Aakhus and Mrs. Della B. Zeh. The Smiths, leaders in most cities, marshal only five here, and the Browns have ten representatives. The largest family in Thief River Falls is the Johnsons, with two pages in the directory. They are followed by the Larsons with one and one-half pages, and the Andersons, Carlsons, Ericksons, Nelsons, Olson and Petersons, with approximately one page each."

Poling around in the 1985 city directory, which is the newest I could find, I noticed our 1980 census population was a grand total of 9,106 people. Beginning and ending names in this directory are Kelly Aakre and Pearl Zutz.

There are now 11 Smiths listed, as well as two Smidts and a Smillie, which isn't much like Smith, but nice to include. The Browns could be said to have doubled by including one little Browning to total 20. The Johnsons of 1985 take up seven pages, with one Johnsen and some Johnstons thrown in. Larsons have about stayed the same, filling two whole pages now; but the Andersons have increased to more than four pages; while the Carlsons decreased barely filling one page; Ericksons take up two; Nelson, three; Olsons and Olsens, four; and the Petersons, including a Petersen and a Petterson, can be said to fill three pages, barely.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

When snow comes, a prairie rambler takes out the cross-country skis.

In olden days, before the advent of snowmobiles, it was difficult to ski through heavy snow. But now skiers in the "River City" area can go wherever snowmobile tracks lead.

What I like best is the chance to get out into the woods and fields. At first glance, it seems the landscape is frozen. It seems immutable, unchanging in a winter shroud. But that is not so.

Animals are moving about in great numbers in winter. While on skis we come upon the delicate paw-prints of squirrel, or the triangular prints made by leaping hare. This year for the first time we see the deep cloven prints of deer. Even the tail-split track of mouse is pleasant to see in snow.

Some of Minnesota is muted under snow. Holed up, the woodchuck lies entranced below, we are not sure just where.

One year beaver made their winter home nearby. As we skied by their house, we would wonder at the sight of their air vent in the ice of the river. We knew then that unseen by us, beaver were waiting out the winter on a ledge at water line, waking up to nibble on young trees they had earlier stolen from our yard.

If you like the out-of-doors, you will enjoy skiing.

Or, if you want exercise, skiing is fine. Experts say that ideal cross-country terrain is one-third up, one-third down, and one-third flat. Here on the prairie it is the river banks that allow us to have that kind of experience.

Almost any winter weather is ideal for skiing. You can use clothes already in your closet. A body generates so much heat with the exertion of skiing that layered light winter clothing is what you need. When it is below zero, just add a face mask and more layers.

The wind blows a lot here, but the river banks allow a prairie rambler to ski even when the wind is up. Depending on which way the wind blows, the skier finds a curve of the river where the bank will provide shelter from blasts of wind.

It is the wind that creates some of the most stunning snowscapes. Today a north wind is dropping showers of minute snow particles over the bank of the river. Snow caves, snow ledges, snow shelves, snow pyramids, snow hills and snow valleys create a fantasy world along the bank. We ski along the edge of the river, marveling at the formations. By tomorrow they will be altered.

The wind has whipped the snow on the field into waves and patterns. Like a mighty ocean frozen into ripples, there is no repetition of design.

Snow itself is interesting. Today it is cold, so the snow squeaks beneath the skis. I read that the sound is caused by your foot actually crushing snow crystals. The crystals squeak too as skis grind and smash them together. Snow is silent when you tromp on it if the temperature is warm. Then the snow crystals have water around them so that they slide and bend instead of breaking.

Are you interested in getting out in the snow?

The medical community of "River City" is sponsoring instruction in cross-country skiing later this month. If you have ever thought about trying it, this might be the time.

OUR AGENCY WOULD HAVE LOVED TO INSURE "HONEST ABE"!

The story goes that when Abraham Lincoln was a lawyer in Illinois he made a habit of letting the fire in his wood-burning stove die on Saturday night while he slept. Come Sunday, he would check the stove for cracks or loosened joints that might allow embers to fall through onto the floor. He would also reach up into the stovepipe and measure how much soot and black creosote had built up during the week. If this flammable residue was too thick, he would hire a chimney sweep to clean the entire system.

A friend who was staying with Mr. Lincoln woke up one wintery Sunday to discover his host carefully examining a cold stove that should have been heating the very cold house. "How can you tolerate this cold?" asked the visitor. Mr. Lincoln glanced up from the stove. "I'll gladly suffer the cold once a week for the rest of my life if it will only prevent me from enjoying one house fire."

In his day, Lincoln knew that faulty or dirty stoves and fireplaces were a common cause of house fires. This is still true today, and since the nation's energy consciousness was aroused a decade ago, a growing number of homes burn down each year in stove-related fires.

Our agency is confident that our insured's are every bit as safety conscious as "Honest Abe" was in his day.

As a precautionary measure, just to be certain that your woodburning unit is installed properly — we invite you to stop in and pick up your free copy of a booklet entitled "Fire Safety In Wood Heating Systems".

Non-Smokers Exposed To Health Hazards By Second-Hand Smoke

Several health agencies are calling the surgeon general's latest report on cigarette smoking "the most comprehensive collection of scientific evidence that supports the need to protect non-smokers from the health hazard of seconhand smoke."

On Tuesday, C. Everett Koop, M.D., U.S. surgeon general, released the 1986 report on cigarette smoking in Washington, D.C. This year's report presented the scientific evidence on the harmful effects on non-smokers of breathing smoke exhaled by a smoker or breathing the smoke coming from the tip of a burning cigarette.

"The implications of this report are very clear: Smokers may choose to ignore the warning labels on cigarette packages, but non-smokers can no longer ignore those warnings. Cigarette smoke affects all of us," according to A. Stuart Hanson, M.D., president of the Smoke-Free 2000 Coalition. The coalition is made up of the American Lung association of Minnesota, the Minnesota division of the American Cancer society, the Minnesota affiliate of the American Heart association, the Minnesota Medical association, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota, Med Centers health plan and Park Nicollet Medical foundation, and the Hennepin County Medical Society foundation and auxiliary.

"For 80 per cent of the American population that does not smoke, or people who think they do not smoke, this report is clearly a cause for alarm," Dr. Hanson said.

He explained that there is a clear need now to protect the health of non-smokers, and the most logical way to do this is by reducing smoking in indoor environments.

"We need to restrict smoking in our schools, places of work, government offices, restaurants, shopping malls, offices and other public places, because it is now abundantly clear that smokers not only jeopardize their own health, but they also create a health hazard for non-smokers who breathe second-hand smoke," Dr. Hanson stated.

"When Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, M.D., released his report on second-hand or passive smoking today, he in fact presented the most credible testimony in favor of the Minnesota clean indoor air act."

"Smokers who choose to jeopardize their own health by smoking should not be allowed to jeopardize the health of others as well," Dr. Hanson said. "The issue of smokers exercising their personal choice to smoke in public places is no longer relevant."

Cigarette smoking claims an estimated 350,000 lives each year.

The surgeon general's 1986 report made the following points:

(1) Children of parents who smoke have a much higher rate of colds and other respiratory infections compared to children whose parents do not smoke.

(2) The non-smoking wife of a smoker runs a higher risk of lung cancer than the non-smoking wife of a non-smoker. The report aticipated that similar evidence could soon be available for the incidence of heart disease, emphysema and other obstructive lung diseases among non-smoking spouses of smokers.

(3) Smokers, as well as non-smokers exposed to smoke, breathe the same 4,000 constitutents of cigarette smoke, including tars, napthalene, pyrene, benzopyrene, carbon monoxide, methane, ammonia, acetylene and hydrogen cyanide.

(4) Sidestream smoke, which comes from the burning tip of a cigarette, contains 2.5 times the carbon monoxide found in smoke exhaled by a smoker.

(5) Tar, one of the most carcinogenic substances, is 70 per cent more concentrated in sidestream smoke than in mainstream smoke.

Information on smoking, second-hand smoke and ways to quit are available by calling local offices of the American Lung association, American Cancer society, American Heart association or the Smoke-Free 2000 Coalition at 612-378-0902.

Insurance Info Provided Through New "Hotline"

An industry consortium has established an expanded telephone reponse program for consumers seeking insurance information in Minnesota. Participating in the consortium are the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Minnesota, Professional Insurance Agents of Minnesota, Minnesota State Association of Life Underwriters and the Minnesota Insurance Information center.

Using the current consumer response program of the Minnesota Insurance Information center as the base for expansion, a state-wide toll-free number has been added. That number, 1-800-642-6121, is the "Insurance Hotline". Twin City area consumers can receive assistance by calling 926-0699. The phones are answered daily, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

To assist existing Minnesota Insurance Information center staff and volunteers, additional resource people from each of the three agent associations are being recruited to help provide information to callers.

Soybean Growers Say Tropical Oil Is High In Fats

Soybean farmers have asked the Food and Drug administration (FDA) to require food manufacturers to clearly label the use of tropical fats in food products. A petition submitted by the American Soybean association would require food manuturers to use the statement: "Contains palm (or palm kernel or coconut) oil, a saturated fat" on any food product containing tropical fats.

"The food industry is taking advantage of the healthful image of low-saturated fat vegetable oils like soybean oil when they advertise products as '100 per cent vegetable shortening' or '100 per cent vegetable oil,' and then use highly-saturated tropical fats in their products," Barb Overlie, a southern Minnesota soybean farmer, explained. Overlie chairs the Volunteer Soya Professionals, a group of 20 Minnesota farm women trained to educate the public about soybean products.

Overlie said that, over the years, consumers have been taught that products containing vegetable oils are low in saturated fats and thus acceptable in the diet. "And that's true when the vegetable oil is a product like soybean oil, which is very low in saturated fat and has no cholesterol," Overlie explained. "But it's a different story when the vegetable oil is a highly-saturated tropical fat like palm, coconut or palm kernel oil. These tropical fats are actually more highly saturated than animal fats such as lard or beef fat, which consumers have been told are bad for them!"

Dietary guidelines of the American Heart association and other health organizations recommend that consumers stay away from highly-saturated fats that are associated with a greater risk of heart attack.

"Soybean oil is in plentiful supply, is grown by Minnesota farmers, meets dietary guidelines of the American Heart association and is economically priced for consumers," Overlie said.

Most Back Pain Can Be Avoided With Precaution

Back pain strikes one in five adults each year and runs up a medical bill that tops $81 billion annually. Back pain is also the leading cause of disability for American workers with time lost from work, averaging nearly two days a year, according to the Minnesota Medical association.

Although these are dismal statistics, you can beat back pain by employing several common sense hints when performing daily tasks.

Sitting: Of all daily activities, sitting puts the most stress on the spine. It is important therefore, to find a chair that will properly support your lower back. Soft "easy" chairs are not so easy on your back because they do not have enough firm support. Ideally, the chair should have a straight back with a slight curve that will support your lower back. A firm seat cushion is useful, as are armrests, especially if you use them when getting up out of the chair. Avoid sitting on high stools and backless benches.

Standing: Remember your mother telling you to "stand up straight?" She was right. Good posture, with head up, shoulders back and buttocks tucked in, is a key to good back care. If you have to stand for long periods of time, make sure to shift position and try to prop a foot up on something that stands about six inches off the ground (such as a railing or curbing).

Sleeping: One third of our lives is spent in bed and while lying down is less stressful for the back, certain factors are important to reduce the risk of back pain.

A very firm mattress is extremely important. A soft, sagging mattress will tend to hold you in a "trench," not allowing much movement during the night. This can lead to a stiff or sore back in the morning. This is one of the major reasons waterbeds are not recommended for persons with sensitive backs.

Sleeping positions are also important. The worst position is lying on your stomach. This position areches the lower back causing undue strain. The best way to sleep is on your side with your knees tucked up in a semi-fetal position. A pillow may be placed under your knees to ease stress on your spine if you sleep on your back.

Bending and Lifting: These two activities are the root cause of most back pain. A simple rule to remember is to bend from the knees, not from the hips, then lift the object close to your body.

When carrying groceries, do not carry one heavy bag in front of you. Instead, distribute the load in two shopping bags and carry one in each arm.

Back pain has other causes too. A sagging stomach is a common back pain culprit because extra weight puts stress on the lower back. Statistics show three fourths of all people suffering from back pain are also overweight. Weight control and exercises to strengthen back and abdominal muscles are two ways to maintain a healthy back. But while exercise is vital to overall health, an overzealous workout without a proper warm-up is a sure bet to cause a sore back.

Back pain can also be caused by ailments to other parts of the body such as bowel, kidney and gynecologic problems. Any persistent back pain should be evaluated by your physician so the source of the discomfort can be pinpointed and treatment begun.

Rest, heat or ice treatments, good back support and medication all play a part in relieving back pain.

Remember, good back care through proper sitting, standing, sleeping and lifting all protect your back from discomfort and pain, the medical association suggests.

SUCCESSFUL UNITED WAY DRIVE is indicated by Keith Steva, chairman of the Thief River Falls United Way board of directors, as he completes filling in the progress thermometer for the 1986-87 campaign. At right are Bob Wold, vice chairman and Doris Vevea, treasurer. The campaign has exceeded it $75,000 goal in contributions and pledges and the board will begin the allocation of funds to participating agencies next week. This is the second successive year in which the United Way has exceeded its goal. Last year the goal was $68,000 and more than $69,000 was received. "Public support such as we have received in the past two years is a great help to the board in attempting to meet the needs of many worthy agencies," Steva said.

Regional Spelling Bee Here March 7

Champion spellers from 47 schools throughout Northwestern Minnesota will compete in two separate contests Saturday, March 7, at Northland community college in Thief River Falls. Two winners will be selected to advance to the state spelling bee in April.

According to Kristen Woolcock of the Northwest Minnesota Educational Cooperative Service unit (NWECSU), regional spelling bee coordinator, all schools have completed their local competitions for grades five through eight.

"Success of the program is measured by the 330,000 students statewide who participated in the program last year," Mrs. Woolcock said. "Focus of the spelling bee is to motivate students to improve spelling and vocabulary skills and reward students for academic achievement."

Fifty-five students from the 47 schools will be competing March 7 at Northland with contests scheduled for 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Entered in the 10 a.m. contest are two students each from Bagley and Thief River Falls public schools and one each from Alvarado, Argyle, Badger, Clearbrook, Crookston Erskine, Goodridge, Gonvick, Greenbush, Grygla, Karlstad, Lancaster, Mahnomen, Middle River, Oklee, Oslo, Plummer, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Stephen, Strandquist, St. Bernard's Catholic school of Thief River Falls and Warren.

Competing at 1:30 p.m. will be four students from Bemidji, two each from East Grand Forks, Fosston and Park Rapids and one each from Ada, Baudette, Blackduck, Borup, Clim-

DEED Regional Meeting Friday At Best Western

Thief River Falls will host one of seven regional meetings of the Minnesta department of energy and economic development (DEED) Friday at 2:30 p.m. at the Best Western inn.

Strengthened partnerships between the state and Minnesta's rural communities — as a basis for a fresh approach to trade and economic development — will be the subject of the meeting. Community leaders from local government, business and regional development agencies will join state officials and area legislators for the meeting.

Deputy commissioner Bob Benner of DEED will be facilitator for the meeting and other DEED staff will be available following the meeting to discuss specific community concerns and project proposals.

"The meetings are designed to give community leaders the opportunity to discuss rural economic needs with DEED staff and are legislators and to propose ways in which state economic development programs can best meet these needs," Commissioner David Speer of DEED said.

"It is a longstanding and unique Minnesota tradition to form partnerships for the benefit of all," states Gov. Rudy Perpich. "The real goal is to help people and the strategy to achieve the goal is to deal with communities, where people work and live."

Times Insert Honors Seniors In Community

Salute to Seniors, a special section inserted in this issue of the Times, includes a variety of feature stories, recipies, tips for seniors and a special recognition of the completion of the Heritage community center. This insert is part of a plan to attract attention to special events, holidays and activities in The Times region. These special inserts will continue to appear regularly. The title name, Salute to Seniors, was chosen to honor the people in our community who have contributed so much to the community.

Small Business Regional Meeting Here On Friday

One of 19 regional meetings for discussion of small business issues to be addressed at a statewide conference in Minneapolis March 11-12 will be conducted Friday from 10 a.m. to noon at Lon's restaurant in Thief River Falls.

Coordinated by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and the Small Business development center, the meeting will draft resolutions for consideration at the state conference and elect eight delegates to attend.

Ev Ault, chairman of the legislative comittee of the chamber of commerce, said its "important that business people and other interested parties from this area take the time to attend the regional meeting to insure that all our views are represented in Minneapolis in March." For the purpose of the Friday meeting, a small business is defined as one having less than 250 employees.

The statewide conference is intended to follow up on the work done at the national White House conference on a small business in Washington, DC, last August and create an agenda for Minnesota small business issues for the next three to five years.

In addition to delegates elected at the regional meetings, those attending the conference will be delegates appointed by Gov. Perpich, state legislators community chambers of commerce and trade and professional associations.

Erosion Index To Change CRP

Soil conservation offices were notified late Wednesday that the erosion index method will go into effect immediately for any land bid into the conservation reserve program (CRP) for crop year 1988. This will drastically reduce the number of acres eligible for the CRP in northwestern Minnesota, according to Al Gustafson of the Pennington county soil and water conservation district.

The 3T method (which has been used for the previous three sign-up periods) will still be used for land offered for crop year 1987.

During the current sign-up period (February 9-27) the landowner has the option of bidding land into CRP either for crop year 1987 or 1988.

"The bottom line is that many acres of land will be eligible for CRP if you bid for 1987, but very few acres will be eligible for 1988," Gustafson said.

Anyone who has submitted a bid for 1988 during the first three days of sign-up must contact the ASCS or soil conservation office.

Robert Parnows Are Farmer-Homemaker

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Recognition will be given tonight at the Red River Valley winter shows in Crookston to farm couples selected in their counties as Valley Farmers and Homemaker award recipients. Receiving the award for Pennington county will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Parnow of rural Goodridge.

Robert was born on the farm homesteaded by his father, Otto Parnow, in 1907 and still a part of the Parnow farm operation. He purchased the half-section farm in 1946 after returning from 15 months in the navy and added additional quarter-sections in 1955 and 1966.

About 577 of the 640 acres of land is considered cropland. The Parnows have placed 157 acres in the conservation reserve program and the balance is used for production of small grain — including certified seed — and grass seed. Until two years ago the Parnows produced sheep on the farm, and hogs were a part of the operation until 1972. Registered sheep and hogs in addition to commercial flocks and herds were always a part of the farming business.

All four of the Parnow children were active in the 4-H club program, carrying livestock projects in sheep and hogs. The three eldest were all graduates of the 4-H program and the youngest participated a number of years until the local Star club was dissolved. Mrs. Parnow worked in the 4-H club program for 20 years, was an adult leader for 18 years and served as both secretary and president of the Pennington county 4-H leaders council.

The Parnow's oldest son, Robert, is married to Gayle McDonald of Rush City and is vice president and general manager of Dixie Portland Flour Mills, Inc., of Chicago, IL. They live at Oak Park, IL, and have a daughter, Ann.

Daughter Marie is married to John Schell and they live at Clayton, CA, with their three sons.

Son Fred is married to Beth Dagoberg of Alvarado and is a soils agronomist with Sigco company at Crookston. They have three sons.

Youngest son Ross is employed with a tire repair company in California.

Local Projects Included In Governor's Budget

Thief River Falls area officials were informed Friday noon that funding for building projects at both the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute (AVTI) and Northland Community college (NCC) are included in the $654.4 million capital budget announced by Gov. Rudy Perpich.

Joe Graba, state director of technical education, carried the message to Thief River Falls as part of the governor's publicity blitz across the state. Graba spoke at a news conference conducted at the AVTI and brief comments were also given by Dr. Orley Gunderson, director of the AVTI, and Dr. Allen Nichols, president of Northland community college.

While the announcement was considered good news by both higher education facilities here, it was pointed out at the news conference that legislative funding of the budget request is necessary for the projects to take place. Because both of the local projects are high on the priority list, however, there is greater than normal optimism that both will receive funding even if a lesser amount than the governor requested is approved.

Included in the governor's budget for capital expenditures involving higher education is $43,680,200 for AVTIs, $44,157,200 for community colleges, $75,153,800 for state universities, $98,882,500 for the University of Minnesota and $10,000,000 for the repair and replacement loan fund.

Thief River Falls AVTI's request for $1,745,331 is placed seventh on the priority list of about 31 projects. Since the first priority of $740,000 is for system-wide vocational planning and the fifth priority is for only $34,946 at Willmar, the local project could be considered fifth amoung major campus facility proposals.

The funds would allow construction of a new classroom and office building at the regional airport. This building would provide the quality technical education space necessary to accommodate the joint programming agreement with the University of North Dakota to create an aviation mechanics training center to serve the needs of the airlines for mechanical training.

Also included is funding for classrooms, a resource center, and a large community lecture room on the main campus along highway 1 east. The main campus construction would be coordinated with the Northland community college project, Director Orley Gunderson told the group at the news conference.

A new student center, administrative offices, child care facilities, and expansion of current fine arts, physical education and library facilities at Northland community college are among the governor's recommendations. Total project cost is estimated at $3,710,000.

If approved by the legislature, work on the project would begin with the student center, offices and general storage, child care facilities and additional classroom space. Expansion and-or remodeling of existing fine arts, physical education and library facilities would also take place. Revisions of roads and parking facilities would create one common entrance for the college and adjacent AVTI.

Chancellor Gerald W. Christianson of the Minnesota community college board said he was pleased with the governor's recommendations. "Northland currently has the most severe space needs of the smaller colleges in the Minnesota community college system," he said. "There are currently major shortages in general instructional space, physical education, library and campus center. Child care services are offered off-campus and a shortage of classroom space forces staff to schedule general classes in science and occupational program labs."

Most recent construction projects at Northland took place in 1973 and 1979.

Regarding the AVTI improvement project, director Gunderson noted that the $1,745,331 in state funding is part of a total project cost of $2,053,330. An additional $264,350 in repair and replacement would bring the total cost to $2,317,680 of which $2,009,681 would be paid by the state. The remaining $307,999 would be required to be provided by the local school district through bonding.

Northland community college construction would be 100 per cent state funding. Northland's projects rank third on the priority list for community college appropriations.

In announcing his budget recommendations, Gov. Perpich said the

Patricia Sampson Wed To Phillip Bates In St. Cloud

Patricia Karen Sampson and Phillip Thomas Bates were united in marriage at Munsinger Gardens in St. Cloud, September 6. Rev. Darius Larsen officiated at the 6 p.m. double ring ceremony before approximately 100 guests.

Parents of the couple are John and Beverly Sampson of Thief River Falls and Lawrence and Janet Bates of Owatonna.

The wedding took place outdoors beside the Mississippi river, with an abundance of natural flowers and wild ducks completing the pastoral setting.

The traditional "Wedding March" was played as processional, with a special rendition of "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory tea-length gown with lace jacket over a satin, spaghetti-strap bodice. The hip-length jacket featured a V-shaped, buttoned back with satin bow at the hip complimenting the full, satin-lined lace skirt.

She wore an ivory bridal hat with pearls and lace decorating the flip brim, and a fingertip length veil flowing from the back. The hat was fashioned and designed by friend of the bride, Julie Lendobeja. Her bouquet was one dozen red roses with babies' breath and ivory ribbon streamers. Personal attendant was Lori Lorenz.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Susan Sorum, Fargo, ND. Bridesmaids were friends of the bride, Jeri Lundin, Brooklyn Center, Deb Williams, Grand Forks, ND, and Mary Kennedy, Fargo, ND. They wore matching gowns similar to that of the bride in Romance blue with matching blue pumps, and carried wicker baskets filled with wild flowers.

Tricia Sorum, niece of the bride, was the flower girl, carrying a small basket of wild flowers. Erin Christey and Mary Bates, nieces of the groom; and Angela Sorum, niece of the bride, carried baskets of birdseed to be thrown following the ceremony. The girls wore pastel gowns.

Timothy Grubish, Salinas, CA, was his friend's best man. Groomsmen were Allan and Bruce Bates, brothers of the groom from Minneapolis, and John Cawley, Appleton, WI, friend of the groom. Ushering the guests were David and Bill Sampson, brothers of the bride.

Gentlemen of the wedding party wore charcoal gray tuxedos with white shirts and gray bow ties. Their boutonnieres were white carnations with babies' breath.

The groom was attired in charcoal gray tails with gray tie and cummerbund, and wore a red carnation boutonniere.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length gown of soft pink, layered with lace. The groom's mother wore an ivory silk suit. Both mothers were presented with corsages of pink carnations and ivory roses.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was held for the guests at the Sunwood Inn in St. Cloud, presented by the parents of the bride. Host couple were Russell and Fern Williams.

Highlighting the serving table was the three layered chocolate wedding cake, with chocolate icing and mint leaves. A silver Christogram topped the cake.

Penny Perrault and Jamie Mylon served punch, and Angela Sorum, niece of the bride, arranged the gifts.

Following a wedding trip to Pointe Resort Club in Minoqua, WI, and the Wisconsin Dells, the couple is at home at 420 8th Street South, apt. 14, Fargo, ND. The bride is a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and NDSU, and is employed at Sampson & Associates food brokers in Fargo. ## Wedding Plans Include Doing Price Shopping

According to the Minnesota attorney general's office, putting together a wedding may well be one of the most complicated consumer enterprises conceivable. Budgets have to be set, products bought, services contracted for, equipment rented and, after it's all over, bills paid.

In making wedding arrangements, of course, the first thing you have to do is decide on the number of guests to be invited and the budget. Once those are known, your choices in several areas should be considerably narrowed and you can focus your planning. So, if a Valentine's Day engagement has set this process in motion (or even if you are in the midst of making arrangements) you may wish to consider the following:

Arranging the reception — Whether it's a church basement, a Legion hall, a country club or a restaurant, book it immediately. Many facilities are booked six months to a year or more in advance. Remember that in many cases you may be limited by a facility's menu, liquor and music options. Before making a deposit, find out what the rental fee includes, the kind of restrictions that may apply, and check out the cancellation policy. Get a written agreement detailing your rights and responsibilies as well as the obligations of the facility and any restrictions it may impose. Read it before you sign.

Hiring caterers — Before hiring a caterer make sure you understand exactly what you'll be getting for your money. Once you decide on the type of menu you want, contact several caterers for their per-plate prices. Find out what services and merchandise are included in the fee, such as food servers, dishes, napkins, tablecloths, etc. Get your order written out in contract form with all pertinent charges and services included.

Choosing a photographer — Get recommendations from friends and look through various photographers' portfolios. Have the photographer explain the different packages, prices and any additional charges for which you may be billed. Get written information about cancellation notices and payment plans. Remember, some studios require you to pay for the pictures immediately upon delivery.

Choosing a florist — When deciding on a florist, make appointments with various florists' wedding consultants to discuss the possibilities that are within your budget. Again, request a written statement describing the flowers, deposits, payment policies and cancellation penalties or privileges.

Don't hesitate to ask questions along the way, be sure you understand the answers and get as much information in writing as possible.

For more information about consumer laws, or to file a related complaint, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Office — in St. Paul: 117 University Avenue, Room 124, St. Paul, 55155, (612) 296-3353; in Duluth: 706 Government Services Center, 320 West 2nd Street, Duluth 55802, (218) 723-4891.

Women's Groups Endorse Farmer Pesticide Course

Safety and economic advantages are potential benefits for Minnesota farmers who attend a pesticide application training meeting and become certified to use restricted use pesticides, say representatives of two agricultural women's organizations.

"Many people only think of the safety benefits of certification, without realizing that there are important economic benefits as well," notes Gretchen Thoen of Waltham, president of the Minnesota chapter of Women Involved in Farm Economics (WIFE). WIFE and Minnesota Women for Agriculture are leading a drive to increase the number of farmer certifications in the state.

For example, says Thoen, certification courses conducted by the state extension service cover information on mixing, sprayer calibration and proper application methods.

"Knowing these techniques can eliminate waste and help farmers reduce their input costs for farm chemicals," she says. "Also, several widely used herbicides, insecticides and other chemicals have been classified for restricted use in the last several years. By becoming certified to apply those chemicals, farmers preserve their right to use the pesticides most appropriate for their needs. This helps them improve yields by controlling weeds, insects and diseases more effectively."

However, even if there were no economic benefits from certification, Thoen says, the safety advantages would more than justify farmers going through the certification procedure.

"Certification not only emphasizes proper safety procedures, but the course provides an important update on pesticide laws and regulations," Thoen points out.

"Although the number varies from state to state, approximately 50 to 60 per cent of farmers throughout the Midwest are certified currently to apply restricted use products," says Tina Plymale of Rochester, chemicals chairperson for Minnesota Women for Agriculture. "Unfortunately, some farmers have chosen not to become certified because they feel the course is too difficult or because they resent what they feel is more regulation.

"But any farmer who is experienced in applying his own crop chemicals should easily understand the course material — over 90 per cent of farmers who take the certification test pass it on their first try," Plymale points out. "Also, becoming certified shows a professional attitude toward responsible use of farm chemicals."

The week of March 16-21 has been designated as private applicator certification week in Minnesota by the two groups. During that week the extension service will conduct extra certification classes at various locations throughout the [illegible] Farmers are encouraged to become certified, or to be recertified if their current license is expiring. Dates and locations of private applicator training sessions can be obtained by contacting local extension offices.

"Extension offices have been providing training all winter," Plymale says. "But we think one final push before spring planting can really draw attention to the need for certification. We encourage all farmers who aren't already certified to take the training."

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Students at Lincoln high school are enjoying the spring-like weather, especially those who have to walk to the center school. Practice continues for those people in the musical; they practice almost every night and some Saturday afternoons.

There is no school today at Lincoln due to President's Day holiday. State tournaments are fast approaching and the section tournament for hockey starts at the end of February. March will be state tournament month. The girls' and boys' basketball tournaments will be held along with the boys' swimming and hockey.

The Knowledge Bowl has started its season. The team took fifth in a nine-team meet in Grygla a couple of weeks ago and last Wednesday they hosted Warroad and Badger, two of the toughest area teams. The score from this meet was Warroad, 40; TRF, 48; and Badger, 57. This was only the score for the number one teams. A couple of weeks ago the Knowledge Bowl members scrimmaged members of the Lincoln faculty. Teachers participating included Mr. Dyrud, Mr. Kotz, Mr. Cornell and Mr. Fogarty. No score was reported.

Some students at Lincoln go to class with the feeling that what they are learning is not helping them at all. Well, students in Mr. Cornell's government class are learning about taes. Not only are they reading about taxes, but they are actually filling out real tax forms. Some of the students brought their tax forms to school to get help.

The Spaghetti Musicale put on by the Band Boosters went over well. Both the Lincoln and Franklin jazz bands performed. The profits from the dinner were close to a thousand dollars.

Scedule of Events

February 17 — Hockey vs. Warroad (home); 9th grade boys' basketball (home);

February 19 — Hockey Sub-Section; 9th grade boys' basketball tournaments at Grand Forks;

She has also worked for many years as a volunteer with the Heart fund and Cancer society, receiving a service pin from the latter.

The Parnows have hosted six 4-H club members from other counties in Minnesota through the state exchange program and also hosted a young Russian farmer in a foreign student exchange. They enjoy travel themselves and have been to both East and West coasts, the most recent being a trip to California about three weeks ago.

When Adeline can find a few free moments she does sewing and quilting for the church, crochets and knits and during the summer has both flower and vegetable gardens. Robert spends much of his spare time reading to become as informed as possible in the areas where he serves on boards or in improvement of his own farming operation.

GOODRIDGE SNO-FEST court of honor was on stage Friday afternoon when the annual coronation program was conducted. Funds raised by ticket sales for this year's sno-fest will be matched by Lutheran Brotherhood and donated to the Kyle Arveson, a student at the Goodridge school who is recovering from a liver transplant. ## Local Projects To Be Included In Governor's Budget budget "reinforces three goals: to make Minnesota a model state, the brainpower state and a world renowned research center.

"To accomplish these goals," he said, "we must build the necessary facilities to place Minnesota on the cutting edge of technological development, and position us to capture the jobs of the future."

He recommended an increase in the cigarette tax from 23 to 38 cents per pack with five cents targeted for higher education projects, one cent to finance Olympic training facilities and eight cents for an endowed fund for a new Minnesota health research institute.

Gov. Perpich said his budget would be financed by general obligation bonds, revenue bonds, general fund dollars and tax revenues.

In his closing remarks at the news conference Friday noon, Graba encouraged the people present to assist in building enthusiasm for the projects within the community as well as with legislators representing the area. He said that state bonding bills must pass both houses of the legislature with 60 per cent approval, making them more difficult to pass than other legislation. As a result, legislators must be aware of widespread community support as an incentive to work hard for passage.

Thief River Falls public library announces it will have a special program presented by Betty Westberg on the Hjemkomst ship on Thursday, February 19 at 2 p.m. in the library meeting room. This program is presented free of charge and the public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The Hjemkomst is the ship that was built by the late Bob Asp which sailed to Norway from Duluth. Since Bob Asp was Mrs. Westberg's brother-in-law, she and her husband Roy have been involved with the Hjemkomst in many ways. They assisted in the launching and sailing of the Hjemkomst on Lake Superior at Duluth. Later they went on to Bergen, Norway, where they watched an impressive ceremony when the Hjemkomst arrived on July 19, 1982.

The late Bob Asp started building the ship in 1972. He named it "Hjemkomst" as this means "coming home" in Norwegian. The Hjemkomst was christened July 27, 1980 at Duluth. Bob Asp died from leukemia December 27, 1980, before his ship sailed to Norway. His family decided to carry on his dream. Several of his children were members of the crew when the Hjemkomst sailed on May 6, 1982. The Hjemkomst Viking ship is now home at the recently built Heritage-Hjemkomst Interpretive center at Moorhead, Minnesota.

Mrs. Westberg, who is from Warren, has given many presentations on the Hjemkomst and as a family member has intimate knowledge of her subject. The library invites one and all to attend this delightful presentation. For more information, please contact the Thief River Falls library.

World Series Of Sno-Cross Races In TRF This Weekend

Fourth annual World Series of Sno-cross race festival is scheduled to run this coming weekend in Thief River Falls. As part of this event, seventeen classes of professional, amateur and masters racing are scheduled along with Kitty Cat races, an antique snowmobile display and factory demonstration rides.

Admission to the world series event is $5 for spectators. Racers meeting Motorsports Racing Plus (MRP is the sanctioned racing organization) requirements can sign up to race Saturday morning at the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce between 7 and 9:30 a.m. Races will begin at 10:30 a.m. each morning.

Tom Wang, co-chairman for the event, said he expects between 3,000 to 4,000 spectators. He said he doesn't expect the number of spectators to decrease because there won't be an oval track race this year. He said that in the past few years the number of spectators have remained about the same under different conditions and the number of events don't seem to make much of a difference.

Several concession stands will also be set up at the track location on the Red Lake river off Tindolph point. Charitable groups as well as booths by private enterprise groups will be set up around the track.

According to Wang, this World Series snowmobile event will be the only snow-cross event scheduled for this weekend so he expects many top riders. Wang said he anticipates "good crowds and good racing."

Wheat Council Records Review Comes Up Clean

"I am very pleased to report that an internal and independent review of the council's accounting and financial records revealed no misuse," states John Oberg, Minnesota Wheat Council chairman from Ulen. "We felt compelled to conduct this review to assure Minnesota wheat farmers that charges of financial wrong-doing at the council were inaccurate," he said.

The review was conducted in response to a letter from the legislative auditor of the State of Minnesota to Oberg in which it was alluded that possible improper and illegal activities may have occurred. As a result, the wheat council retained the services of Marvin B. Hanson, attorney at law, Hallock, Conrad M. Dahl, certified public accountant, also from Hallock, to provide an independent review of the council's financial records and procedures.

In addition, council members and the new executive director, Fred Hejduk, conducted their own review of council policies and procedures in order to identify areas where modification may be useful.

In his report to the council, Hanson stated that "contrary to the legislative auditor, I saw no pattern of improper dealings. I did not see sloppy financial management and I did not see material weakness in the council's accounting. The statements of the legislative auditor distorted the matters reviewed...and brought in matters not relevant to this year's audit.

"On whole, I found that there was no intention to misuse council expenses," Hanson said. Moreover, he noted that the Red Lake county attorney has come to the same conclusion after reviewing the matter and that he now considers the matter closed. "I found the records to be completely open and nothing to indicate that anyone was trying to hide something," he continued.

Hanson concluded by saying "...it is most unfortunate for the council to have received the recent negative attention, for I am assured that the wheat council members are doing their best to truly promote wheat."

In connection with this independent review of the financial records of the council, Oberg noted that additional procedures have been implemented to aid fiscal operations of the council. These include the adoption of revised policies and procedures and the appointment of an audit committee to review council expenditures. "We believe these additions to our financial management policies will serve to strengthen the activities of the council," Oberg concluded.

Kruger Testifies On Wheat Issues At Trade Hearing

"Re-establishing the United States as an aggressive competitor in the export market will enhance the reputation of the U.S. as a reliable supplier of every class, grade and quality of wheat at any time throughout the year," was the message delivered by Jerry Kruger to members of the Senate agriculture committee.

Testifying before select members of the Senate agriculture committee at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange during a hearing focusing on trade issues, the Warren area farmer and immediate past chairman of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council stressed the important role U.S. wheat exports have on the U.S. economy and balance of trade.

According to Kruger, many factors have contributed to a decline in U.S. wheat exports. "These range from the very simple to the very complex," he said, "from our own inability to develop a consistent and reliable grain trade policy independent of foreign policy issues, to the economic and social policies of our competitors; and from changing market conditions, to existing political relations between East and West."

Kruger testified that although many issues complicate efforts to increase wheat exports such as grain quality, third world debt, price competitiveness and overall political relations, probably the most serious difficulty facing U.S. producers today is the unfair export subsidies of our competitors.

"Using the export enhancement program (EEP) to combate competitor export subsidies will help maintain U.S. competitiveness and, hopefully, will encourage participating nations in the Uruguay round of GATT negotiations to adopt a more meaningful position on the use and proliferation of export subsidies," Kruger told the committee. "If we are truly dedicated to combating unfair trade practices, then the EEP must be broadened to include countries which have been consistent and reliable purchasers of U.S. wheat that heretofore have been denied access.

"A return to U.S. wheat export expansion will depend, to a large degree, on whether the U.S. government maintains a policy of unwarranted use of embargoes and other trade restrictions," Kruger said. "General trade and economic relations between countries must be allowed to develop on the basis of mutual benefit . . . derived from a genuine trust resulting from the relationship of 'reliable supplier' and 'reliable customer,' " he concluded.

Wheat Council Records Review Comes Up Clean

"I am very pleased to report that an internal and independent review of the council's accounting and financial records revealed no misuse," states John Oberg, Minnesota Wheat Council chairman from Ulen. "We felt compelled to conduct this review to assure Minnesota wheat farmers that charges of financial wrong-doing at the council were inaccurate," he said.

The review was conducted in response to a letter from the legislative auditor of the State of Minnesota to Oberg in which it was alluded that possible improper and illegal activities may have occurred. As a result, the wheat council retained the services of Marvin B. Hanson, attorney at law, Hallock, Conrad M. Dahl, certified public accountant, also from Hallock, to provide an independent review of the council's financial records and procedures.

In addition, council members and the new executive director, Fred Hejduk, conducted their own review of council policies and procedures in order to identify areas where modification may be useful.

In his report to the council, Hanson stated that "contrary to the legislative auditor, I saw no pattern of improper dealings. I did not see sloppy financial management and I did not see material weakness in the council's accounting. The statements of the legislative auditor distorted the matters reviewed...and brought in matters not relevant to this year's audit.

"On whole, I found that there was no intention to misuse council expenses," Hanson said. Moreover, he noted that the Red Lake county attorney has come to the same conclusion after reviewing the matter and that he now considers the matter closed. "I found the records to be completely open and nothing to indicate that anyone was trying to hide something," he continued.

Hanson concluded by saying"...it is most unfortunate for the council to have received the recent negative attention, for I am assured that the wheat council members are doing their best to truly promote wheat."

In connection with this independent review of the financial records of the council, Oberg noted that additional procedures have been implemented to aid fiscal operations of the council. These include the adoption of revised policies and procedures and the appointment of an audit committee to review council expenditures. "We believe these additions to our financial management policies will serve to strengthen the activities of the council," Oberg concluded.

Kruger Testifies On Wheat Issues At Trade Hearing

"Re-establishing the United States as an aggressive competitor in the export market will enhance the reputation of the U.S. as a reliable supplier of every class, grade and quality of wheat at any time throughout the year," was the message delivered by Jerry Kruger to members of the Senate agriculture committee.

Testifying before select members of the Senate agriculture committee at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange during a hearing focusing on trade issues, the Warren area farmer and immediate past chairman of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council stressed the important role U.S. wheat exports have on the U.S. economy and balance of trade.

According to Kruger, many factors have contributed to a decline in U.S. wheat exports. "These range from the very simple to the very complex," he said, "from our own inability to develop a consistent and reliable grain trade policy independent of foreign policy issues, to the economic and social policies of our competitors; and from changing market conditions, to existing political relations between East and West."

Kruger testified that although many issues complicate efforts to increase wheat exports such as grain quality, third world debt, price competitiveness and overall political relations, probably the most serious difficulty facing U.S. producers today is the unfair export subsidies of our competitors.

"Using the export enhancement program (EEP) to combat competitor export subsidies will help maintain U.S. competitiveness and, hopefully, will encourage participating nations in the Uruguay round of GATT negotiations to adopt a more meaningful position on the use and proliferation of export subsidies," Kruger told the committee. "If we are truly dedicated to combating unfair trade practices, then the EEP must be broadened to include countries which have been consistent and reliable purchasers of U.S. wheat that heretofore have been denied access.

"A return to U.S. wheat export expansion will depend, to a large degree, on whether the U.S. government maintains a policy of unwarranted use of embargoes and other trade restrictions," Kruger said. "General trade and economic relations between countries must be allowed to develop on the basis of mutual benefit . . . derived from a genuine trust resulting from the relationship of 'reliable supplier' and 'reliable customer,'" he concluded.

. . . And Then There Was One!

Nineteen times the Lincoln high school Lady Prowlers basketball team has taken to the court this season and 19 times it has managed a victory. The wins have not always come easily, but it is a tribute to the character of a team which finds a way to win in the face of adversity. This group of girls has character.

It is no secret that girls' basketball has not enjoyed major popularity with local sports fans in the relatively few years the sport has been played here. In the early years it was not uncommon for the crowd to include little more than a dozen or so parents and a handful of the players' friends.

This year's Lady Prowlers team has captured the attention and enthusiasm of the entire community — an enthusiasm and attention which have both expanded and intensified as the unbeaten record lengthened. Some would say that local sports fans are so hungry for a successful team that they would hop on the bandwagon of any squad that showed an ability to win. It ain't necessarily so.

What makes this team seem so special is that it is precisely that — a team. There are good athletes on the team but no superstars. Each player seems to get the most out of her abilities, and if a little extra hard work is required, then that is what is given. Unselfish play which makes for good assists in scoring and an entertaining game to watch has been a hallmark of the group all season. In short, this team knows how to win and believes in itself.

Now it all comes down to one game which could provide an undefeated regular season. The Fergus Falls Otters will be in town Friday with a ballclub capable of challenging the Prowler girls for that coveted goal. The Otters would like nothing better than to be the team to burst the bubble for coach Tom Schafer's quintet. The Prowlers would like nothing better than to keep their winning streak alive. Classic games are made of such confrontation.

If you have any interest at all in competitive athletics, you would do yourself a favor by being in attendance Friday in the Lincoln gymnasium. If you haven't seen a high school girls' basketball game for a few years, you are in for a shock at how play has improved and playing ability has developed.

But most of all the Prowler girls deserve a gym filled with supportive fans showing their appreciation for how the team has represented the school and community throughout the entire season. Join the crowd and treat yourself and the Prowlers to a night to remember. This is what high school athletic competition is all about.

Drug Screening: A Valuable Tool

Following comments are by Frederick J. Krebs, director of the employee relations policy center of the U.S. chamber of commerce, and present one viewpoint on drug testing in the work place:

The extent of illicit drug use in our society has been well documented. The pervasive and debilitating effects of drugs have forced private employers to become increasingly concerned about the effect of drug abuse in the workplace.

Estimates of the cost of drug use to the business community range from $30 billion to more than $10 billion annually because of lost productivity, increased absenteeism, illnesses, accidents and injuries, higher medical costs, thefts, increased workers' compensation claims and legal liabilities for employers. When alcohol abuse is considered, the costs might double.

According to a recent report of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, in a 30 day period 18.2 million people used marijuana and 5.8 million used cocaine. In the work force, the problem occurs at all levels — from the lowest-paid hourly worker to the high-level executive.

Most drug users consider themselves "recreational users" but this term inaccurately implies that illegal drug use is safe and legitimate. Many such users will become increasingly dependent on larger and more potent drug doses. Chronic users, who often turn to selling drugs to finance their own habits, frequently find the workplace a source of new customers. In addition, people who take drugs off the job are much more likely to use drugs on the job or work while impaired.

A recently developed profile of the "recreational" drug user in the workplace reveals that he is late three times as often as fellow employees, is 2.2 times more likely to ask for early dismissal or other time off, has 2.5 times as many absences of eight or more days, is five times more likely to file a workers' compensation claim and is involved in workplace accidents 3.6 times more frequently than other workers.

Furthermore, drug-abusing employees incur 300 per cent higher medical costs and benefits.

Drug screening is an emotional subject. It raises legitimate concerns about employees' privacy and other legal rights. Properly administered, and as part of a comprehensive substance abuse prevention policy, drug testing is an accurate, effective and appropriate deterrent to drug abuse.

Employers screen employees and job applicants to protect the safety of the public and their employees, improve the health of their work force and reduce the related costs and to assure the quality of their products and services.

It makes good sense and is legal to make being "drug free" a condition of employment. An employer has a right to screen job applicants — provided the tests are administered fairly and in a non-discriminatory manner.

Drug testing is appropriate for people in jobs affecting the safety of employees and the public. The transportation, construction and utilities industries are prime examples of areas where drug testing is appropriate. Indeed, an employer faces substantial potential liability for not assuring a safe and secure workplace. There is little doubt that pilots, air traffic controllers, nuclear reactor operators, school bus drivers and construction equipment operators should be drug free.

It is common and appropriate to test employees who have participated in rehabilitation programs, and an employer rightfully may condition continued employment on staying drug-free. Many experts recognize the importance of testing in achieving rehabilitation.

Drug tests may be included as part of a routine physical exam. Because they are scheduled in advance and uniformly administered, such tests generally are more accepted by employees than random, unannounced tests.

Testing as part of an investigation into injury or substantial damage, or when there is evidence of impairment, clearly is justified.

Random, unannounced tests are the most likely to generate employee resentment and legal challenges. Although relatively uncommon, such testing is an appropriate response to a substantial workplace drug problem.

For legal and employee relations reasons, any drug screening program should meet certain basic requirements. The program should be operated in a fair and reasonable manner and not used as a vehicle for harassment. Extreme care should be used to avoid the possibility of mishandling or misidentification of test samples. Any positive results should be confirmed by a second, different testing method to avoid the possibility of error. The results should be kept confidential and only persons with a legitimate need to know should have notice or access to the results.

Drug testing is not synonomous with a drug abuse prevention policy. However, it can be a valuable and important component of such a policy. A comprehensive policy should include training and education, as well as rehabilitation, when feasible. Rehabilitation, at least for initial or non-serious offenses, can be a cost-effective and positive program for employee relations. Carefully administered programs can resolve many concerns about the accuracy and fairness of drug screening and reduce any conflict of rights and expectations.

Our society properly values and seeks to protect the rights of the individual. Nevertheless, we also recognize that individual rights are not always paramount. The adverse consequences that result from the use of drugs create situations where the rights of the employer, co-workers and society at-large justify and, in some instances, require drug prevention programs that include drug screening.

The Role of Responsibility

by Dr. Elizabeth Sugden, MD
Family Physician, Thief River Falls

Recently I received a phone call from a very angry woman. She had just discovered among her daughter's belongings a package of birth control pills. The prescribing physician was myself. A lawsuit, as well as exposure of my "immoral behavior" in promoting her daughter's sexual activity, were threatened.

My own sympathies are divided — compassion for this mother's genuine distress versus respect for her daughter's wisdom in taking steps to prevent a pregnancy at age 16. Do I bear the responsibility for having caused this teenager to become sexually active? Whose role is it to be her moral counselor — mine? her mother's? the church? her school?

Teenage sexual activity is not just a big-city problem. It is a problem I face daily in my practice in Thief River Falls. I think concerned parents, educators and health professionals in our community need to be aware of the facts which surround this issue: Large numbers of our teenagers are sexually active — many without parental awareness, often without contraception, usually without knowledge of possible consequences including those of venereal disease and unwanted pregnancy, and in some cases, regardless of moral admonitions from parents or church.

How big is the problem? Nationwide there are 1.2 million pregnancies among teenagers every year. In Minnesota, teenagers have one-third of all legal abortions and rural teenagers have the highest proportion of second trimester abortions. Seventy per cent of pregnancies in those aged 10 to 14 are terminated by abortion. Forty per cent of pregnancies in the 15 to 19-year-old age group are terminated by abortion. These abortion statistics are tragic.

The Minnesota Medical association recently published a study of teenage sexual activity in a rural Minnesota high school in a farming community similar to Thief River Falls. The results are revealing, and from my own experience, are similar to the situation in our community: 35 per cent of boys and 50 per cent of girls reported having had intercourse at least once by grade 12. Over 25 per cent of the sexually active students had intercourse on a regular basis (this was 10 per cent of the school's population). Over half the sexually active students had more than one sexual partner. Over 25 per cent of the sexually active boys and 10 per cent of the girls had five or more partners.

What are the adverse consequences of teenage pregnancy? Teenagers, especially those less than 14 years old, are at much greater health risk for injury and death from carrying pregnancy to term. They are more likely than older women to obtain abortions. Teen parents are more likely to abuse their children or be abused in a relationship. Chemical dependency rates are higher for them and subsequently for their children. The cost for welfare for single parents and their children is an ever increasing burden to society. Teenage parents are less likely to finish high school, attend college or be employed. If they decide to marry, teenage parents are more likely to divorce. Even if pregnancy does not occur, teenagers who are sexually active risk acquiring venereal disease that may cause them physical injury and future infertility.

Does providing contraceptive counselling cause teenagers to become sexually active? My opinion is that it does not. The majority of girls seeking contraceptive counselling from family planning services have already been sexually active. This is true of my experience in Thief River Falls. Many of these girls come for medical attention and contraceptive counselling because they are afraid they may already have become pregnant. The majority of minors obtaining legal abortions in the state of Minnesota in 1982 had never used contraceptives prior to becoming pregnant. Unfortunately, teens are ignorant of their potential fertility. Among sexually active teenagers who did not use birth control, seven in 10 in one study thought they could not become pregnant.

Like most things in life, I can see bad and good in prescribing birth control pills for minors. I do believe that a teenager who comes to me for contraception has made a difficult but responsible decision. It is not easy to discuss this with parents who don't approve or to overcome the fear of being found out by others in a small community. In my opinion a moral good has been done by myself and my patient in preventing a teenage pregnancy. This in turn helps prevent the variety of other negative outcomes listed above.

The bad that I am doing, is that like most of us, I can fall back into complacency once this prescription is written. I have treated a symptom. I have done nothing to deal with the underlying social and cultural factors that have produced a teenager who feels compelled to say yes to sexual activity. I have failed to practice preventive medicine. How do we convey to these kids that we think they should not become sexually active as teenagers?

First, we have an obligation to provide contraception until our morality teaching catches up with the high rate of teenage sexual activity. There are those who would argue that pregnant teenagers should pay the penalty for their promiscuous behavior by the experience of childbirth and the rigors of raising their child alone. This is unkind. I believe they should not have to pay such a price for our lack of moral teaching, our lack of sexuality education, and our tolerance of mixed moral messages in daily life.

Secondly, sexuality education must be given high priority. Ideally, this should occur at home with informed and caring parents. Every church should have such a program incorporating religious and moral instruction with the physiology of reproduction. I believe a discussion of contraception and venereal disease needs to be part of that instruction. However, not everyone attends church and many parents lack the knowledge to adequately review the subject of sexuality. Some parents may feel they have as much to learn as their children. For these reasons, I strongly believe we should have a sexuality education curriculum in our schools. Such a curriculum needs to address the issues of morality, peer pressure and self-esteem and should include parents as actively as possible. A pilot project such as this is getting underway in the Thief River Falls school district and deserves all of our support.

It is also my opinion that written information dealing with the topics of sexually transmitted diseases, contraception and the morality of beginning sexual activity as a teenager be made readily available to teenagers. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists has issued a pamphlet designed for teenagers dealing with exactly these topics. It begins by telling them that they always have the option of saying no to sexual activity. A good way to get this information to all sexually active teenagers is through the public school system.

Again I ask — whose role is it to be the moral counselor for a teenager who comes to me for contraception? I believe the answer is that it is mine, her mother's, her church's and her school's. The problems associated with teenage pregnancy are a reality of my practice in our community and these are problems we must have the courage to address. All too often, I feel the issues of providing sexuality education and contraception are neglected because they are too controversial, yet at the same time we are obviously failing to pass along to our children the self-confidence, self-esteem and acceptable moral behavior we desire. We need a united effort by many individuals in our community to develop constructive solutions to these complex problems.

Icy Roads Again

McIntosh — Icy roads were the cause of an accident February 2 between a milk truck and a pickup. The pickup, driven by Robert Martin of rural McIntosh, was heading south on county road 8, and the milk truck, driven by Dale Davis of Bagley, was travelling east on county road 35 when the collision occurred. Baudette — The new Spooner-Ranger hockey shack was dedicated in the midst of a blizzard February 2. The neighborhood warming house was made of donated materials with volunteer labor for a total cost of $40, and will be used by dedicated hockey players, pint-sized on up, throughout the winter months.

No Go

Baudette — There will be no Wednesday night volleyball games in Baudette, decided the Lake of the Woods school board. The school student council wanted to start an intramural volleyball league, but the proposal was nixed by the board because "Wednesday night has traditionally been church night," according to superintendent of schools Al Edwards. Rev. Greg Odell of Evangelical Covenant church in Baudette, who was present at the meeting, said, "We appreciate the cooperation with the school. We do have Wednesday night services at our church, and we have always appreciated the fact that that night is kept free of school activities."

Got Any Extra Ones?

McIntosh — The McIntosh senior site members are in need of old or used greeting cards to be used in craft projects. Cards may be dropped off at the senior meal site in McIntosh or at the McIntosh Times office.

More Church Burglaries

Bemidji — Timothy Scott Efteland, 18, of Bagley, made a first court appearance last Wednesday before Beltrami County Judge Fritz Weddel. Charges were filed in connection with burglaries at the First Presbyterian and United Methodist churches in Bemidji last week. Bail was set at $10,000 and Efteland is scheduled to appear in district court February 17. State sentencing guidelines call for a minimum 12 months in prison for third-degree burglary.

The North Star News said, "It was a long wait, in fact it was a record wait, but the first baby born at the Karlstad Memorial hospital has arrived!" The previous record for the slowest new year baby was set 16 years ago by Vincent Kuznia in 1971. Karlstad businesses were eagerly awaiting Andriana's arrival with a shower of gifts.

Quick Quilting In Quantity

Greenbush — Ladies of Bethel Lutheran church in Greenbush turn out over 100 quilts each year for the poor and needy overseas, and they have been turning out quilts in that quantity for the past 15 to 20 years. The ladies collect all sorts of old clothes, rip them apart, wash and press the pieces, and then cut them into squares to be made into new, useful coverings. Old sheets or drapes are used for backing, and fill is either old flannel blankets or new batting. The ladies claim they can tie a whole quilt in about four minutes.

Nice Bunch

Karlstad — The Karlstad C & C group of businessmen held a Customer Appreciation Day last week with a free pancake feed for the community. He pled guilty to disorderly conduct and was sentenced to 30 days, stayed one year on condition he have no like offenses.

Down, Down

Greenbush — Greenbush residents will vote on a six mill levy referendum February 23 in an effort to keep the school district out of the red in the next few years. Enrollment has declined in nearly all grades in the past six years, especially in the high school. The 1982-83 school year showed an enrollment of 517 students, but that figure has steadily declined to an enrollment of 436 in the 1986-87 school year. Projected enrollment figures show a total of 393 students expected in the 1988-89 school year. There will be a hearing at 8 p.m. February 19 at the school to discuss the proposed levy.

Spiffy

Clearbrook — The Clearbrook city council accepted plans for a liquor store remodeling project at their February 5 meeting. Most of the remodeling will involve changing the men's restroom and the off-sale room, with new flooring, new front windows, new side door and a few minor changes. Mayor Ted Olson plans to call a special meeting later this month, after council members have a chance to review the plans, so that the project can be begun as soon as possible.

Perhaps Some Rivalry?

Clearbrook — Clearbrook high school students celebrated their first annual Sno Daze last week with Hawaiian Day, Nerd Day and "Dress Like Bagley Students Day." The Leader-Record explained that "Bagley students dress differently than Clearbrook students."

Rules And Regulations

Warroad — Policies set for the new Warroad area community center include no liquor allowed in the center; no regularly held church services at the center; and no smoking in the center except in the men's and women's restrooms and outdoors. The reason given for not allowing regular church services was because the building was designed for the whole community's needs and the service would be restrictive.

$250 Richer

Red Lake Falls — Wade Pauling of Red Lake Falls found the hidden Sno-Fest key last week to win a $250 prize. The key was hidden by a rock near the entrance of the Sportsmen's Park and had been buried in ice and snow that accumulated from recent snowfall and thaws.

Burglary And Theft

Red Lake Falls — Two Red Lake Falls men appeared in county district court before Judge J.A. Harren last week, making first appearances on separate charges. Floyd Olson was charged with possession of stolen property and fleeing a police officer in a motor vehicle. Olson was found to be in possession of a 1979 Olds Delta 88 belonging to a Thief River Falls city councilman and reached speeds of 75 to 80 mph on a county road near Plummer before he was apprehended after going into a ditch. Bail was set for $1,000 with additional $3,000 bail for auto theft charges in Pennington county. Possession of stolen property carries a 10-year, $20,000 or both penalty, and fleeing a police officer in a motor vehicle carries a one-year, $3,000 fine or both. In other Red Lake county court news, Edward Hoppe also made his first appearance before Judge Harren on charges of burglary and theft, stemming from an incident late January at East Side Service in Plummer. Burglary carries a five-year penalty and $10,000 fine or both, and theft carries the same. Bail was set at $1,000. Both men will make their next court appearance February 17 in Thief River Falls.

Hallock — Kenny Hultgren, former Kennedy native, has been added to the Kittson county sheriff's deputy force as of February 4. BETTY WESTBERG will present a special program on the Hjemkomst ship, 2 p.m. February 19 in the library meeting room of the Thief River Falls public library. Westberg, a Warren resident, will present a special program describing the historic trip of the Hjemkomst from America to Norway in 1982. Westberg is the sister-in-law of the late Bob Asp who built the Hjemkomst.

KERMIT GENEREUX, local president of the Jaycees, presented a check for $200 to Falls Delivered Meals, represented by Quentin Jones. Jones said practically all the clubs in Thief River Falls assist with either delivery meals or donations or both. The organization began its service sometime in the mid seventies and since that time delivered meals to individuals who cannot cook or make their own meals. A person who wishes to participate in this service must have a recommendation from a doctor. Today the organization delivers an average of 30 meals per day throughout the year. Jones said volunteers are always needed and anybody wanting to help or anybody who would like to have meals delivered can contact Quentin Jones at 681-1778. The organization also meets 7 p.m. the first Thursday of every month in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls public library.

TRF Tops Fergus Falls 4-1

Thief River Falls put in another bid for the No. 1 seed in the upcoming 1987 North Sub-Section 8 high school hockey playoffs Saturday night with a convincing 4-1 win over Fergus Falls. Now it's up to the 19 Section 8 coaches just where the Prowlers will wind up in post-season play.

They could win a few more votes Tuesday with a solid showing against Section 8 leader Warroad in a regular season-ending match-up against the once-beaten Warriors at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena.

Thief River Falls struggled to break into the win column earlier this year, but the Prowlers are 4-1-1 in their last six games to boost their overall record to 8-10-1 and propel them into position to grab that No. 1 North Sub-Section 8 seed, an increasingly likely possibility since fellow North rivals Warroad, Crookston and Roseau are expected to be seeded directly into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinal field.

That would leave Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks are the prime contenders for the top spot in the North Sub-Section 8 field, meaning a single home ice contest for a possible Section 8 tournament berth. East Grand Forks is struggling at the moment, and if the Prowlers could duplicate the kind of effort that saw them stay within 4-3 of the powerful Warriors back on Jan. 20, the No. 1 spot would all but guaranteed.

Fergus Falls, like Detroit Lakes Tuesday in a 5-0 Thief River Falls win, was bottled up offensively by the Prowlers' strong defensive play. Thief River Falls, out-shooting Fergus Falls 35-19, shut out the Otters until late in the third period, when Curt Johnson spoiled goalie Shayne Anderson's shut out bid.

"We think we played pretty well defensively," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "They (Fergus Falls) didn't have an abundance of real good scoring opportunities, and when they did, Shayne made some big saves when he had to — something he's been doing all year."

Thief River Falls started each period with a bang. Jeff Grand gave the Prowlers a quick 1-0 lead just 1:50 into the game on a scramble around Fergus Falls goalie Dave Hedstrom, who was some 20 feet out of the goal crease trying to cover the puck. He got tied up in a crowd, the puck squirted free, and Grand shoved it into the open net.

A power play goal by defenseman Bill Dicken made it 2-0 4:12 into the second period when he whistled one in from the slot area.

Just 10 seconds into the third period it was 3-0 when Jim Breiland whipped a shot over Hestrom's shoulder moments after the center-ice faceoff.

Rob Coltom made it 4-0 at 6:38 when Hedstrom again got caught out of position in a scramble away from his net. The puck came loose, and Coltom repeated Grand's earlier goal by putting it into an empty net.

The shutout disappeared when Thief River Falls coughed up the puck in front of Anderson and Johnson was there to put it in the net at 12:51.

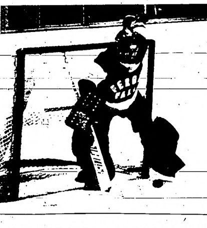
Scoring

First period — TRF, Jeff Grand (un.), 1:50.

Second period — TRF, Bill Dicken (Blair Lund-Dave Johnson), 4:12.

Third period — TRF, Jim Breiland (Johnson), :10; TRF, Rob Coltom (Breiland), 6:38; FF, Curt Johnson (Buzz Anderson), 12:51.

Goalies saves — TRF, Shayne Anderson 6-7-5, 18; FF, Dave Hedstrom 8-7-16, 31.



FERGUS FALLS goalie Dave Hedstrom stopped this Thief River Falls shot during Saturday's Section 8 high school hockey game at the Sports Arena here. The Prowlers beat the Otters 4-1. They finish their 1986-87 regular season at home Tuesday against a strong Warroad team.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA-Crookston goalie Gary Vaudrin got his glove on this shot by Northland forward Chad Bottem (10) and deflected the puck away during the secod period of Saturday's Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament semifinal playoff game in Crookston. The Trojans swept the weekend series from the Pioneers 4-2 and 7-4 for a two-game, total-game victory margin of 11-6 to reach the MCCC finals.

UMC Sweeps Playoff Series From NCC . . .

Trojans Oust Pioneers

University of Minnesota-Crookston eliminated Northland Community College from the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference state hockey tournament by sweeping both ends of a two-game, total-goal weekend playoff series in Crookston.

The No. 1-seeded Trojans won 4-2 Friday night and triumphed 7-4 Saturday afternoon to beat the No. 4-seeded Pioneers 11-6 in the total-goal department.

Northland finished its season at 14-10 overall. UMC will take an 18-4 record into the MCCC state playoff finals this weekend in Crookston.

Head coach Scott Bergland of Northland figured his club gave it a good shot after making a surprise state tournament entrance. "Friday we played well. It could have gone either way," he said. "Saturday we couldn't get the big goal when we needed it. We had to come out and get that first goal, and we didn't. But give the kids credit. They never gave up. They could have made it ugly at the end, but they didn't. They showed a lot of class. They have nothing to hang their heads about."

Northland . . . . . . . . . . 2

University of Minnesota-Crookston started the weekend with a 3-0 lead in the total-goal department and wound up with a 4-2 Friday night victory.

Rich Anderson and Bill Nashwinter gave UMC a 2-0 first period lead, and Shane Steinmetz made it 3-0 just 1:42 into the second period.

Northland cut the deficit to 3-2 on goals by Eric Anderson and Jim Speidel before the second period ended, but Mark Lyczewski gave the Trojans a key third period goal for a two-goal cushion to start Saturday's game.

Scoring

First period — UMC, Rich Anderson (Mike Suda-Tom Thorton), 1:21; UMC, Bill Nashwinter (Darin Mloen-Jason Wardner), 16:26.

Second period — UMC, Shane Steinmetz (Mark Lyczewski-Rick Dahle), 1:42; NCC, Eric Anderson (Steve Ristau-Brian Nelson), 14:01; NCC, Jim Speidel (Steve Wiskow-Russ Cagnoni), 19:05.

Third period — UMC, Lyczewski (Van Campbell), 6:53.

Goalie saves — NCC, Dean Hanson 10-12-17, 39; UMC, Gary Vaudrin 11-11-9, 31.

UMC . . . . . . . . . . 7
Northland . . . . . . . . . . 4

It was close for a while, but the University of Minnesota-Crookston offense steadily increased its total-goal weekend edge in winning 7-4 Saturday afternoon.

First of three UMC power play goals got the Trojans going at 10:57 of the first period when standout Mark Lyczewski put a rebound past Northland goalie Kurt Chaffee.

It was a 4-on-4 situation when Lyczewski made it 2-0 at 5:08 of the second period, slipping the puck behind Chaffee, after the Northland goalie had made a big save out front.

Another power play goal off a rebound, this one by Rick Dale, gave UMC a 3-0 lead at 6:25 of the second period, and a big 7-2 lead in total goals.

Northland made a game of it for a while, though, with Stacy Lies beating Crookston goalie Gary Vaudrin from the top of the face-off circle to the right of the netminder just 23 seconds after the Dahle goal, and a 5-on-3 Northland power play produced a slap shot goal from the point by Tony Hagen at 11:29 for a 3-2 game.

But that was as close as the Pioneers got. A scramble in front of Chaffee during a 4-on-4 situation wound up as Dahle's second goal of the game at 12:23, and Bill Nashwinter made it 5-2 at 13:48, just moments after a UMC power play had expired when he caught the upper corner of the net from the slot area.

Steinmetz slammed home a power play goal from the edge of the crease as 16:51 as UMC lengthened its lead to 6-2.

Final goal of a busy second period went to Northland's Brian Nelson on a slap shot from the point during a power play opportunity at 19:05.

The two rivals swapped third period goals to finish off the 7-4 game. Dahle completed a hat trick performance when he was left alone in front of Chaffee at 7:21, and the Pioneers' Russ Cagnoni beat Vaudrin with a slap shot that caught the inside post at 9:21.

Scoring

First period — UMC, Mark Lyczewski (Rich Anderson-Rick Dahle), 10:57.

Second period — UMC, Lyczewski (Shane Steinmetz), 5:08; UMC, Dahle (Tom Thorton-Steinmetz), 6:25; NCC, Stacy Lies (Lee Hamre-Russ Cagnoni), 6:48; NCC, Tony Hagen (Steve Wiskow), 11:29; UMC, Dahle (Steinmetz-Anderson), 12:23; UMC, Bill Nashwinter (Dave Bauer-Thorton), 13:48; UMC Steinmetz (Dahle), 16:51; NCC, Brian Nelson (Bill Desrocher-Chad Bottem), 19:05.

Third period — UMC, Dahle (Darin Mloen-Steinmetz), 7:21; NCC, Cagnoni (Chad Swendseid), 9:21.

Prowlers End Losing Streak At Hands Of Otters

Mike Lundgren Sports Editor

A string of nine straight Thief River Falls losses at the hands of Fergus Falls ended Saturday when the Prowlers skated past the Otters 4-1 in a Section 8 high school hockey match-up at the Sports Arena.

It was the first Thief River Falls win over Fergus Falls since the 1981-82 season when the Prowlers edged the Otters 5-4 in their second meeting that year after losing 6-5 in the first of the home-and-home series.

Fergus Falls then swept both regular season meetings with Thief River Falls in 1982-83 (5-2, 6-1), 1983-84 (3-2, 8-2), 1984-85 (5-4, 7-1), and 1985-86 (6-5, 6-0). The Otters also won a 2-1 decision when the Prowlers were in Fergus Falls earlier this season.

Thief River Falls has rebounded from a rough start to become a factor in the Section 8 race. The Prowlers face the best in Section 8 Tuesday when they host a Warroad team that has lost just two games in two years. The 7:30 p.m. game at the Sports Arena will close out the Prowlers' regular season schedule. Coaches' seeding votes will be announced Wednesday, and post-season play starts Saturday with opening round sub-sectional eliminations.

Pioneers Need Wins

A pair of developments last week could wind up creating major problems in the state tournament quests by the Northland Community College men's and women's basketball teams.

For the women, the problem happened on the court when Fergus Falls upset No. 1-ranked University of Minnesota-Crookston 82-74 Wednesday.

That enabled the Spartans to match the Trojans' Northwest Division-leading 8-1 record. Northland is third at 7-2 in a four-team race that qualifies the top two regular season finishers for state tournament play.

Northland now must win both of its remaining two starts — tonight (Monday) at Fergus Falls and Thursday at home against the University of Minnesota-Crookston — to gain a state tournament berth. The Pioneers lost to both of them earlier, falling to the Trojans 77-66 and losing to the Spartans 82-77.

For the Northland men, the Northwest Division race tightened by off-court activities when it was announced that Brainerd was being forced to forfeit some games in which the Red Raiders used an uneligible player. Brainerd hadn't many wins to its credit this winter, but one of them was over UMC. The freebie put the Trojans back into the state tournament title chase, where Fergus Falls is 8-1, Northland 6-3 and UMC 5-5.

The Pioneers need to win one of their final two starts against Fergus Falls and UMC to pick up a state tournament trip. Like the women, the Northland men lost to both Northwest Division rivals earlier — 80-74 UMC 91-86 to Fergus Falls.

Miscellaneous

Steve Solheim, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, is a goaltender on the Hamline University hockey team this winter. The 6-3, 185-pounder, a Thief River Falls co-captain and team MVP in his senior season with the Prowlers, is the son of Vernon and Sherry Solheim of this city.

+ University of Minnesota-Crookston hockey team that eliminated Northland Community College from the Minnesota Community College Conference state playoffs over the weekend, won the MCCC regular season title and will be hositng the state playoff finals this weekend, because the Trojans feature the best line and best individual player in the league. In sophomores Mark Lyczewski (Crookston) and Rick Dahle (Loveland, CO), plus freshman Shane Steinmetz (Grand Forks), UMC has an outstanding line, and in Lyczewski they have the best player in the league. Lyczewski, simply put, is too good to be playing in the MCCC. "They'd be a .500 team without him (Lyczewski)," said Northland coach Scott Bergland.

+ Itasca out-scored Fergus Falls 105-89 on the road Saturday afternoon in a Minnesota Community College Conference men's basketball game that matched the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the state, and the current leaders in the Northeast and Northwest Divisions.

Fergus Falls Wins 6-5 In JV Hockey

Seven of the goals were scored in the second period Saturday as Fergus Falls out-scored Thief River Falls 6-5 in junior varsity high school hockey action.

Jason Brunkhorst and Hunter Boldt scored first period Thief River Falls goals as the two teams skated to a 2-2 draw.

Thief River Falls goal scorers during the second period scoring barrage were Nick Stickler, Aaron Bruzek and Tony Kozojed.

The loss dropped Thief River Falls to 5-11-1 for the year.

Jeff Grand is a senior wing on the Lincoln High School hockey team. Scott Grand is a fifth grader on the Pepsi Squirt In-House team in the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association program.

Jeff Grand scored two goals last Tuesday in the Prowlers' 5-0 Section 8 win over Detroit Lakes, not Scott Grand, like The Times sports editor reported in the Wednesday story on the game.

Wendell Grand is the Lincoln head hockey coach. He is also the father of Jeff and Scott Grand. Mike Lundgren is (still) the sports editor of The Times. Wendell and Mike are (still) friends. Mike is sorry and embarrassed about the mistake.

TRF Girls Win Big At EGF

What was expected to be one of the biggest hurdles in Thief River Falls' bid for an unbeaten regular season finish was cleared with surprising ease Thursday as the Prowlers whipped East Grand Forks 62-40 in girls high school basketball action.

It was win No. 18 for the Prowlers — their third over the Green Wave. But the first two were closer, including a 56-54 overtime victory in the semifinals of the Warren Invitational back on December 19, and a 56-47 decision at home Jan. 15.

This one was close, but only for a while. Thief River Falls had a 15-13 first quarter lead, built the margin to eight points midway through the second quarter, then watched as East Grand Forks cut the gap to a single point with 1½ minutes left in the first half. That was the last the host Green Wave saw of the Prowlers, who went to a full-court press for six quick points and a 34-26 halftime lead. The attack continued in the second half when the Prowlers blitzed the Green Wave 14-4 in the third quarter for a 48-30 bulge on the scoreboard.

"That was one of the better offensive showings we've had this year," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. And he had the numbers to back him up since the 62 points was the highest figure the Prowlers have scored this winter, topping by one the 61-46 victory over Tri-County Jan. 19.

Brenda Russell led the way with 18 points. Kelly Cornell had 14 and Laura Beito turned in a 10-point, 12-rebound effort. Diana Chase led East Grand Forks with 17 points.

"It was a team effort," said Schafer. "Everybody played a good ball game."

Thief River Falls was 25-for-56 from the field (45 per cent) and 12-for-20 at the free throw line (60 per cent). East Grand Forks was 14-for-59 from the field (24 per cent) and 12-for-23 at the line (52 per cent). The Prowlers had a 33-30 rebound edge, and the Green Wave had more turnovers, 18-10.

It was a clean sweep for the visitors, who won the junior varsity game 58-38 for an 11-4 record, and took the freshman game 41-30 for a 2-10 mark.

Northland After State Basketball Tournament Spots

State tournament playoff positions will be on the line this week when the Northland Community College men's and women's basketball teams close out their 1986-87 regular season schedules with doubleheader assignments against Northwest Division foes Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Northland posted a pair of one-sided wins over visiting Brainerd Saturday afternoon, with the Pioneers winning the women's game 78-38 and the men's game 94-69.

That put the Northland women at 7-2 in the Northwest Division standings, and the men at 6-3. Both are 11-10 overall. But the men are in better position than the women in playoff terms.

Top two regular season Northwest Division regular season finishers will be state tournament-bound. Fergus Falls men start the final week of the season with an 8-1 first place record, followed by 6-3 Northland, 5-5 UMC and 0-10 Brainerd. Northland will be at Fergus Falls tonight, and will host UMC Thursday. A win either night will put the Pioneers in the state tournament.

It's a tougher task for the Northland women because they're in third place, behind co-leaders UMC and Fergus Falls, who are both 8-1. Brainerd is out of the picture in the women's race, too. Northland women play the same schedule at the Northland men, but the Pioneers must win both of their final two starts to gain a state tournament berth.

Northland-Fergus Falls and Northland-UMC doubleheaders start with 6 p.m. women's games and finish with 8 p.m. men's games.

Northland . . . . . . . . . . 78
Brainerd . . . . . . . . . . 38

Janelle Lorsung (27) and Jody Pahlen (26) combined for 53 points as the Northland women overwhelmed Brainerd 78-38.

Northland had a 34-18 halftime lead and out-scored Brainerd 44-20 after intermission.

Despite the one-sided score, it wasn't a great showing by the Pioneers, according to Northland coach Tom Neibauer. Angie Enerson, who has been on a scoring tear lately, ran into first half foul trouble and scored just seven points, and without her running the show, the Pioneers "slowed down," said Neibauer.

Still, they shot 48 per cent from the field (32-for-66) and 54 per cent at the free throw line (14-for-26), while Brainerd shot only 34 per cent from the field (16-for-47) and 27 per cent at the line (6-for-21).

Pahlen had an impressive afternoon, said Neibauer, adding rebound and assist totals to her scoring figures.

Shorthanded Brainerd was no match as the Northland men rolled to a 94-69 victory in the second half of the Saturday afternoon twinbill in Thief River Falls.

The Red Raiders, forced to forfeit a handful of wins because of the use of an ineligible player, and missing two other starters because of injuries, trailed 50-28 at halftime.

"We controlled the first half, and then we just played out the second half," reported Northland coach Chet Engelman, whose team settled for a 44-41 second half scoring edge.

Morris Matthews led the Pioneers with 16 points. John Honek had 14, Greg Campbell 13 and Anthony McCullough 11, along with 11 rebounds. Ray Davis was credited with 10 assists.

Northland was 38-for-91 from the field (42 per cent) and 15-for-21 at the free throw line (71 per cent). Brainerd was 28-for-66 from the field (42 per cent) and 12-for-21 at the line (57 per cent). Northland finished with a 59-40 rebound advantage, and Brainerd had more turnovers, 16-7.

Franklin Middle School

Franklin Middle School seventh grade girls basketball team defeated East Grand Forks 36-24 as Jodi Kruta scored 13 points, while Tarik Koivisto and Trudi Aronson both netted 6.

The Spartans host Roseau Tuesday.

BEMIDJI FORWARD Chris Jensen took off toward the basket on a fast break drive against Thief River Falls defender Chris Nelson during Friday's North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball game in the Lincoln gym. Swenson made the basket, drew a foul from Nelson and added the free throw for a three-point play that gave the lumberjacks their first lead of the night, 23-21 with 3:21 left in the first half. They never gave up that lead, either, in beating the Prowlers 67-664. Jensen led Bemidji with 15 points.

Lumberjacks Shoot Down Prowlers

There was just one thing wrong with the Thief River Falls offense Friday night — it wasn't as good as Bemidji's. The Prowlers, who have been struggling offensively lately, put together a pretty fair attack, but the hot-shooting Lumberjacks did them one better in winning a well-played 67-64 North Sub-Region 8AA boys high school basketball game.

"I have no complaints," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "Offensively that's the best we've played in a long time. But every time we made a run at them, they responded."

Bemidji shot 59 per cent from the field for the game, hitting 29 of 49 attempts. The Lumberjacks were a deadly 64 per cent from the field in the second half on a 16-for-25 effort.

"They were taking the 15-to-18 footers — the type of shots we wanted them to take," explained Hunt, "but they were making them. They shot the eyes out of the basket."

Thief River Falls lead at the start of the fast-paced contest, owning a 16-12 edge as the first quarter ended. They still led 21-17 on a long jumper by Chris Nelson with 5½ minutes left in the second half, but then lost the services of starting forward Jarrod Kalsnes, a 6-2 senior who took a blow to the face in a collision with rugged 6-5 Bemidji center Matt Swenson.

Bemidji promptly reeled off six straight points on a basket and a free throw by Swenson and a three-point play by Chris Jensen off a fast break following a Thief River Falls turnover to take a 23-21 lead with 3:21 left in the quarter. That was the Lumberjacks' first lead of the night, and they never relinquished it.

Kalsnes never returned to the game. "It hurt us having Kalsnes out," acknowledged Hunt. "Jarrod gives us an added dimension. Without him, our bench strength is hurt, too."

Bemidji led by as much as five points before the Lumberjacks settled for a 31-29 halftime lead.

Biggest Bemidji lead of the night was 45-38 with 3:18 left in the third quarter when Mike Schlee took a long rebound off the Thief River Falls boards and turned it into a fast break lay-up.

Thief River Falls got back in it, though, with a seven-point run that made it 48-47 after a Brian Stark rebound basket with 59 seconds left in the quarter.

It was 50-48 to start the fourth quarter, and three times in the early portion of the final period the Prowlers were within two points, only to be turned back by the Bemidji sharpshooters.

A long jumper by Chris Bjorgaard had the Prowlers within 64-60 with 2:10 left, but they went 2:09 before hitting another field goal. Bemidji's Corey Boyer and Thief River Falls' Nelson swapped single free throws, then the Prowlers missed three shots on a single offensive possession that turned into a fast break lay-up by the Lumberjacks' Wade Burgess for a back-breaking 67-61 spread with just 43 seconds to go.

Bemidji never scored another point, but the Lumberjacks didn't have to. Bjorgaard came up with a free throw with 36 seconds on the clock, and hit one from the corner with one second left to make it close at the end.

Bjorgaard scored 17 of his game-high 22 points in the second half after Nelson's outside shooting kept the Prowlers in the game in the first half when he scored 11 of his 17 points. Stark, the 6-4 senior center, played well underneath in netting 17 points. Jensen led Bemidji with 15 points, while Swanson had 14, Boyer 13 and Randy Lish 11.

Thief River Falls played some good offense, but the Prowlers' shooting percentage didn't show it — 24-for-64, 38 per cent, from the field. The Prowlers were 16-for-27 at the free throw line (59 per cent), where the Lumberjacks were 9-for-21 (43 per cent). The Prowlers had a 32-20 rebound advantage, including an 18-5 edge on the offensive boards. The Lumberjacks had more turnovers, 12-10.

At 8-8 for the year, the Prowlers' third straight loss dropped them to .500 for the first time since they stood 1-1 back on Dec. 12.

TRF Boys Win JV Ball Game 62-56

Thief River Falls boys junior varsity high school basketball team rebounded from its first loss of the 1986-87 season a week earlier at Fergus Falls with a 62-56 Friday night win over Bemidji.

Todd Brandon scored 15 points, Dean Brandon 14 and Ryan Walseth 13 as Thief River Falls climbed to 12-1 for the year.

Thief River Falls had quarter leads of 15-9, 28-22 and 43-34.

Freshmen Lose To GF South, Bemidji

Setbacks at the hands of Grand Forks South Junior High and Bemidji extended the Thief River Falls freshmen boys high school basketball losing streak to seven games.

Grand Forks South won by a 57-39 margin Thursday, turning a narrow 6-5 first quarter lead into a 33-15 halftime cushion. It was dead even after that as both sides had 12-point third and fourth quarters. Kurt Kainz scored 14 Thief River Falls points.

Bemidji took a 64-42 Friday victory, trailing 17-15 at the end of the first quarter, going ahead 28-22 at halftime, then breaking open a 38-38 third quarter tie with a 26-4 fourth scoring surge. Chris Beaucage scored 12 points and Jason Kempert had 11 for the losers, 5-12 for the year.

Prowlers Win 66-20 Game At Greenbush

A 19-2 first quarter lead started the unbeaten Thief River Falls girls to a one-sided 66-20 high school basketball win at Greenbush Saturday.

The 19-0 Prowlers had a 31-5 halftime bulge, and owned a 50-11 third quarter cushion en route to their biggest spread of the season.

"It was not the kind of game I had expected," reported Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer, who figured a veteran Greenbush squad would present a challenge at home. "It really surprised me. But we boarded well. We gave them just one shot each time."

Brenda Russell scored 17 points for the Prowelers, while Kelly Cornell netted 16 and Laura Beito had 14 points, along with 10 rebounds. Everybody played; said Schafer, and eight of them scored.

The statistics naturally favored the Prowlerss, who were 29-for-68 from the field (48 per cent), 8-for-15 at the free throw line (53 per cent), had a 35-20 rebound advantage, and committed just six turnovers to 16 for the Tigers. Greenbush, meanwhile, was just 8-for-48 from the field (17 per cent) and 4-for-9 at the line (44 per cent).

"They (Greenbush) had some good shots," noted Schafer, "but they just weren't going in for them."

Thief River Falls will try to complete a perfect 20-0 regular season Friday when the Prowlers host Fergus Falls in a North Sub-Region 8AA test.

Prowlers Win Swim Meet 102-66 . . .

TRF Tops Grand Forks

Still shorthanded for a variety of reasons, the Thief River Falls boys high school swim team nevertheless had enough manpower left to handle Grand Forks in a Thursday dual at the Franklin Middle School pool, beating the Red River-Central cooperative team 102-66.

It was the final home appearance of the 1987-87 season for the Prowlers, and the win hiked their dual meet record to 8-2.

Rick Rosetta was an individual double-event winner for the Prowlers, taking the 50 freestyle in 24.78, and willing the 100 butterfly in 57.74. He was also a Section 8 meet qualifier in the 100 freestyle.

Dave Novak was also a Section 8 qualifier for the Prowlers during the meet in the 500 freestyle.

"The team swam very well," said Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "We're still not 100 per cent healthy, but we've got a week of practice before our next meet."

Forney said the Prowlers received good efforts from Rosetta, 100 butterfly, Novak, 400 freestyle relay, Aaron Tolte, 200 I.M. and 400 freestyle relay, Keith Olson, 500 freestyle and 400 freestyle relay, and Brian Schindler, 100 breaststroke and 400 freestyle relay.

Thief River Falls, completing its fifth meet in nine days, broke it open with a 1-2-3 sweep in the 100 butterfly — the sixth event on the 11-event card. While Rosetta won in 57.74, Paul Giauque was second in 59.90 and Todd Carlson was third in 1:08.40.

"The ninth graders are beginning to show their potential," mentioned Forney. "Ed Krystosek, Aaron Marshall, Mike Jorde and Geoff Antonenko had good swims."

Area Girls High School Basketball . . .

Huskies End Losing Streak

Goodridge girls snapped a 13-game losing streak Thursday with a 36-32 high school basketball victory over Clearwater County North.

Cindy Vettleson, a 5-9 senior, scored a game-high 17 points as the host Huskies won for the first time since Dec. 8.

Goodridge had a 7-6 first quarter lead, took an 18-14 edge into halftime and went into the final quarter leading 25-20. It was a momentum-swinging affair over the last eight minutes, with Goodridge building a seven-point lead, falling behind by a point, then regaining a seven-point edge before the Huskies settled for a four-point victory.

"We played up and down all night," described Goodridge coach Patti Johnson. It was far from being a perfect performance, she admitted, with 24 Goodridge turnovers underlining that fact, but the win "felt great," she said.

Goodridge will visit Red Lake Falls Thursday — the team the Huskies beat earlier this year, 32-29.

A strong fourth quarter finish enabled Marshall County Central to turn back visiting Warren 44-35 Thursday and extended the Nordies' winning streak to 15 games.

Marshall County Central started with a 12-10 first quarter lead, fell behind 28-17 at halftime and took a slim 28-26 lead into the fourth quarter before out-scoring the Ponies 16-9.

"The shots we had earlier in the game — good shots that weren't going in, started to drop for us in the fourth quarter," explained Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde.

Jodi Foss, Andrea Kragness and Kari Boe all scored 10 points for the winners. Boe, a 5-5 sophomore point guard, played her best game of the year, said Mjelde.

Marshall County Central was 17-for-53 from the field (32 per cent) and 10-for-20 at the free throw line. Warren was 17-for-46 from the field (36 per cent) and 1-for-5 at the line. The Ponies had a 28-27 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 20-11.

Middle River built a 14-point third quarter lead, then held off Roseau at the end to claim a 43-40 Thursday night victory.

The results eliminated Roseau from the North Border Conference title picture, securing the pennant for Marshall County Central, and also kept Middle River in third place, just behind the Rams.

"We played really well for 3½ quarters — the best we've played in a long time," reported Middle River coach Steve Larson. "I was real pleased with the girls."

Middle River had quarter leads of 14-9, 28-14 and 36-22 before the Skippers tired in the fourth quarter, when they missed 10 of 11 free throw opportunities that could have put the game out of reach.

Stacie Sparby and Kerry Nelson, a pair of sophomores, scored 12 points each for the winners, and freshman Nanette Berg had 11. Nelson and Berg also had 10 rebounds each, while senior Rayette Benke, held to just six points, contributed 13 rebounds.

Middle River was 18-for-40 from the field (45 per cent) and just 7-for-28 at the free throw line (25 per cent). Roseau was 17-for-64 from the field (27 per cent) and only 6-for-21 at the line (29 per cent).

A strong finish made up for a slow start Friday as Plummer defeated host Oklee 71-34.

Plummer had a 13-8 first quarter lead and a 29-16 halftime edge before the Cardinals opened up a 51-24 third quarter gap, and doubled the Bobcats 20-10 over the final eight minutes.

"We started slow, but we had a good second half," noted Plummer coach Rick Koivisto, who watched his team hit 20 of 35 second half field goal attempts (57 per cent).

Janelle Konickson led the winners with 25 points, while Jodi Konickson played well in scoring 12 points and Renae Walter contributed 10. Julie Murack led Oklee with 18 points.

Plummer was 34-for-63 from the field for the game (54 per cent) and 3-for-10 at the free throw line. Oklee was 14-for-52 from the field (30 per cent) and 6-for-9 at the line. The Cardinals had a 34-24 rebound advantage, and Oklee had more turnovers, 24-18.

In winning their sixth straight game the Cardinals moved to 14-2 for the year. They host Gary tonight (Monday).

Grygla Tips Goodridge 50-48

Grygla completed a rare two-game regular season sweep over rival Goodridge Saturday when the visiting Eagles edged the Huskies 50-48 in boys high school basketball action.

A Jan. 27 match-up in Grygla was won by the Eagles 69-60.

The see-saw rematch went right down to the final horn when the Huskies missed on three game-tying field goal attempts in the final eight seconds.

"It was a good game; real intense," reported Goodridge coach John Rahn.

It was close throughout. Goodridge led 15-12 at the end of the first quarter, took a 24-23 edge into halftime, then fell behind 37-36 to start the fourth quarter.

"It's a nice one to win," noted Grygla coach Vern Johnson, mentioning the fact it was the Eagles' first sweep of the Huskies in four years. "I thought Goodridge did a nice job," he added. "They played well."

Thor Smerek scored a game-high 20 points for the Eagles, with Reed Engelstad and Jason Engelstad both netting 12. Shawn Groven led the Huskies with 17 points, while Jeff Moen, one of the Huskies' most improved players, had a season-high 12 point effort and Jeff Berg netted 11.

Grygla shot 52 per cent from the field (24-for-46), while Goodridge shot 42 per cent (22-for-53). The Eagles were 2-for-5 at the free throw line and the Huskies were 4-for-6 in a game featuring few foul calls. Grygla owned a 28-24 rebound edge. Middle River . . . . . . . . . . . 31

Middle River played some good defense, but couldn't produce any offense Friday in a 49-31 loss at Warroad.

"We played one of our best defensive games of the year, but we couldn't score," explained Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "That's been a major stumbling block for us all year."

Middle River held the North Border Conference-leading Warriors to just six first quarter points, but still trailed by five when the quarter ended. The Warriors opened up a 29-13 halftime lead and carried a 45-26 advantage into the fourth quarter when the Middle River defense again shut down the Warroad offense — but to no avail.

Tom Gullikson led the Skippers with 12 points. Lance Sage and Harold Wennerstrand scored 16 and 15 points, respectively, for the Warriors.

Middle River was just 11-for-49 from the field (22 per cent), while Warroad was 21-for-50 (42 per cent). The Skippers were 9-for-12 at the free throw line, where the Warriors were 7-for-11. Middle River out-rebounded taller Warroad 29-22, but also had more turnovers, 19-12.

Goodridge fell behind Gonvick-Trail 14-4 in the first quarter and never caught up Friday in losing a 65-31 contest to the Bulldogs.

Gonvick-Trail had a 37-12 halftime lead and owned a 53-19 third quarter spread.

"They were a better team than we were," acknowledged Goodridge coach John Rahn. "We played terrible."

Roger Coan was the only Goodridge scorer in double figures, netting 10 points. Keith Haugen led the winners with 15 points.

Both sides put up 56 shots, but Gonvick-Trail made 26 of them (46 per cent), while Goodridge sank only 11 of them (20 per cent). The Huskies were 9-for-16 at the free throw line, where the Bulldogs were 13-for-20.

Alvarado . . . . . . . . . . . . . 88
Plummer . . . . . . . . . . . . . 56

A dent was put in Plummer's fine season Saturday when the Cardinals dropped a lopsided 88-56 home court decision to Alvarado.

It was just the fourth loss in 14 starts for the Cardinals, who lost an earlier outing to the Indians, but by a narrow 56-54 margin back on Dec. 5.

"We weren't mentally prepared," said disappointed Plummer coach Jim Baron. "Our passing was just terrible."

Alvarado had quarter leads of 21-12, 38-26 and 58-38.

Plummer was 24-for-56 from the field (43 per cent), while Alvarado was 32-for-67 (48 per cent). The Indians had a big edge at the free throw line, sinking 24 of 31 attempts, while the Cardinals were 8-for-13. The foul situation didn't help matters much, noted Baron, who began to substitute freely in the second half when the Cardinals fell behind, the Alvarado fast break scored a bunch of points against the Plummer bench.

Marc Merrill of Alvarado led all scorers with 25 points, which included a 15-for-17 night at the free throw line. Shayne Freyholtz led Plummer with 18 points, while Neil Huotari netted 11 and John Fisher 10.

Alvarado had a big 32-13 rebound advantage and Plummer topped the turnover charts 25-11.

Grygla . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 47

Marshall County Central out-scored Grygla 30-13 in the fourth quarter to break open a close game, giving the host Nordies a 68-47 Friday night victory.

"We played well for three quarters, but they just wore us down," explained Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "They (MCC) played super in the fourth quarter."

Marshall County Central started with an 18-8 first quarter lead, but the Eagles cut the deficit to 29-26 at halftime, and were still within 38-34 when the third quarter ended. Three consecutive three-point plays by the Nordies keyed their fourth quarter explosion, which included a 17-6 run over the last two minutes.

Darin Rokke led the winners with 19 points, while Danni Halvorson had 16, Kelly Dahle 12 and Tom Bolstad 11. Thor Smerk and Jason Engelstad scored 14 and 10 points, respectively, for Grygla.

DNR NEWS

Nongame Wildlife Program in Minnesota celebrated its 10th anniversary with a special program Saturday, Feb. 7, at the James Ford Bell Museum of Natural History.

The program, which included experts in the nongame field, held the first national "Review of Minnesota's Nontraditional Wildlife Programs for Education, Research and Management," according to program coordinator and DNR Nongame Director Carrol Henderson.

"I expected us to be covering the entire range of nongame activities that have occurred in the state over the past 10 years, including a summary of our respective programs and a discussion of what we believe will happen during the next 10 years as well," Henderson said.

A number of presentors from a variety of nongame groups also added to the program from the Minnesota Herpetological Society, Project WILD, the Minnesota Bluebird Society, a Peregrine Falcon Reintroduction Project Exhibit, a Natural History Illustration and a program on bats and skinks in Minnesota.

"While we reflect on the last 10 years of progress for nongame in the state, we are also planning for improvement of nongame in the future," said DNR Nongame Planner Joan Galli. "We will be examining some practical priorities to follow in this effort, such as future funding, staffing, endangered species, habitat and the need for more cooperation between the DNR and various sportsmen's and nongame groups."

Galli explained that the program has come a long way in 10 years, with 10 staff members and an annual $800,000 budget gained through the support of citizen donations, especially through the state tax form's Nongame Wildlife "Chickadee Checkoff" Fund.

"The purpose of this conference was to bring everyone in the program up-to-date on our joint progress and consider where we will be going in the future. Our current goal is to substantially increase our budget if we can over the next two to five years so we might continue to grow and reasonably address all of our common resource needs."

She said the conference would also allow similar organizations to meet and learn more about what other citizen organizations are doing in this area.

Confiscated Fur Sold

Minnesota conservation officers along the North Shore recently reported selling $6,575 worth of confiscated fur. "This total amount reflects a sizable increase over fur sold in past years," according to conservation officer Allen Heidebrink.

Grand Marais and Silver Bay officers reported 123 pine marten, nine fisher, eight otter and one beaver turned in to them. Several more marten and fisher were turned in at Schroeder and Two Harbors. After the furs are received, bids are requested from fur buyers. This year's high bids averaged $40 for pine marten and $131 for fisher. Conservation officers praised the trappers for their excellent cooperation and their assistance in turning in most of the furs. The trappers who assist with the pelting receive 25 per cent of the sale price on the fur they pelt. Trapper cooperation is also useful in providing needed information used to determine populations, seasons and limits.

Record Number Deer Killed

Highest number of car-killed deer in the Twin Cities metropolitan area was recorded in 1986 by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

In the seven-county region, 2,818 deer were killed by accident, most of them by vehicles, according to Paul Rice, DNR Law Enforcement Supervisor for the metropolitan area Rice said the figure exceeded 1985 car-kills by almost 500 deer.

"The mild weather of December contributed to the high number of accidents, since more deer were able to move about freely," said Rice. "Also, more people are moving into the suburban area and creating more traffic, while the deer population remains high."

When a deer is killed by a motorist, the carcass may be salvaged by the driver or other interested party for a nominal fee. This must be handled through a conservation officer or other law enforcement agency. About half of the deer killed last year were sold this way, Rice said. Others were sold by the DNR to charities and civic organizations for use in benefit dinners.

Rice warned that the potential for accidents still exists because of the mild winter weather.

"Deer movement is highest in October, November and early December before the first heavy snowfall when most accidents occur," Rice said. "This year, however, we've had accidents all along."

Rice noted that serious injuries and fatalities have occurred in vehicle collisions with deer. He suggested several steps motorists can take to avoid deer-related accidents.

"First, when you see a deer by the roadside, slow down and watch for more since they usually travel in groups," he said. "Also, remember where you've seen deer in the past and pay attention to deer crossing signs, since they travel the same areas."

Rice said the risk of car-deer accidents will diminish if there is enough snowfall to reduce deer activity. That risk gradually picks up in the spring after the snow melts and deer start moving again.

DNR Receives Donation

Isabella Sportsmen's Club recently announced the donation of a $125 aerator to the Department of Natural Resources Finland Area Fisheries Headquarters.

DNR Regional Fisheries Supervisor Robert Strand of Grand Rapids said the heavy duty, one-third horsepower, 110 volt aerator will be installed in the fish holding tank recently constructed at the Finland Area Fisheries Office.

The tank is used to hold fish brought in from the state's hatcheries and from local rearing ponds, prior to their distribution and stocking in lakes and streams in the Finland Management Area.

"The equipment the club has furnished to us will allow optimum use of the new fish holding facility, resulting in a savings of mileage and manpower," Strand said. "This contribution is another fine example of the cooperation and support we have received from the Isabella Sportsmen's Club.

Arbor Day Program

Communities, elementary schools and non-profit, civic organizations can receive free seedlings from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources for the purpose of commemorating Arbor Day on April 24 and during May, which is officially celebrated as Arbor Month.

Under guidelines developed by the DNR the following ordering procedures will be followed:

- Only communities, elementary schools and non-profit civic organizations are eligible to receive seedlings at no cost.
- Under the guidelines, seedlings may only be used to establish or reforest woodlots, windbreaks and shelterbelts, erosion control, soil or water conservation, or permanent food and cover for wildlife. One exception is made, however, for elementary teachers who want each of their students to receive an individual seedling to take home. Only Norway Pine seedlings — the state tree — may be used for this purpose.
- DNR emphasizes that persons receiving these trees for free may not sell or give them away, except in a classroom setting.

Minnesota Forestry Association has a program whereby communities and school organizations can sell the trees as a fundraiser. Additional information on this program can be obtained by calling the Forestry Association office at (218) 326-4200.

"For additional questions or information on the Arbor Day Tree Program, call Meg Hanisch, Arbor Day DNR Coorddinator, (612) 296-5958.

Bass Opener Set

Bass anglers in the state were alerted recently that the second annual Governor's Bass Opener will be held in the Sauk River/Horseshoe chain of lakes near Cold Spring, Rockville and Richmond on May 30.

"The bass opener date was recently made official; and the organizations promoting this annual event are excited about the prospects for anglers to participate and enjoy themselves," said Bud Miller, chairman of the event.

Miller explained that the Minnesota Bass Federation is working together with the governor's office, the DNR, and area communities to make this year's tournament bigger and better than last year's inaugural event. He also noted that the Media Challenge Cup for media anglers will be "up for grabs," with the KSTP crew defending last year's traveling trophy for piscatorial prominence.

Anyone interested in getting more information on the opener may contact Bud Miller at (612) 867-6770.

State Tournament Time Near

It has not been unusual that Minnesota State High School League-sponsored state tournaments conducted during the month of March during the 1980's draw more than 300,000 spectators annually. 1987 should be no exception, says Larry Larson of the MSHSL office.

When the winter sports season state tournaments begin on March 5 and end March 28, championship events in the sports of wrestling, girls gymnastics, boys swimminng and diving, ice hockey, and girls and boys basketball will take place at sites in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Bloomington.

March state tournament time in Minnesota is a special time for many people. All 493 high schools who are members of the MSHSL catch its fever in some way.

Two of this year's tournaments are extra special in that wrestling and boys basketball events will be celebrating special anniversary years. 1987 marks the 50th year of wrestling and the 75th year of the state boys' basketball tournament.

Following is a preview of those upcoming state tournaments:

Wrestling

The 50th year of the state wrestling tournament is the first of six events to begin competition. The tournament since 1976 has been conducted in classes — Class AA and Class A.

Championships will be decided in both the team and individual tournaments March 5-7 at the St. Paul Civic Center Arena. The team dual meet format has been a very popular innovation since its beginning in 1975. So popular that other states have followed Minnesota's lead, including Illinois and reportedly Iowa this year.

Theme for the 50th anniversary of the state wrestling tournament is "Great Moments in Minnesota High School Wrestling . . . The Great Moments Continue." Special plans are being made to recognize the first state champions from 1937, in addition to other special honored guests.

Individual state titlists will be named once again in 12 weight categories in classes AA and A.

Apple Valley, champions three of the last four years in Class AA, is rated No. 1 again in 1987 and favored by many to capture another title trophy and appear in the finals for a fifth consecutive year.

Canby, who ended Staples' six-year reign as state team titlists in Class A last March, is the defending state champion. This year's Class A title appears up for grabs.

In the individual competition, nine wrestlers who won state titles in 1986 as underclassmen hope to repeat as state champions. One of them is senior Matt Demaray, Apple Valley, who will attempt to become the state's fourth four-time state champion since 1937. He has been wrestling at 155 pounds this season.

Other Class AA state champions hoping to win again are seniors Gary Clem, St. Francis (98 pounds in 1986); Mark Miley, Anoka (145); and Chris Short, Simley (185).

In Class A, the five wrestlers hoping to win another gold medal include senior Todd Bergeron, Oklee-Plummer (98); junior Cory Olson, Hayfield (126); senior Lloyd Wurm, Maple Lake (132); senior Terry Oschsendorf, Dawson-Boyd (167); and senior Chris Nelson, Grand Meadow-LeRoy-Ostrander (185).

Attendance at the state tournament a year ago was a record 63,395, marking the seventh straight time the total has surpassed the 50,000 mark.

There are 301 wrestling teams competing statewide in the interscholastic program in 1986-87. Forty-eight schools are involved in cooperative sponsorship programs. In all, 349 schools are registered with the MSHSL in wrestling.

Girls Gymnastics

Another state tournament to be conducted by the MSHSL during the first weekend in March will be the 13th annual state girls Class AA and Class A gymnastics meet.

Girls will compete for team championships in both classes on Friday, March 6, and will vie for top honors in all-around, vaulting, floor exercise, uneven parallel bars, and balance beam individual championships on Saturday, March 7, at the Minneapolis auditorium.

Class A competition each day is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., while Class AA performers will be in action from 6 to 9 p.m. each day.

State team champions a year ago were Lakeville in AA and Jackson in A.

New individual champions are certain in all AA events in 1987 as 1986 all-around winner, floor exercise and balance beam champion, Tana Call, New Prague, has graduated. Kelly Wilson, Lakeville, who won uneven parallel bars and vaulting last year, will not return.

In Class A, all-around and vaulting champion from 1986, Jody Wicks, St. Anthony Village, graduated. Three other individuals are hopeful of repeating state titles. They are Melanie Cowherd, a senior from Mahtomedi (uneven parallel bars); Jamie Anderson, a junior from Big Lake (balance beam); and Liza Swanson, a freshman from Breck (floor exercise).

Last year's state meet attendance was 8,193, just shy of the record total of 8,245 figure established in 1985.

There are 141 girls gymnastics teams competing statewide in interscholastic girls gymnastics during the 1986-87 season. Eighty-eight of those schools are assigned to Class AA and 53 are competing in Class A.

Hockey

Two more state tournaments dot the calendar during the second week in March. The first to get underway will be the 43rd annual state hockey tournament March 12-14.

Home of the tournament since 1976, the St. Paul Civic Center Arena will once again be filled with spectators. Total attendance for the three-day, six session, 11 game tournament is expected to topple 100,000 for the ninth consecutive year.

Burnsville, who last year became the state's first back-to-back state champion since Edina East won two in a row in the years 1978 and 1979, is one of 149 high school teams participating in interscholastic hockey during the 1986-87 season. Through mid-season Greenway (Coleraine), who last captured a state championship in 1968, was the state's top-rated team. The Raiders, along with the team from Proctor were the state's lone undefeated squads at mid-season.

First televised in 1959, the 1987 state hockey tournament will mark the second year that the MSHSL is involved in a three-year contract with WCCO-TV, Minneapolis (Channel 4). That station once again, as it has done the past four years, will carry all 11 games of the event.

First round quarterfinal pairings for the 1987 state tournament Thursday, March 12 are as follows: 12:05 p.m. — Section 1 vs. Section 2; 2:45 p.m. — Section 3 vs. Section 8; 7:05 p.m. — Section 6 vs. Section 7; 9:45 p.m. — Section 5 vs. Section 4.

Boys Swimming, Diving

Sixty-fourth annual state boys swimming and diving championships will be another event held during the second weekend in March. Two days of sell-out crowds will witness the action on Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14 at the Cooke Hall pool on the University of Minnesota campus in Minneapolis.

Edina, who won its fifth state title in 1986 lost eight seniors to graduation, but is expected to once again challenge for top honors this season. The always-strong Hornets totaled 167 points a year ago, the most since Golden Valley High scored 183 in 1972.

This year's team title appears up for grabs with perennial threat Burnsville and Minnetonka considered challengers in addition to other teams which could surprise.

Among the eight individuals who claimed titles in the various events last year, two swimmers hope to win gold medals again in 1987. They are juniors Paul Kaump, Rochester Mayo, and Rob Marshall, Burnsville. Kaump won the 100-yard backstroke event in 53.92, while Marshall was a victor in the 500-yard freestyle race with a 4:44.78 clocking. The other titlists from 1986 graduated.

Girls Basketball

Twelfth annual state Class AA and Class A girls basketball tournament takes over the tournament scene during the third week in March.

The three-day schedule finds the first day, Thursday, March 19, with quarterfinal games being played at two sites — the Minneapolis Auditorium (Class AA) and the Met Center in Bloomington (Class A). Eight teams in each class will win their way through district/subregion, and region tournament play to the state tournament.

Semifinal and championship games will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 20 and 21, at the Met Center. In a change from previous years, the format for semifinal games will change this year. Class AA semifinal games will be played Friday afternoon and Class A semifinal games are scheduled Friday evening. Previously, A games were Friday afternoon and AA games Friday night. Championship game sessions remain the same with A playing Saturday afternoon and AA Saturday evening.

The state tournament ranks among the top five in the nation in total attendance. Five of the last eight years final attendance figures have surpassed the 50,000 mark.

Scheduled to be televised all three days by KMSP-TV, Minneapolis (Channel 9), defending state champions include first-time winners St. Louis Park in Class AA and Midwest Minnesota (Clara City/Maynard High Schools) in Class A.

At mid-season during this 1986-87 campaign, Edina was the top rated AA team and Midwest Minnesota was atop the A poll.

First round pairings on Thursday, March 19, are as follows:

Class AA (Minneapolis Auditorium) — 1:20 p.m. — Region 3AA vs. Region 4AA; 3:20 p.m. — Region 2AA vs. Region 5AA; 7:20 p.m. — Region 7AA vs. Region 8AA; 9:20 p.m. — Region 1AA vs. Region 6AA.

Class A (Met Center) — 1:05 p.m.
— Region 3A vs. Region 6A; 3:00 p.m.
— Region 2A vs. Region 7A; 7:05 p.m.
— Region 4A vs. Region 5A; 9:00 p.m.
— Region 1A vs. Region 6A.

There are 472 girls basketball teams competing this season throughout Minnesota.

Boys' Basketball

Oldest of all MSHSL state tournament events, the state boys basketball tournament will celebrate its Diamond Jubilee 75th anniversary in 1987 as the event rounds out the March calendar of state tournaments for 1987.

Special honored guests and state tournament team reunions from years gone by will be a part of this year's event.

First day of quarterfinal competition for the eight teams in each class will take place on Thursday, March 26, at the St. Paul Civic Center Arena (Class AA) and Williams Arena (Class A).

Semifinal and championship games the next two days, Friday and Saturday, March 27 and 28, will be played in the St. Paul Civic Center Arena. In a change from previous years, the format for semifinal games will change this year. Class AA semifinal games will be played Friday afternoon and Class A semifinal games are scheduled for Friday evening. Previously, A games were Friday afternoon and AA games Friday night. Championship games sessions remain the same with A playing Saturday afternoon and AA Saturday night.

The year 1987 marks the 14th consecutive year the tournament will be conducted in the St. Paul facility, which was new in 1973.

Televised in its entirety since 1954, the always popular state boys' basketball tournament drew 86,036 spectators last year. KMSP-TV, Minneapolis (Channel 9) will televise all three days.

Defending Class AA state champion Bloomington Jefferson hopes to repeat as state titlist. Ranked second in polls thru mid-season the Jaguars were undefeated as was top ranked Minneapolis North. Other unbeatens at the midway point of the season were Woodbury and Marshall.

In Class A, defending state champion LeSueur returns a good nucleus and is hopeful of garnering another state torunament berth in 1987. Undefeated Hawley was the top ranked team in Class A at mid-season. Other state ranked unbeaten teams during the first half of the campaign were Litchfield, Stewartville, and Houston.

First round pairings on Thursday, Marcch 26, are as follows:

Class AA (SPCC Arena) — 1:05 p.m. — Region 1AA vs. Region 8AA; 3:00 p.m. — Region 4AA vs. Region 5AA; 7:05 p.m. — Region 3AA vs. Region 6AA; 9:00 p.m. — Region 7AA vs. Region 2AA.

There are 481 boys' basketball teams competing during the 1986-87 season throughout Minnesota.

Attendance

Six of the last seven years state tournament attendance figures during the six events held in March has surpassed the 300,000 total, missing only in 1982 when 298,828 persons attended the events.

In 1983, a record 315,151 fans were in attendance for the March state tournaments. Last year 304,439 spectators watched the events.

In 1986 state tournament attendance totals were as follows: hockey — 100,824; boys basketball — 86,036; wrestling — 63,395 (record); girls basketball — 43,425; girls gymnastics — 7,731; and boys swimming and diving — 2,162.

Tickets Available

Wildlife Shrub Packets Available Through State DNR

Department of Natural Resources, Division of Forestry, has added a second wildlife shrub packet to their list of tree planting stock. The Division of Wildlife assisted Forestry in the selection of the shrub species.

The packet contains 500 seedlings, consisting equally of Nanking Cherry, Wild Plum, Western Sandcherry, Juneberry, Red-osier Dogwood, Russian Olive, Cotoneaster, Ginnala Maple, Manchurian Crab, and Red Splendor Crab. Each packet will contain 50 of each species.

This combination is designed to provide a steady food supply for many kinds of wildlife. The species have also been selected because of their general ability to survive on a wide variety of soils. All species except the Ginnala Maple were contracted by the state nursery from private nurseries. Thus, the price is a little more expensive than other state tree planting stock.

All other species of tree planting stock are still available except White Cedar and Balsam Fir are sold out. Tree orders will be accepted through at least March 20, but it is recommended that your tree order be placed early to be assured of obtaining stock if desired.

There are cost share programs available through your A.S.C.S. office to help pay for a good portion of your total cost as an incentive to plant trees. If you desire a forestry tree planting stock order blank or have any questions concerning tree planting and-or cost share programs available, call the Division of Forestry at 425-7666 in Wannaska, 386-1304 in Warroad, 386-1671 in Clear River, or 294-6115 in Grygla.

Fish, Wildlife Group

Wright County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs joined the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance. The Alliance is the legislative arm of Minnesota's hunting, fishing and trapping community.

"When sportsmen's organizations join the Alliance, their volunteer participation adds real muscle to our ability to obtain the best legislative results for Minnesota hunters, trappers and fisherman," said Alliance president, Steve Akre.

The $16.2 million appropriated during the 1986 legislative session for the Re-Invest in Minnesota (RIM) program was a significant first step toward replenishing fish and wildlife habitat in Minnesota lands. But the biggest legislative challenge for Minnesota sportsmen in 1987 is to obtain adequate, long term funding for RIM.

"The Alliance was formed to work for all Minnesota sportsmen," Akre said. "We need the participation of every Minnesota sportsmen's club in order to reach our full legislative potential."

Wright County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs is made up of 13 smaller clubs in Wright County, giving the Federation a membership of 2,500 dedicated sportsmen. "We joined the Alliance because we want to be a part of the effort to establish a permanent RIM program," said Chuck Dahlberg, President of the Wright County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs. The Federation's representatives in St. Paul are Rep. Tony Onnen and Sen. Betty Atkins.

Statewide conservation organizations which belong to the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance are the Minnesota Deerhunters Association, Minnesota Sportfishing Congress, Minnesota State Archery Association, Minnesota Waterfowl Association, Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Foundation, Muskies, Inc., Pheasants Forever, Safari Club International, Turn In Poachers, Fish and Wildlife Employees Association, Minnesota Trappers Association, Minnesota Bowhunters, Inc., Ruffed Grouse Society and Southern Minnesota Conservation Association.

The Nordics had a 21-16 rebound edge, with Grygla getting just one offensive rebound, pointed out Johnson. "They kept us off the boards offensively," he noted. Grygla had 16 turnovers; Marshall County Central 15.

RECITALS

WHEREAS, The School District is authorized to issue tax anticipation certificates of indebtedness to provide money for school purposes in anticipation of the collection of taxes levied for such purposes under Minnesota Statutes, Sections 124.71 to 124.76; and

WHEREAS, Minnesota Statutes, Section 124.76, Subd. 2, authorizes the School District to issue the tax anticipation certificates of indebtedness herein authorized by negotiation and without advertisement for bids; and

WHEREAS, The Minnesota School Boards Association has endorsed the Minnesota School Districts Cash Flow Borrowing Program (the "Program") whereby participating school districts, by simultaneously issuing their tax anticipation obligations, may be able to reduce their debt service and issuance costs below what could be achieved if they issued separately; and

WHEREAS, The Program requires the execution and delivery of Certificates of Participation (the "Certificates of Participation" or "Certificates") evidencing proportionate interests in payments of principal and interest of the Notes, as hereinafter defined, issued by the school districts in anticipation of tax collections in connection with the Program; and

WHEREAS, The Program requires that each participating school district enter into a Trust Agreement with American National Bank and Trust Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, as trustee, in substantially the form presented to this Board and on file at the office of the Clerk; and

WHEREAS, as additional security for the holders of the Certificates of Participation, the payments by the participating school districts of their respective Notes will be secured by an irrevocable letter of credit (the "Letter of Credit") issued by The Sanwa Bank, Limited, acting through its New York Branch (the "Bank"); and

WHEREAS, The Bank has required that each participating school district enter into a Reimbursement Agreement with the Bank in substantially the form presented to this Board and on file at the office of the Clerk; and

WHEREAS, The maximum cumulative cash flow deficit of the School District and the certified levy for school purposes collectible in 1987 are shown on Exhibits A and B, respectively, attached hereto.

BE IT RESOLVED, by the School Board of Independent School District No. 564 Minnesota, as follows:

THE PROGRAM

1.1 This Board finds that it is desirable and expedient to participate in the Program and to simultaneously with other school districts issue its Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 (the "Notes") and to authorize the execution of and delivery of Certificates of Participation evidencing proportionate ownership interest in payments of principal and interest to be made by the School District in connection with the Notes. Subject to the provisions of Section 2.8 hereof, the Notes shall at all times be registered in the name of the Trustee and held by the Trustee for the benefit of the holders of the Certificates of Participation.

1.2. This Board hereby approves the forms of Trust Agreement, Letter of Credit and Reimbursement Agreement referred to above. The Trust Agreement and the Reimbursement Agreement shall be executed in the name and on behalf of the School District by the Chairman or in the absence of the Chairman, the Clerk, in substantially the form on file, but with all such changes therein, not inconsistent with law, as may be approved by the officer executing the same, which approval shall be conclusively evidenced by the execution thereof. Such changes may include changes requested by a rating service as a condition to a rating on the Certificates of Participation. Such changes in the Trust Agreement may provide for changes in certain terms of the Notes which will not have a material adverse effect on the School District, including changes in the time of day of maturity or for the performance of certain acts.

1.3. American National Bank and Trust Company is hereby appointed as trustee under the Trust Agreement and as the paying agent and registrar for the Certificates of Participation and as the authenticating agent, paying agent and registrar for the Notes under Minnesota Statutes, Chapter 475.

THE NOTES

2.1. Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood Incorporated and Morgan Stanley & Co. Incorporated (the "Purchasers") have stated an intention to make on or about February 19, 1987, an offer to purchase General Obligation Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 of the School District as set forth in the Proposal Form and Acceptance set forth as Exhibit C hereto, which, together with similar obligations of other school districts, are to be evidenced by the Certificates of Participation described in the Trust Agreement. Subject to the provisions of Section 2.8 hereof, the Notes shall at all times be registered in the name of the Trustee and held by the Trustee for the benefit of the holders of the Certificates of Participation. Such offer, if made, will be made by telephone communication to the Clerk or Chairman of the interest rate and purchase price. If the interest rate does not exceed 4.75 per cent per annum and the purchase price is not less than 99.5 per cent of the principal amount thereof, such offer is hereby determined to be a favorable proposal and the Chairman or Clerk is authroized to accept the same on behalf of the School District. The Purchasers shall specify the interest rate and the purchase price, and shall provide an estimate of the issuance costs to be paid by the School District, by telephone to the Chairman or Clerk. If the Chairman or Clerk determines to accept the offer, such officer shall record the interest rate and purchase price on the Proposal Form and Acceptance attached hereto as Exhibit C, shall execute the form of acceptance thereon and shall return a copy thereof to the Purchasers.

2.2. The Notes shall be in the aggregate principal amount of $1,550,000, shall be dated February 26, 1987, shall mature at 2:00 o'clock P.M. on February 26, 1988, and shall bear interest at the rate of interest communicated to the School District and recorded on the Proposal Form and Acceptance, which shall not exceed a maximum rate of 4.75 per cent per annum, payable at maturity on February 26, 1988, without option of prior payment. The Notes shall be numbered from R-1 upwards and may be issued in any denomination or denominations. The principal amount of the Notes shall be reduced if and to the extent necessary to obtain an approving legal opinion of bond counsel as to the legality thereof and the tax exempt status of interest thereon. Any Note which is a Bank Note, as defined in the Trust Agreement, shall bear interest at the Bank Rate, as defined in the Trust Agreement, for such time as it is a Bank Note.

2.3. The Notes are issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes levied for school purposes (excluding debt service levies) for collection in 1987 in an amount at least double the principal amount of the Notes. At least 90 per cent of the ad valorem taxes levied by the School District in each of the last three years has been collected and it is reasonably expected that at least 90 per cent of the ad valorem taxes levied in 1986 for collection in 1987 will be collected. The Notes are general obligations of the School District and the full faith and credit of the School District is hereby pledged to the full and prompt payment of the principal thereof and interest thereon.

2.4. The Notes, the form of certification by the authenticating agent and the provisions for assignment of the Notes shall be, respectively, in substantially the following form (the text of which may be typewritten or printed on the face, or on the back, or partly on the face and partly on the back):

Date of Original Issue: February 26, 1987
REGISTERED OWNER:
PRINCIPAL AMOUNT:

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS That Independent School District No. ____ (______), Minnesota, a public school corporation having its office in the City of ______, Minnesota, acknowledges itself to be indebted and for value received promises to pay to the registered owner specified above, or registered assigns, without option of prior payment, the principal sum specified above, by 2:00 o'clock P.M. on the maturity date specified above, and to pay interest thereon from the Date of Original Issue specified above until the principal amount is paid at the interest rate specified above, interest due and payable on the maturity date specified above. The Principal of this Note is payable upon presentation and surrender hereof at the office of American National Bank and Trust Company, in St. Paul, Minnesota, as Note Registrar, in any coin or currency of the United States of America which at the time of payment is legal tender for public and private debts. The interest on this Note is payable by check or draft mailed to the registered holder in whose name this Note is at the time registered at the address as it appears on the bond register maintained by the Note Registrar, except that if this Note is a Bank Note, as described below, interest shall be paid by wire transfer of immediately available funds to such office as the Bank or its nominee shall direct.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if this Note is a Bank Note, as defined in the Trust Agreement defined below, it shall, for such time as it is a Bank Note, bear interest at the Bank Rate defined in the Trust Agreement.

This Note is one of a duly authorized series in the aggregate principal amount of $____, all of like tenor and effect except as to serial number and denomination, issued to provide money for school purposes in anticipation of collection of taxes levied for such purposes, pursuant to and in full conformity with the Constitution and Laws of the State of Minnesota thereunto enabling, including Minnesota Statutes, Sections 124.71 to 124.76, as amended, and a resolution entitled a "Resolution Authorizing and Awarding Sale of General Obligation Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 and Fixing Form and Terms Thereof in Connection with the Minnesota School Districts Cash Flow Borrowing Program" duly adopted by the School Board of the School District (the "Resolution").

This Note is transferable, as provided by the Resolution, only upon books of the School District kept at the office of the Note Registrar, by the registered owner hereof in person or by his duly authorized attorney, upon surrender of this Note for transfer at the office of the Note Registrar, duly endorsed by, or accompanied by a written instrument of transfer in form satisfactory to the Note Registrar duly executed by, the registered owner hereof or his duly authorized attorney, and, upon payment of any tax, fee or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to such transfer, one or more fully registered Notes of the series of the same principal amount and interest rate will be issued to the designated transferee or transferees.

The Notes of this series are issuable only as fully registered notes without coupons in any denomination or denominations. As provided in the Resolution and subject to certain limitations therein set forth, the Notes of this series are exchangeable for a like aggregate principal amount of Notes of this series of a different authorized denomination, as requested by the registered owner or his duly authorized attorney upon surrender thereof to the Note Registrar.

The registered owner of this Note (other than the Bank described below) shall, on the maturity date described above (the "Purchase Date"), tender this Note to the Trustee described blow, as tender agent, for purchase at a purchase price equal to 100 per cent of the principal amount hereof plus accrued interest (the "Purchase Price") by delivering this Note, duly assigned to the Trustee, by 1:00 o'clock P.M. on the Purchase Date. Upon (i) due execution of the form of Assignment (or other written instrument of transfer) by the registered owner hereof (or his attorney duly authorized in writing), with guaranty of signature satisfactory to the Turstee, and (ii) delivery of this Note (so completed) to the Turstee, at the principal corporate trust office of the Trustee, in St. Paul, Minnesota, on the Purchase Date, the Trustee shall purchase this Note, at the Purchase Price, from a draw under the Letter of Credit (the "Letter of Credit") issued by The Sanwa Bank, Limited, a bank organized under the laws of Japan, acting through its New York Branch (the "Bank"), all as provided in the Trust Agreement among the School District, certain other school districts and American National Bank and Trust Company, in St. Paul, Minnesota, as trustee, the Letter of Credit and the Resolution. Owners who do not deliver their Notes shall not be entitled to any payment (including interest after the Purchase Date) other than the Purchase Price for such undelivered Notes and any undelivered Notes shall no longer be entitled to the benefits of the Trust Agreement or the Resolution, except for the purpose of payment of the Purchase Price therefor upon presentation and surrender of their Notes to the Trustee.

This Note is a general obligation of the School District, the full faith and credit of the School District having been pledged to the full and prompt payment of the principal hereof and interest hereon, but is primarily payable out of the proceeds of ad valorem taxes levied by the School Board of the School District in 1986 for collection in 1987, collections of which taxes are pledged and appropriated to the equal and ratable payment of the Notes and interest thereon as provided in the Resolution.

IT IS HEREBY CERTIFIED AND RECITED That prior to the issuance hereof the School Board of the School District duly levied taxes for school purposes (excluding debt service levies) for 1987 on all taxable property in the School District in an amount at least double the principal amount of the Notes of this series, exclusive of additional obligations authorized by Minnesota Statutes, Section 475.56; and that such taxes are in the process of collection and do not exceed any applicable constitutional or statutory limitation on the rate or amount of taxes which may be levied by the School District for school purposes.

IT IS FURTHER CERTIFIED AND RECITED That all acts, conditions and things required by the Constitution and Laws of the State of Minnesota to be done, to happen, and to be performed precedent to and in the issuance of this Note have been done, have happened and have been performed in regular and due form, time and manner as required by law; and that the issuance of this Note does not cause the indebtedness of the School District to exceed, any constitutional or statutory limitation of indebtedness.

This Note shall not be valid nor become obligatory for any purpose until it shall have been authenticated by the execution of the Authenticating Agent's Certificate.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, Independent School District No. ____ (______), Minnesota, by its School Board, has caused this Note to be executed in its behalf by the Chairman and Clerk of the School District, both by manual or facsimile signature, and by the manual signature of the Authenticating Agent, said School District having no corporate seal, all as of the Date of Original Issue specified above.

2.5. The principal of said Notes shall be payable at the office of American National Bank and Trust Company (the "Note Registrar") and interest on said Notes shall be mailed to the registered holders thereof at the addresses as they appear on the bond register maintained by the Note Registrar; and the School District shall pay the reasonable charges of said bank for its services as authenticating agent, transfer agent, paying agent and registrar.

2.6. The Notes shall be prepared under the direction of the Clerk of the School District, and when so prepared shall be executed on behalf of the School District by the manual or facsimile signatures of the Chairman and Clerk of the School Board, and by the manual signature of an authorized signature of the Note Registrar, which is hereby designated as the authenticating agent pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, Section 475.55, the School District having no official seal. The Notes shall originally be registered in the name of the Trustee and prepared in typewritten form. When the Notes shall have been so prepared and executed, they shall be delivered by the Clerk and Treasurer to the Trustee in exchange for the purchase price and upon receipt of the signed legal opinion of Faegre & Benson and Knutson, Flynn, Hetland & Deans (which may be a single opinion approving all tax anticipation obligations issued under the Program), and the Purchasers shall not be required to see to the proper application of the proceeds. The Trustee is authorized to deliver a certificate on behalf of the School District acknowledging receipt of the purchase price from the Purchasers.

2.7. As long as any of the Notes issued hereunder shall remain outstanding, the School District shall maintain and keep at the office of the Note Registrar an office or agency for the payment of the principal of and interest on such Notes, as in this Resolution provided, and for the registration and transfer of such Notes, and shall also keep at said office of the Note Registrar books for such registration and transfer. Upon surrender for transfer of any Note at the office of the Note Registrar with a written instrument of transfer satisfactory to the Note Registrar, duly executed by the registered owner or his duly authorized attorney, and upon payment of any tax, fee or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to such transfer, the School District shall execute and the Note Registrar shall authenticate and deliver, in the name of the designated transferee or transferees, one or more fully registered Notes of the same series, of any authorized denominations and of a like aggregate principal amount. The Notes, upon surrender thereof at the office of the Note Registrar may, at the option of the registered owner thereof, be exchanged for an equal aggregate principal amount of Notes of any authorized denominations. In all cases in which the privilege of exchanging Notes or transferring fully registered Notes is exercised, the School District shall execute and the Note Registrar shall deliver Notes in accordance with the provisions of this Resolution. For every such exchange or transfer of Notes, the School District or the Note Registrar may make a charge sufficient to reimburse it for any tax, fee or other governmental charge required to be paid with respect to such exchange or transfer, which sum or sums shall be paid by the person requesting such exchange or transfer as a condition precedent to the exercise of the privilege of making such exchange or transfer. Except as described below in Section 2.8 in the event of an exchange of Certificates of Participation for Notes, the cost of preparing each new Note upon each exchange or transfer, and any other expenses of the School District or the Note Registrar incurred in connection therewith (except any applicable tax, fee or other governmental charge) shall be paid by the School District.

2.8. The Certificates of Participation, upon surrender thereof at the office of the Note Registrar may, at the option of the registered owner thereof, be exchanged for Notes in an aggregate principal amount equal to the percentage interest held by the registered owner of the Certificates of Participation in the Notes as indicated on such Certificates of Participation. The School District shall execute and the Note Registrar shall authenticate and deliver (a) one Note in the name of the registered owner of the Certificates of Participation requesting the exchange and (b) one Note in the name of the Trustee in the aggregate principal amount equal to the balance of the Notes held by the Trustee and represented by outstanding Certificates of Participations, of the same series and of any authorized denomination. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Resolution, the cost of preparing new Notes upon each exchange requested by a registered owner of a Certificate of Participation, and any other expenses of the School District or the Note Registrar or Trustee incurred in connection therewith (including fees of bond counsel or other legal counsel, any applicable tax or other governmental charge) shall be paid by the registered owner of the Certificate of Participation requesting the exchange as a condition precedent to the exercise of the privilege of making such exchange.

2.9. Interest on any Note which is payable, and is punctually paid or duly provided for, on February 26, 1988 shall be paid to the person in whose name that Note (or one or more Notes for which such Note was exchanged) is at the time registered. Each Note delivered under this Resolution upon transfer of or in exchange for or in lieu of any other Note shall carry all the rights to interest accrued and unpaid, and to accrue, which were carried by such other Note and each such Note shall bear interest from such date that neither gain nor loss in interest shall result from such transfer, exchange or substitution.

2.10. As to any Note, the School District and the Note Registrar and their respective successors, each in its discretion, may deem and treat the person in whose name the same for the time being shall be registered as the absolute owner thereof for all purposes and neither the School District nor the Note Registrar nor their respective successors shall be affected by any notice to the contrary. Payment of or on account of the principal of any Note shall be made only to or upon the order of the registered owner thereof, but such registration may be changed as above provided. All such payments shall be valid and effectual to satisfy and discharge the liability upon such Note to the extent of the sum or sums so paid.

2.11. The Trustee is hereby appointed the tender agent and is authorized and directed to perform the duties and obligations of the tender agent under the Trust Agreement and this Resolution with respect to the Notes.

2.12. The Notes are subject to mandatory tender on the maturity date thereof and the registered owner of any Note (other than the Bank) shall, by 1:00 o'clock P.M. on the maturity date of the Note (the "Purchase Date") tender such Note to the Trustee for purchase at a purchase price equal to 100 per cent of the principal amount of such Note plus accrued interest (the "Purchase Price"). Such owner or his duly authorized agent must (i) duly execute and complete the assignment (or other written instrument of transfer) together with a signature guaranty satisfactory to the Trustee, and (ii) deliver the Note and Assignment (or other written instrument of transfer), with signature guaranty, to the Trustee, at its principal corporate trust office in St. Paul, Minnesota, on the Purchase Date. The Trustee's determination as to whether the Note has been properly delivered, accompanied by a written instrument of transfer and signature guaranty, shall be binding upon the registered owner of such Note and the School District. The Trustee shall purchase the tendered Notes from the proceeds of a draw under the Letter of Credit in an amount equal to the Purchase Price. Upon receipt of the Notes so delivered and payment to the registered owners therefor, the Trustee shall authenticate a new Note or Notes of authorized denominations and in the principal amount of the Notes so purchased as provided in this Resolution, which shall be registered in the name of or as directed by the Bank.

2.13. There is hereby created a special account within the General Fund, to be known as the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 Account. All second-half collections, due to be received by the School District in November through December of 1987, of taxes levied by the School District for its school purposes pursuant to its Resolution duly adopted by the School Board to levy taxes in 1986 for collection in 1987, shall be deposited promptly when received in the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 Account; and on or before January 1, 1988, any other funds in an amount sufficient, together with the balance in said Account, to pay principal and interest on the Notes at maturity shall be deposited in said Account and used for no other purpose than to make the required deposit in the Debt Service Account of the School District established under the Trust Agreement as provided below and as provided in the Trust Agreement. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the full amount of the required deposit in the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness Account shall be made immediately upon the written direction of the Trustee if an Event of Default has occurred under the Reimbursement Agreement because the warranty and representation made by the School District pursuant to Section 6.14 of the Reimbursement Agreement is false or misleading in any material respect. Moneys on deposit to the credit of said Account may be invested by the School District in any securities eligible for investment of School District funds ("Qualified Investments") maturing or redeemable at the option of the School District prior to three business days prior to the maturity of the Notes. Obligations so purchased shall be deemed at all times to be part of said Account, but may from time to time be sold or otherwise converted into cash whereupon the proceeds derived from such sale or conversion shall be credited to the Account. Any interest accruing on and any profit realized from such investment shall be credited to the Account. Moneys and investments to the credit of the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 Account in excess of the amounts required to be transferred to the Debt Service Account referred to below may be applied by the School District to any other lawful purpose. The School District shall verify the amount on hand in said Account and the place and manner of investments of said Account within five days of receipt of a written request from the Trustee requesting such information.

2.14. There is created under the Trust Agreement a special fund, to be known as the Debt Service Account of the School District. At least three business days prior to the maturity of the Notes, an amount in the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 Account sufficient to pay principal of and interest on the Notes at maturity shall be deposited into the Tax Anticipation Certificates of Indebtedness of 1987 Fund, and applied in the manner provided in the Trust Agreement.

2.15. The proceeds of the Notes, exclusive of accrued interest, shall be used for school purposes and invested in Qualified Investments pending the expenditure thereof. THE CERTIFICATES

3.1. The Trustee is authorized and directed to execute and deliver the Certificates of Participation on the School District's behalf, pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement, in the aggregate principal amount specified in the Trust Agreement and substantially in the form and otherwise containing the provisions set forth in the form of the Certificate of Participation contained in the Trust Agreement, which terms and provisions are hereby approved and incorporated in this Resolution and made a part hereof.

3.2. The Certificates of Participation shall be executed by the Trustee in accordance with the Trust Agreement. When so prepared and executed, the Certificates of Participation shall be delivered to the Purchasers upon payment of the purchase price thereof, pursuant to the terms of the Trust Agreement.

MISCELLANEOUS

4.1. The officers of the School District are hereby authorized and directed to prepare and furnish to the Purchasers of the Notes and to the attorneys approving the same, certified copies of all proceedings and records of the School District relating to the power and authority of the School District to issue said Notes and to execute and deliver the Trust Agreement and the Reimbursement Agreement and certificates as to matters within their knowledge or as shown by the books and records under their custody and control, including a no-litigation certificate, a no-arbitrage certificate, a certificate of the Clerk as to the Official Statement, and such certified copies and certificates shall be deemed representations of the School District as to the facts stated therein.

4.2. The Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to certify a copy of this Resolution and to cause the same to be filed in the office of the County Auditor of each county in which the School District is located under Minnesota Statutes, Section 475.63, and to obtain a certificate as to registration of the Notes.

4.3. The officers of the School District are hereby authorized and directed to prepare and submit to the Secretary of the Treasury a statement meeting the information reporting requirements of Section 149(e) of the Code by the 15th day of the second calendar month after the close of the calendar quarter in which the Notes are issued.

The Clerk is authorized to approve the form of the Official Statement and to deliver a certificate as to the Official Statement to the Purchaser.

4.5. The School District hereby designates the Notes to be "qualified tax-exempt obligations" for the purposes of Section 265 of the Code and finds that the reasonably anticipated amount of qualified tax-exempt obligations (other than private activity bonds) which will be issued by the School District during the calendar year 1987 does not exceed $10,000,000.

4.6. This Board finds that the exception for small governmental units available under Section 148(f) (C) of the Code is applicable to the Notes because (i) the School District has general taxing powers, (ii) the Notes are not private activity bonds under Section 141(a) of the Code, (iii) ninety-five percent or more of the net proceeds of the Notes are to be used for local governmental activities of the School District and (iv) the aggregate face amount of all tax-exempt bonds (other than private activity bonds) which will be issued by the School District during the current calendar year is not reasonably expected to exceed $5,000,000.

Dr. Mestery Will Join Staff At Valley Medical

Falls Clinic of Thief Rver Falls, a division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd., has announced that Dr. Donald S. Mestery will be relocating to Valley Medical Associates in Grand Forks, ND. The move by Dr. Mestery will take place in July. Valley Medical Associates is also a division of Dakota Clinic, Ltd.

Dr. Mestery has been an internal medicine specialist with the Falls Clinic since July 1, 1978.

Arnold Carriere, regional manager for Dakota Clinic, Ltd., said there is concern about the loss of the services of someone of Dr. Mestery's abilities but "it is felt that this is a positive move for the network in establishing the internal medicine department at Valley Medical."

Efforts are currently underway to recruit an internal medicine specialist to replace Dr. Mestery on the local clinic staff with anitcipation that this will be accomplished by this summer. Doctors Jim Langland and Richard Heinrichs will continue to provide internal medicine services for patients as needed, Carriere said.

He stated that at this time Dr. Mestery is the only local physician making such a move and that this is not a negative reflection on the merger of Falls Clinic with Dakota Clinic, Ltd., since the transfer is to another location within the Dakota network.

"Ridge Road Sisters" Hit Recording Trail

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Encouraged by the success of their first recording "Nashville For Daddy," Kari and Shelly Mae Moen of rural Viking plan on heading back to the country music capital in the next few days to record two or four other songs. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Helm of rural Newfolden and members of the family band called "Wildwood Flower."

"Nashville For Daddy" is a song written from the heart, according to Kari, who wrote the lyrics and music. It tells the story of her father's dream of going to Nashville to perform and the shattering of that dream when the farm economic situation caused the loss of his farm.

Unable to pursue his dream, he transfers his wishes to his daughters who carry on the dream. "He carries his dream deep down in our hearts" is repeated in the song.

The girls recorded their song at Reflection Studio in Nashville and it was released on the Kings Records label. Recently the record was just eight points from being included on the Billboard 100 chart, based on number of times it was played at stations which received it for radio play.

Inspiration for writing and recording the song came after Bill Helm's band, "The Country Four" provided some back-up playing and singing for Red Sovine during his appearance at the Meadowbrook ballroom at Middle River in 1979. It wasn't completed until hard times came down strong on farming and the hopes Bill had for advancement in the music business looked more and more like a faded dream.

"We hope that many people can relate to it in some way," Kari says about the song. The "Wildwood Flower" band performs some of Kari's music during most of its engagements which now are the primary source of income for the family. The record is on sale at Larson Music company in Thief River Falls.

While Kari and Shelly Mae — who call themselves the "Ridge Road Sisters" — do solo work, they feel their best chance for success is as a team. Groups are currently popular in country music and the Judds have carved a niche for female vocal duos.

They thank the local sponsors from the community who assisted them with the last trip to Nashville and are appreciative of the disc jockeys and music directors at radio stations around the country who have played their record.

Their promoter, Louis Wright of Pioneer Enterprises in Nashville, has a lot of encouragement for the girls. He is working with them in an effort to make appearances at Dolly Parten's "Dollywood" which is opening this summer in Tennessee and on the Nashville Jubilee.

"Nashville For Daddy" was released in November to 375 radio stations and has had current popular play on the West Coast and in North Carolina and Virginia. Studio musicians providing instrumentation for the record included Binky Keels, Steve Chapman, Bill Johnson, Tom Floyd and D.J. Fontana.

"RIDGE ROAD SISTERS" Kari (left) and Shelly Mae Moen have enjoyed modest success with their recording of "Nashville For Daddy" which recently lacked only eight points of reaching the Billboard 100 chart of top country recordings. The girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Helm of rural Newfolden and are married to brothers Lance and Lee Moen of Viking. Kari graduated in 1982 and Shelly Mae in 1986 from Marshall county central high school in Newfolden. Country music has been a part of their lives since they were infants and they both play and sing with the family band called "Wildwood Flower."

Talent of the Helm family is primarily home grown. Bill's dad — Lloyd Helm of Newfolden — plays fiddle and guitar. Except for a few piano lessons and one year of guitar lessons for Kari, the sisters have mostly picked up their music on their own. Kari plays rhythm guitar and Shelly Mae plays bass and rythm, depending on the songs performed. Kari is now working on the banjo and the girls vocalize on most of the numbers the band plays.

Almost every Thursday the group gets together to practice new songs and get ready for weekend engagements. "Wildwood Flower" has played at most area towns including Thief River Falls, Warroad, Greenbush, Lancaster, Roseau, Newfolden, Fosston, Bemidji, Middle River, Stephen and Warren. They performed for three nights with Marvin Rainwater at Goodridge and Trail and have also had jobs in Grand Forks and Drayton, ND, and in Canada.

Shelterbelts Can Help Cut Down Field Erosion

Wind velocities in an open field can be reduced by about 40 per cent, according to conservationists with the U.S. Soil Conservation service (SCS). Winds of 15 to 30 miles per hour are not uncommon and could cause severe soil erosion losses during March and April Soil erosion begins on bare fields when wind speeds reach nine miles per hour at ground level or 13 miles per hour one foot above the ground. The soil particles which move contain 10 to 20 times more nutrients than the heavier soil particles which remain in the field.

Barriers such as single row field windbreaks can reduce wind velocities by 40 per cent and reduce crop losses.

Andy And Mollie Are Avid Prowler Sports Fans

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

To say Andy Williamson knows a thing or two about Lincoln high school athletics is like saying the Pope knows a little about Catholicism. And to say his wife Mollie enjoys watching high school activities is like saying bees have a fondness for nectar.

Andy has been a local high school sports fan for 70 years, ever since he was a student in 1916. Mollie has joined him in that interest since their marriage April 6, 1929. Together they have seen many hundreds of Thief River Falls high school and community college sporting events as well as student concerts, plays and musicals.

"I'm probably the best loser in the world," Mollie says. "I can enjoy a game for the good plays without being too concerned about the score at the end. But Andy, now, he takes winning for the Prowlers a little more seriously."

Andy doesn't argue with that assessment. He likes to see the home team do well, although he also appreciates good play by any team. But he has always had a more competitive nature and gained strong attachment to Lincoln high school athletics through his high school years. Later that attachment was reinforced by pride in state tournament teams from Thief River Falls and involvement of the Williamson's own three sons in high school sports.

Over the years Andy and Mollie haven't missed many home contests by the Prowlers or Northland teams, but their interest hasn't been at all confined to the local gyms or athletic fields. Beginning in 1949 they attended 25 consecutive state high school basketball tournaments in Minneapolis as well as two in Wisconsin where their grandson participated.

Since 1945 when the Prowlers lost 4-3 to Eveleth in the championship of the first state high school hockey tournament, the Williamson's attended more than 25 state hockey tournaments. One of these provided the most memorable of all the sporting events they have seen. It was the Prowlers' 1955 opening round 3-2 loss to Minneapolis South in a game that went 11 overtimes — still a state tournament record.

They saw the University of Minnesota play in the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, CA, in 1961 (they still have the ticket stubs), witnessed the All-Star baseball game and the sixth game of the World Series at Metropolitan stadium in Minneapolis in 1965, took in the U.S. Open golf tournament in Minneapolis in 1970 and the NCAA basketball tournament at the Metrodome last March.

Originally from Minneapolis, Andy moved to Thief River Falls with his family when in junior high school. He was too small for high school sports, although he played baseball in the summer, but his size didn't diminish his intense interest in athletics.

For 12 years after high school graduation in 1919 he worked for the Soo Line railroad in its car department by the roundhouse on Dewey avenue. He then went into business by purchasing a corner grocery store on Duluth avenue. That venture lasted only a year before he and his sister, Bladys Olen, purchased a shoe store called "The Booterie" on LaBree avenue, next to the Falls Theatre (now Falls Mall). In 1941 the store was moved across the street to the Lieberman building where it operated as "The Fashion Shop." Andy retired from the clothing business in 1969.

Mollie was born at Valley City, ND, and came to Thief River Falls by way of Greenbush. She graduated from Lincoln high school in 1920, then attended Minneapolis General Hospital school of nursing and graduated in 1923. After two years of working in Minneapolis she came back to Thief River Falls as a registered nurse at the Oakland Park tuberculosis sanitarium.

The Willaimsons were active in Boy Scout work (all three sons earned Eagle scout rank) and in Trinity Lutheran church where Andy served on the council and Mollie taught Sunday school for 16 years. Andy also served two terms on the local board of education and Mollie chaired the pre-school round-up for [illegible] years.

The Williamson's oldest son, Allan, was called "Big Al" when he starred at Lincoln at six feet, one inch tall. He participated in football, basketball, baseball and track for three years, graduating in 1949 after winning several first places in regional track competition. He went on to set high jump records at the University of

ANDY AND MOLLIE Williamson have been watching Thief River Falls Lincoln high school sports contests together for nearly 58 years. Andy has been a Prowler follower for 70 years, ever since he took an interest as a student in 1916. They were married in 1929 and their three sons were all Lincoln high school athletes. The Williamsons don't confine their interest to sports or to Lincoln. They attend many Northland college games and most student concerts, plays and musicals as well.

State Ranks 5th In Production Of Honey In 1986

Minnesota ranked fifth nationally in 1986 honey production, behind North Dakota, California, South Dakota and Florida. The state produced 10.6 million pounds of honey (as measured by producers with five or more hives.) The U.S. production for 1986 amounted to 200 million pounds. Previous year comparisons are not available because USDA discontinued honey estimates from 1981 to 1985.

The number of colonies in Minnesota was 136,000 while U.S. colonies totaled 3.2 million. Yield per colony for Minnesota averaged 78 pounds while the U.S. average was 62.5 pounds per colony.

Minnesota producers received an average of 46 cents per pound for honey sold in 1986, resulting in an estimated value of production of $4.9 million. The U.S. value of production is estimated at $103.2 million, with an average price of 51.3 cents per pound. Prices are based on sales to private processors, co-ops and retail sales by producers and exclude all government payments and loans.

Minnesota held 636,000 pounds of honey stocks as of December 15, 1986 (six per cent of the 1986 production). The U.S. held 27.2 million pounds, or 13.6 per cent of the U.S. production.

The U.S. honey prices by color class are: Water White, Extra White and White, 49.5 cents; Extra Light Amber, 53.8 cents, Light Amber, Amber and Dark Amber, 52 cents; and all other honey, 53.6 cents.

Andy And Mollie Are Avid Prowler Sports Fans

North Dakota in Grand Forks. He also earned a master's degree in accounting there and is now executive vice president of Banta Publishing company in Neenah, WI.

Bruce, the second son in the family, confined most of his high school athletic efforts to basketball and graduated in 1952. He was a member of the Prowler team that lost by one point to Halstad for the regional championship in what Mollie describes as the most emotional game she has ever been involved with watching. Holder of a Ph. D. degree from the University of Minnesota, he teaches mathematics at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls.

Daryl, an avid golfer, also played basketball his senior year at Lincoln before graduating in 1957. He earned his M.D. degree from the University of Minnesota medical school and is now a radiologist at St. Joseph's hospital in St. Paul.

Athletics have provided a lot of memories for Andy and Mollie. He recalls that Lincoln had a strong football team and very good basketball team back in 1916. The basketball team won the region and went to the state tournament at Carleton college in Northfield but lost in the first round.

The 1930 basketball team lost to Moorhead in the regional tournament at Benson, and Moorhead went on to win the state title. In 1932 the regional championship was played at Bemidji and a special train carried about 160 local fans to that eastern city to watch their team win. The team also won the state tournament, a feat repeated by the 1938 team. The 1939 Prowlers won the region tourney but lost in state competition.

Williamson's collection of sports memorabilia includes a clipping from the Times when the Prowlers entered the first state high school hockey tournament. Sports editor Huck Olson reporteed on the Prowlers' regional wins over Williams 8-4 and Roseau 3-1. Scoring for Thief River falls in the championship game were Swede Lund, Bob Baker and Wes Hovie while Rube Bjorkman had Roseau's only goal. The mythical all-regional team included Baker at defense and Les Vigness of Thief River Falls at wing.

Andy had a heart attack in 1981 and spent about a week in the hospital before recuperating at home. He is now among those who exercise regularly by walking at the sports arena in the winter and around the neighborhood in warmer weather.

The Williamsons quit attending the high school basketball tournament when the state high school league adopted the Class A and AA system. But they did attend the state high school hockey tournament in 1985. Will they go again this year?

"We haven't ruled it out yet," Andy smiled. "You know, they are a lot of fun!"

(NOTE: Don't be surprised to see Andy and Mollie at the Lincoln gym Friday when the Prowler girls try for a 20-0 regular season with a win against Fergus Falls. They like to be where the sports action is.)

Auto Expenses Of Personal Car May Be Deductible

Taxpayers who use their personal automobiles for business, charitable work, medical transportation, or to move their family or household may be eligible for a mileage deduction. Different rates per mile apply, depending on the purpose of the trip.

For certain taxpayers who use their automobiles for business, employment, work-related educational pursuits or transportation between jobs, the IRS allows an income tax deduction of 21 cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles and 11 cents a mile thereafter. The 11-cent rate is also used for automobiles that are fully depreciated. According to IRS, a car is fully depreciated after 60,000 business miles at the maximum rate.

IRS allows a deduction of 12 cents a mile when a car is used for charitable work, such as church work, soliciting for charitable foundations, and similar qualified errands.

H & R Block also adds that a nine cent a mile deduction applies whenever a taxpayer uses his automobile for medical, dental and hospital transportation, or, more simply stated, to and from the doctors' offices or to and from the hospital.

The IRS standard rate for computing deductions for family and household moving expenses is also nine cents a mile.

New Pastor At SDA Church In TRF And Crookston

Mark Luckiesh, who is currently pastoring in Broken Bow, NE, has accepted the call to pastor the Crookston and Thief River Falls Seventh-day Adventist churches. The announcement was made last week by Elder Lee Huff, president of the Minnesota conference of Seventh-day Adventists in a phone conversation with the local church's head elder, Duane Madden.

Pastor Luckiesh and his wife Shirley, who are expected to arrive in the district in mid-March will fill the vacancy left by Pastor David Girardin who joined the Navy Chaplain Corps in mid-July last year.

Presentations were made by SWCD staff, the soil conservation service (SCS) state office, and the state and national associations of conservation districts. Dr. James Connolly of the University of Minnesota, a consultant with the SWCB, outlined the public responsiblities of a SWCD supervisor.

Forage Testing Important Part Of Dairy Farming

Next to putting his herd on a DHIA production testing program, the most profitable investment a dairy farmer can make is in forage-testing services, according to John Halvorson, general manager of Minnesota DHIA, Buffalo, a dairy-farmer-owned organization that began providing forage-testing services in mid-1986.

The tests provide information on the true nutrient value of feeds such as hay, grain and silage.

"Guessing at the nutrient content of farm-grown feed means wasting feed by either overfeeding or underfeeding protein and other essentials," Halvorson says.

"Overfeeding means you've wasted the feed; underfeeding means you've wasted a cow's genetic ability to produce. You lose either way," he explains.

Dairy nutritionists agree that a dairy farmer's greatest potential for reducing herd expenses and generating greater profit is in testing forages regularly and balancing rations accordingly.

DHIA offers forage-testing services through test supervisors throughout Minnesota, who have sampling probes and prepaid sample mailers. Both information and prepair sample mailers are also available from Minnesota DHIA, 134 Lake Boulevard, Buffalo, MN 55313.

Soo Line Reports $38.2 Million In 4th Quarter Loss

Soo Line corporation had a net loss of $38.2 million or $4.02 per share in the fourth quarter of 1986, largely as a result of a $73 million pre-tax restructuring charge taken during the period, according to Dennis M. Cavanaugh, chairman and chief executive officer.

The quarter loss compares to a year-earlier net loss of $3.6 million or 47 cents per share in which there were no restructuring charges.

Soo Line would have reported approximately breakeven results for the fourth quarter without the restructuring charge, Cavanaugh said. Operating income would have been $4.8 million compared to an operating loss of $1.3 million in 1985. Other income-net for the quarter was up significantly due to a $4.9 million dividend received on Soo's investment in Trailer Train company.

Revenues in the fourth quarter were $150.1 million, seven per cent lower than in 1985, primarily as a result of lower revenue per unit. Carloads of traffic handled during the fourth quarter were up two per cent from the prior year's quarter. There were gains in movement of grain and cloal and declines in forest products, paper, food and automotive areas. Intermodal units handled for the quarter were up two per cent from the prior year.

Operating expenses for the 1986 quarter were favorably impacted by continued employment reductions and low fuel prices. Income tax benefits for the quarter were reduced by $1.1 million due to a reversal of 1986 investment tax credits accrued through September 30 which were eleminated under the new tax legislation.

The size of the quarter loss is directly attributable to a previously announced $73 million charge, part of a planned program to reduce Soo's freight car fleet and make further employment reductions. The charge includes $19 million related to 5,200 surplus freight cars which are part of Soo's 23,000 car fleet.

Also in the charge is $54 million in separation and other costs which will occur as the workforce is reduced by about 800 additional employees. Approximately $5 million of such employment costs were committed in the fourth quarter and a significant portion of the owned cars have already been retired and put up for sale.

For the year 1986, the corporation had a net loss of $43.3 million or $4.56 per share compared to a loss of $8.7 million or $1.14 per share in 1985. Revenues for the year were $632 million including $613 million from transportation operations and $19 million from real estate.

Total carloads handled for the year were down five per cent from 1985. Movement of grain for the period was up ten per cent and coal was up six per cent. Intermodal units handled for the year were up nine per cent from 1985.

Soo's year 1986 results reflect several significant factors beyond the fourth quarter restructuring charge. Third quarter was impacted by a $9 million charge to operating expense due to employee reduction programs, and income in the second quarter included real estate revenues of $9.7 million from the sale of the corporation's Minneapolis headquarters building.

OUR AGENCY WOULD HAVE LOVED TO INSURE
"HONEST ABE"!

The story goes that when Abraham Lincoln was a lawyer in Illinois he made a habit of letting the fire in his wood-burning stove die on Saturday night while he slept. Come Sunday, he would check the stove for cracks or loosened joints that might allow embers to fall through onto the floor. He would also reach up into the stovepipe and measure how much soot and black creosote had built up during the week. If this flammable residue was too thick, he would hire a chimney sweep to clean the entire system.

A friend who was staying with Mr. Lincoln woke up one wintery Sunday to discover his host carefully examining a cold stove that should have been heating the very cold house. "How can you tolerate this cold?" asked the visitor. Mr. Lincoln glanced up from the stove, "I'll gladly suffer the cold once a week for the rest of my life if it will only prevent me from enjoying one house fire."

In his day, Lincoln knew that faulty or dirty stoves and fireplaces were a common cause of house fires. This is still true today, and since the nation's energy consciousness was aroused a decade ago, a growing number of homes burn down each year in stove-related fires.

Our agency is confident that our insured's are every bit as safety conscious as "Honest Abe" was in his day.

As a precautionary measure, just to be certain that your woodburning unit is installed properly — we invite you to stop in and pick up your free copy of a booklet entitled "Fire Safety In Wood Heating [illegible]

Tips To Avoid Tax Error Given By IRS Director

Now that the filing season is underway, here are some tips for avoiding the common errors found on tax returns filed by people in Minnesota, according to C. D. Switzer, district director of the IRS in Minnesota.

Most errors are those of haste such as using figures from the wrong tax table, math errors in totalling your itemized deductions or getting the right figure on the wrong line. Mistakes such as these often result in delayed refunds, Switzer said.

You can avoid delays in your federal tax refund by rechecking your return a day or so after you complete it. Double check your math for accuracy and make sure your figures are on the correct line.

Finally, the IRS recommends that you file your return as early as possible. People who get an early start make fewer errors that can result in refund delays.

FFA Week Will Be Observed In Nation Feb. 21-28

More than 430,000 FFA members will promote FFA, high school agriculture and the food and fiber industry during National FFA Week, February 21-28.

FFA members in 8,000 chapters across the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands will organize events and activities to create awareness of and support for high school agriculture and the FFA.

This year's theme is "FFA — Leaders for the New Fields of Agriculture," with emphasis on "Excellence Made in the FFA."

High school agriculture classes stress hands-on practice in many diverse areas of agriculture, and FFA activities provide leadership development, communications training and award incentives for these young people.

Kevin Eblen, national FFA president from Creston, Iowa, said FFA Week is the chance for members and communities to recognize the achievements and activities available through FFA and high school agriculture.

"We're proud of this commitment to young people and agriculture. As FFA members, and students in agriculture classes, we are receiving the business, science and leadership skills we need to prepare for the diverse and challenging careers in agriculture," Eblen said

Each year FFA Week is held during the week of George Washington's birthday to recognize his leadership and commitment to American agriculture. The National FFA center is located on part of the old Washington estate near Alexandria, VA

Fast Times Seen At Annual Goodridge Snowmobile Race

Goodridge Jaycees sponsored a 100 mile cross country snowmobile race last weekend. Mike Sinieja of Royalton ran the fastest time of the day in the Heartland Racing sanctioned event on a 1985 Polaris Indy 600 with a time of 79.37 minutes.

The 10th annual event drew a record—104—racers and a record crowd also, according to race organizers. This year the track had about 12 miles per lap of riding on the river. Race organizers said the track was the fastest it has ever been. Each class, except masters, powder puff and kitty kat racers, went three laps around the track, which added up to about 100 miles of racing.

The event was a fund raiser for the community but payback and trophies were awarded to the first three places in each class. Payback was made for the first five places in any class with 10 or more racers.

In the masters division: Roger Skime of Thief River Falls on a 1987 Arctic El Tigre 6000 placed first in a time of 55.22; Ralph Wilde of Thief River Falls on a 1985 Polaris 600 Indy placed second with a time of 59.50; and Richard Parnow of Goodridge on a 1986 Polaris 400 Indy placed third with a time of 60.70. The masters raced twice around the track.

In the Powder Puff division: LaRae Barret of Roseau on a 1985 Polaris 340 placed first with a time of 32.92; Barb Loe of Walker on a 1984 Polaris Trail Indy placed second with a time of 35.25; and Andrea Dobson of Clearbrook placed third on a 1985 VMax with a time of 35.67. The powder puff division raced once around the track.

In the kitty kat races Arnie Rantanen Jr. placed first, Eric Gauser placed second and Jason Homme placed third.

Energy Savers' Award Program Is Announced

Eleventh annual energy saver's award of excellence competition has been announced by Marsha Battles-Jenks, director of the energy division, Minnesota department of public service. Minnesota employers who have implemented energy saving programs in 1986 are eligible.

"Minnesota business and institutions have been using energy conservation opportunities to help manage cash flow and profits, Battles-Jenks said. "The total savings of last year's applicants are over $13.1 million a year. That's money that can be used for other organizational needs, such as new equipment, product development, added services, additional staff or to avoid lay offs."

Battles-Jenks noted that last year's statewide winner, the St. Paul energy resource center, has developed innovative energy financing and technical service programs for both single family and multifamily buildings. The shared savings program has been used to improve 483 units in 53 rental properties. Fuel savings of 28 to 39 per cent have been recorded. A five-county multi-family energy improvment program is now being developed.

Entries will be judged for innovation, effectiveness and usefullness to other organizations. Winners will be selected in three categories: service, institutional and industrial. A statewide winner and runner-up will also be selected.

Winners will receive plaques in recognition of their achievements in October and be eligible to enter the fourth annual national awards program for energy innovation.

The competition was started in 1977 to recognize and honor Minnesota employers who have implemented energy saving programs.

The "Ridge Road Sisters" Hit Record Trail

Although Bill has never realized his dream of recording in Nashville, he did cut a record called "Baby This World Belongs to You and Me" at Mary Finney's studio in East Grand Forks.

During a recent interview at the Helm farm home, I listened to the "Nashville For Daddy" song. It has a definite country appeal and a sound which seems very professional. And if the sisters lack anything in confidence, they don't let it show.

"Are you good?" I asked bluntly, not knowing what to expect in reply.

Shelly Mae reflected on that a few seconds, then looked me in the eye. "We're not bad," she said.

TRF, Fergus Falls Girls Battle Friday For No. 1 Seed In North Sub-Region 8AA Basketball . . .

Prowlers Go After Win No. 20 Against Otters

Thief River Falls' quest for an unbeaten regular season record will receive its final, and probably toughest test of the 1986-87 season Friday when the Prowlers host Fergus Falls in a girls high school basketball game that is expected to draw a record-size crowd to the Lincoln gym.

Added incentive will be the No. 1 seed and home court edge in the upcoming North Sub-Region 8AA tournament. The 19-0 Prowlers are 4-0 against regional competition. The 14-4 Otters have lost just once in North Sub-Region 8AA play — a recent 56-49 upset at the hands of Moorhead. Friday's winner will be the top-seeded team in post-season play.

Both sides anticipate a good basketball game. "I think it will be a good match-up talent-wise, size-wise and speed-wise," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. It should be a great game. We anticipate a good crowd; at least we're hoping people will come out and watch us."

"It'll be a good game," predicted Fergus Falls coach Denny Hanson. "Our kids are looking forward to it. The teams are very similar."

The similarity starts with the fact that both teams began the 1986-87 season with veteran teams, but minus their big stars from a year ago. Linda Knutson graduated after becoming the Otters' all-time leading scorer, and Michelle Puetz graduated after setting several team records for the Prowlers. But both had enough talent to overcome those losses.

Fergus Falls' starting line-up includes one senior, one junior and three sophomores. Thief River Falls will start three seniors and two juniors. Both have balanced attacks.

For the Otters, 6-0 junior center Michelle Hilley provides a big part of their inside game, while 5-10 sophomore guard Carleen Rose keys the outside attack. They're teammed with 5-9 senior forward Kathy Fawcett, 5-10 sophomore forward Keri Solseth, and 5-5 sophomore guard Jody Stock.

"We're very balanced," pointed out Hanson. "All five of our starters have been in double figures at one time or another this year."

For the Prowlers, 5-3 senior guard Brenda Russell carries a 17-point scoring average, 5-8 junior guard Kelly Cornell scores 15 points per game and 6-0 senior center Laura Beito averages 10 points and 12 rebounds per game. Cindy Kruta, a 5-4 junior, is the third part of the Prowlers' three-guard line-up, and 5-10 senior forward Lisa Lillevold is the other starting forward.

In addition to Moorhead, the Otters lost to Wheaton, Osakis in the finals of a holiday invitational and St. Cloud Tech. They avenged the loss to Wheaton last Tuesday with a 56-51 victory that snapped the Warriors' 15-game winning streak. Rose scored 22 points that night, while Solseth had 15 and Fawcett 10. Wheaton's Sondra Weick, who had been averaging over 20 points per game, was checked with just two free throws by the stubborn Fergus Falls defense.

"We like to press," acknowledged Hanson. "We go at people as hard as we can defensively."

The press has also become a big part of the Prowlers' game. Instituted in mid-January, the pressure defense has been responsible for several rallies that have kept Thief River Falls among the few unbeaten teams in the state.

"Our defense has been a big factor in our success," confirmed Schafer.

Schafer doesn't think the Prowlers will fall prey to the pressure that could come with the unbeaten streak on the line in front of a large crowd, and the top seed in North Sub-Region 8AA at stake to boot.

"I really don't think anything will shake these girls," he said. "They have a lot of confidence in themselves. They've been involved in a number of tight games this year where they've shown a lot of character. It's been a tremendous year. It's been a lot of fun. It would be nice to go 20-0, but it won't be the end of the world if we lose the ball game. We would just have to bounce back and get ready for the tournaments."

Basketball Showdowns

Basketball showdowns will be featured in Thief River Falls this week, with the Northland Community College men and the Lincoln High School girls grabbing the sports spotlight locally.

The Pioneers complete their 1986-87 regular season schedule Thursday by hosting the University of Minnesota-Crookston. The winner in the 8 p.m. match-up at the Northland gym will advance to the Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament. The loser will be done for the year.

It's a spirited match-up any time Northland and UMC hook up in any sport, and the intensity will be heightened even more when there's a state tournament berth on the line. The game will be preceded by a 6 p.m. Northland-UMC women's contest. The Pioneers have been eliminated from the state tournament playoff picture, but they nevertheless have a talented roster that could produce an interesting game against the state tournament-bound Trojans. UMC was ranked No. 4 in this week's Region 13 coaches' poll, and Northland was involved in an eighth place tie with Fergus Falls.

There is no state tournament berth on the line for the Prowlers Friday when they finish their regular season schedule against Fergus Falls in the Lincoln gym. But there is a little matter of a perfect 20-0 record, plus the important No. 1 seed in the North Sub-Region 8AA tournament. Junior varsity game starts at 6:15 p.m., with the varsity game to follow.

Big crowds should be on hand both nights.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Tim Bergland and East Grand Forks' Craig Mack will be two of the six seniors on the University of Minnesota hockey team who will be given special recognition Saturday when the Gophers close out their 1986-87 regular season schedule against Wisconsin at Mariucci Arena in Minneapolis. The others include Eric Dornfeld, Stillwater; Steve MacSwain, Anchorage, AK; Corey Millen, Cloquet; and Gary Shopek, Minneapolis Henry. Bergland and Millen are serving as Minnesota co-captains this winter. Bergland is currently skating left wing on a newly formed Gopher line with freshman right wing Peter Hankinson of Edina and junior center Paul Broten from Roseau.

+ Thief River Falls boys will try to break out of a basketball winning slump Friday when the Prowlers travel to East Grand Forks. Thief River Falls was 6-1 at one point this year, but are now 8-8. That 2-7 stretch includes some mighty tough losses, including a 50-49 double-overtime setback at the hands of East Grand Forks here on Jan. 16. There was also a one-point loss to Crookston, three-point losses to Bemidji and Crookston, plus a five-point defeat at the hands of Detroit Lakes. The Prowlers finish their schedule with games against Middle River, Argyle and Warren.

+ Thief River Falls diver Shon Thompson is ranked No. 23 in the latest Minnesota state high school boys swimming rankings, according to Minnesota Swimmer, a statewide publication. Thompson is the top-rated diver in Section 8, based on best six-dive point totals this winter, owning a narrow edge over Chad Atkinson of Melrose. Thief River Falls' Rick Rosetta is close to a top-25 state ranking in the 100-yard butterfly, according to Prowlers coach Jay Forney.

SOPHOMORE WING Rob Coltom scored the first Thief River Falls goal in Tuesday's Section 8 high school hockey game against Warroad on this play by putting a centering pass from Blair Lund past goalie Chad Erickson of the Warriors at 4:03 of the first period. Warroad won the game 6-2.

Warroad Power Play Nets Three Goals . . .

Warriors Beat Prowlers 6-2

A word of advice to Warroad opponents in the upcoming Section 8 high school hockey tournament — stay out of the penalty box. Thief River Falls fell prey to the Warriors' highly-efficient power play Tuesday when the Prowlers closed out their 1986-87 regular season schedule with a 6-2 loss to the state's No. 4-rated team in front of a large Thief River Falls Sports Arena crowd.

Warroad went 3-for-3 on the power play in taking a 4-2 second period lead. Technically, the power play success ended when the Warriors failed to score after Thief River Falls' Jim Breiland was whistled for a high stick at the end of the game, but there were just 21 seconds left when that occurred.

"Obviously you can not be in the penalty box against the best team in the section," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "Normally the best team in the section has the best power play. They (Warroad) certainly convinced us."

Thief River Falls came as close as anybody this year in challenging the Warriors' 13-0 record against Section 8 competition when the Prowlers came within 4-3 when they met in Warroad Jan. 20. And even though Thief River Falls played less-than-great hockey, the Prowlers looked like they might duplicate that effort when a Bob Geatz breakaway goal at 12:16 of the second period pulled them within 3-2.

But 38 seconds later Thief River Falls defenseman John Dondelinger was called for holding, and 55 seconds into the power play Warroad defenseman Bryan Wilmer scored on a rebound while standing over Thief River Falls goalie Shayne Anderson to make it 4-2.

Defenseman David Marvin scored a pair of third period goals to pad the lead.

"Even if you're getting out-played, you're in the game when it's just a one-goal difference," explained Grand. "You're just one shot away. But then we took a penalty, and they scored."

Scoring started early. The Warriors' Larry Olimb walked around the Thief River Falls defense and tucked the puck behind Anderson just 1:42 into the game — on a Warroad power play.

Thief River Falls tied it when sophomore Rob Coltom directed in Blair Lund's centering pass at 4:03.

But Warroad went back in front at 5:21 when Joey Biondi slipped through the slot untouched and beat Anderson with a waist-high wrist shot to make it 2-1.

Working the puck around on the power play, Warroad gained a 3-1 edge when Shane McFarlane blasted one from the point that caught the inside of the left post.

Thief River Falls was having all kinds of trouble in the second period, but still presented a threat to the Warroad lead when Geatz, all alone at center ice, picked up a puck that squirted out of the Thief River Falls zone and took off on his breakaway. 12:16 for a sudden 3-2 game.

But that's when Wilmer scored to make it 4-2.

Marvin then connected on a slap shot from the point at 6:58 of the third period, and finished it with a neat move around a Thief River Falls defender before he flicked the puck past Anderson at 13:55.

While Warroad was making use of its power play opportunities, Thief River Falls failed to even mount a threat on two man-advantage chances, getting a single shot on goal both times. A third power play opportunity lasted just eight seconds before a Thief River Falls penalty turned it into a 4-on-4 situation in the third period.

"We didn't handle the puck well at all on the power play," admitted Grand. "We handled it like it was a grenade."

Still, Grand said the Prowlers' play against the best team in Section 8 shouldn't take away from Thief River Falls' strong late-season finish that produced an 8-11-1 record after a 4-9 start. Warroad is 18-1, with a game left Thursday at home against a strong International Falls team.

State Meet Spot On The Line . . .

Pioneers, Trojans Clash On Thursday

Rivals Northland Community College and the University of Minnesota-Crookston will square off Thursday in an 8 p.m. men's basketball game in Thief River Falls, and the winner will walk away with a berth in next week's Minnesota Community College Conference state basketball tournament.

Fergus Falls has locked up the 1986-87 Northwest Division title, but the top two regular season finishers qualify for post-season play, and that's the spot the Pioneers and Trojans will be fighting for. Fergus Falls, a 96-82 winner over Northland Monday, is 9-1 in the divisional standings. Northland is 6-4 and UMC is 5-5. A UMC win Thursday creates a second place tie, and the Trojans get the state tournament berth because they also won the first time the teams met, an 80-74 victory in Crookston two weeks ago.

In fact, UMC has won four straight games over Northland, including an 84-81 overtime victory in the 1986 MCCC state tournament title game.

Northland could have eliminated UMC from the state tournament picture Monday by winning at Fergus Falls, but the Pioneers, after trailing 48-37 at halftime, lost a second decision to the Spartans, who are ranked No. 2 in the latest MCCC state poll, trailing only Itasca. Fergus Falls got by Northland 91-86 earlier this month.

Sophomore guard Greg Campbell of Northland scored a game-high 27 points in the loss, while Goodridge product Scott Groven netted 14 and Anthony McCullough had 12.

Fergus Falls won Monday's game at the free throw line, where the Spartans were 30-for-37, while the Pioneers were only 6-for-9. Fergus Falls was a perfect 8-for-8 down the stretch when Northland went to fouling in an attempt to get the ball back.

Northland out-scored Fergus Falls from the field, going 37-for-80 (36 per cent), while the Spartans were 31-for-69 (45 per cent).

"It's a hard place to play," said Northland coach Chet Engelman, looking at the free throw figures.

Seven minutes into the game the teams were tied 28-28, but Fergus Falls then rattled off 15 unanswered points for a 43-28 lead with 3:17 remaining in the first half. Northland never recovered.

Turnovers were even at 21-apiece. Northland had a 47-41 rebound edge.

UMC, Itasca Meet In Playoff Finals

University of Minnesota-Crookston will host Itasca Community College of Grand Rapids this weekend in the finals of the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference state hockey tournament playoffs.

It'll be a two-game, total-goal series.

UMC advanced into the finals by out-scoring Northland 11-6 in a two-game, total-goal playoff semifinal series over the weekend in Crookston. Itasca reached the championship round by edging Mesabi 8-7 in the other semifinal series at Virginia.

Nordics Sweep Series From Skippers

Marshall County Central out-scored Middle River 20-12 in the fourth quarter Tuesday to break open a close game and collect a 66-53 boys high school basketball victory over the host Skippers.

It was the third Marshall County Central win over rival Middle River this winter. The Nordics beat the Skippers 57-44 in a Thief River Falls Holiday Classic match-up, and won 64-44 in a Jan. 31 regularly-scheduled meeting.

Middle River stayed close for three quarters in the latest match-up, trailing just 19-17 at the end of the first quarter, down 36-32 at halftime and still within 46-41 at the end of the third quarter. But the fourth quarter swing included a 6-for-11 free throw shooting opportunity for the Nordics, while the Skippers never went to the line in the last eight minutes.

Darin Rokke of Marshall County Central led all scorers with 22 points. Teammate Lee Pemberton had 15. Tom Gullikson led Middle River with 20 points, getting 14 in the first half against a Marshall County Central zone — necessitated, said Nordics coach Ron Ueland, by early foul trouble for Kelly Dahl and Danni Halvorson. Tom Blazek added 13 points to the Middle River total.

"It was a good game," said Ueland, "although it was a little ragged at times."

According to Marshall County Central charts, the Nordics were 24-for-43 from the field (56 per cent), while the Skippers went 23-for-63 (37 per cent). Marshall County Central had an edge at the free throw line, where the Nordics were 18-for-30 (60 per cent) and the Skippers were 7-for-13 (54 per cent). Middle River had a 33-32 rebound edge on the Marshall County Central charts, and the Nordics had more turnovers, 15-11.

"Overall, I thought we played a good ball game," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "I thought our kids played as good a ball game as they're capable of playing."

Middle River was in contention, said Sparby, until the Nordics spread out their offense with that fourth quarter lead, and used their quickness to add to their total. Rokke scored 10 of his 22 points in that manner.

The difference in the free throw figures didn't help matters, either, noted Sparby.

Both teams play again Friday. The 10-7 Nordics will be at Stephen, while the 6-12 Skippers visit Grygla.

| Badger | 53 |

Grygla held off a late-game Badger rally for a 56-53 Tuesday night win on the Rockets' court.

Reed Engelstad scored 20 points and Thor Smerek had 16 as Grygla built quarter leads of 16-8, 30-19 and 45-33. A three-point play by Jason Engelstad with 1:17 left in the game provided Grygla with a 56-49 edge, but the Eagles didn't produce another point the rest of the way, holding off the Rockets only after they missed a pair of free throws with 36 seconds to go that would have made it a one-point game.

"We were very fortunate to win," admitted Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "We weren't real happy with the way we played, but I don't think we have to apologize for the win. We did some things right."

Grygla led from start to finish, hitting 25 of 52 field goal attempts (48 per cent) and 6 of 18 free throw tries (33 per cent). Badger was 22-for-56 from the field (39 per cent) and 9-for-17 at the line (53 per cent). The Eagles had a 37-24 rebound edge, and the Rockets topped the turnover chart 12-10.

An 11-4 Plummer team had its hands full with a 2-14 Goodridge squad Tuesday before the host Cardinals picked up a 54-51 victory.

Goodridge led 14-13 at the end of the first quarter, but Plummer went ahead 28-20 at halftime. The Huskies pulled within 36-32 at the end of the third quarter, but made a handful of fourth quarter mistakes that kept them from taking the lead.

"The second half was by far the best half we've played this year as far as intensity goes," reported Goodridge coach John Rahn. "I was very happy with the way our kids played."

Plummer's one-two punch of Wade Grinde and Shane Freyholtz scored 17 and 16 points, respectively, but the Cardinals also received an important 9-point contribution from Steve Pahlen, who was 4-for-5 from the field. Goodridge had good per-

TRF Receives No. 1 Seed In North Sub-Section 8 Hockey

Warroad, Crookston, Roseau and Bemidji were seeded 1-through-4 this morning (Wednesday) for the 1987 Section 8 high school hockey tournament in a telephone vote among the coaches conducted through Section 8 secretary Frank Fee of Crookston.

The Warriors, Pirates, Rams and Lumberjacks will gain automatic berths into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinal field Friday and Saturday, February 27 and 28, at East Grand Forks.

Rest of the teams will be competing for Section 8 spots through two rounds of sub-sectional eliminations. Those match-ups were also determined by a vote of the coaches on a North and South basis.

In the North, the No. 1 seed went to Thief River Falls, followed by No. 2 East Grand Forks, No. 3 Lake of the Woods, No. 4 Hallock, No. 5 Indus, No. 6 East Grand Forks Sacred Heart, and No. 7 Red Lake Falls.

In the South, the No. 1 seed went to Moorhead, followed by No. 2 Fergus Falls, No. 3 Alexandria, No. 4 Brainerd, No. 5 Detroit Lakes, No. 6 Little Falls, No. 7 Bagley, and No. 8 Crosby-Ironton.

Thief River Falls will receive a first round bye, while the others will all be paired off Saturday.

In the North, it'll be Red Lake Falls at East Grand Forks, Sacred Heart at Lake of the Woods and Indus at Hallock. In the South, it'll be Crosby-Ironton at Moorhead, Bagley at Fergus Falls, Little Falls at Alexandria, and Detroit Lakes at Brainerd.

Second and final round of sub-sectional play will be staged Monday. Thief River Falls will be at home that night, hosting the Hallock-Indus winner in a 7:30 p.m. game at the Sports Arena.

NCC Women Finish Season Against UMC Thursday . . .

Pioneers' Playoff Hopes Ended By Spartans 73-64

There was an 11-point swing in the final five minutes Monday as Fergus Falls rallied for a 73-64 Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball win over visiting Northland.

The outcome eliminated the Pioneers from the 1987 MCCC state tournament picture. Fergus Falls and the University of Minnesota-Crookston will finish 1-2 in the Northwest Division to earn post-season berths, and Northland will wind up third. The Pioneers will complete their schedule Thursday when they host the rival Trojans at 6 p.m.

Monday's match-up was a see-saw affair. Fergus Falls, after leading by as much as 10 points in the first half, took a 36-33 edge into intermission.

Northwest Division - Women

| | NW w | NW l | All w | All l |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Fergus Falls | 10 | 1 | 14 | 7 |
| UM-Crookston | 9 | 1 | 14 | 7 |
| Northland | 7 | 3 | 11 | 11 |
| Brainerd | 2 | 8 | 5 | 13 |

Northland had a 55-53 lead with five minutes left in the game, but missed a couple of shots, had a couple of turnovers, and then sent Fergus Falls to the free throw line at the end in an unsuccessful bid to get the ball back.

"It was a good ball game," reported Northland coach Tom Neibauer. "The players worked really hard. It was a good effort by the kids."

Teresa Olson of Fergus Falls led all scorers with 31 points. Janelle Lorsung led Northland with 19, while Jody Pahlen netted 18 and Angie Enerson 14.

Northland was 25-for-69 from the field (36 per cent), and 14-for-24 at the free throw line (58 per cent). Fergus Falls was 30-for-73 from the field (41 per cent) and 13-for-22 at the line (59 per cent).

The loss dropped Northland to 11-11 for the year, 7-3 in the Northwest Division standings, where the Pioneers have lost to Fergus Falls twice, 82-77, 73-64, and to UMC once, 77-66. "All the power is in the Northwest Division this year," noted Neibauer. "If we were in the Northeast Division, we'd be unbeaten."

Scoring

formances from Shawn Groven, who netted 17 points, and Tommi Quam, who had a 14-point, 13-rebound outing.

Plummer coach Jim Baron accepted the win, but was disappointed in the Cardinals' inability to build upon an eary lead — a common fault his team has shown this winter, he said.

Plummer will be at Fisher Friday. Goodridge will host East Grand Forks Sacred Heart that night.

Curling Week To Be Observed Apr. 5-11 Across Minnesota

Governor Rudy Perpich has kicked-off preparations for the U.S. Olympic demonstration curling playdowns to be held in St. Paul April 8-12. In support of the event, Governor Perpich proclaimed the week of April 5 as Minnesota Curling Week.

St. Paul Curling Club, located at 470 Sebly Avenue, will be host to the playdowns which are sanctioned by the United States Curling Association. Thirty-two men's teams and 16 women's teams qualifying through state and national play will compete in St. Paul to become the one men's and one women's team to compete in Calgary in the 1988 Olympics. Curling will be showcased in Calgary as a demonstration sport with potential medal status in 1992.

"The word Olympics has been on the lips of everyone in the curling community all year," said Ken Olson, Co-chairman of the St. Paul Olympic Playdown Committee. "The focus of the nation will be on St. Paul in April to see which teams will survive the five day event to become our U.S. Olympic representatives."

Play will begin on April 8 for the men who will compete in a triple knockout format. The women begin play on April 9 following a double knockout format. Final play is scheduled for Sunday, April 12.

MN Ag Statistics Service Surveys State's Farmers

In 1985, Minnesota's farm production expenses totaled $6.1 billion. While that figure is down from 1984's $6.5 million, so are farm assets. In fact, recent statistics from the U.S. department of agriculture shows that Minnesota's farm debt-to-asset ratio of 36 per cent is the highest in the nation.

An upcoming farm costs and returns survey will get a new measure of financial conditions on Minnesota farms. Conducted by the Minnesota agricultural statistics service, it's done entirely by personal interviews with a sample of Minnesota farmers.

According to Carroll Rock, director of the service, "We constantly need new data that'll tell us the bottom line on farm profitability. It's the only way that policymakers can determine the type of legislation needed to assist farmers whether they decide to stay in the business or not."

The survey will be conducted in February and March to determine 1986 farm production expenditures. A summary of the results will be available in July with more detailed information available by fall.

FCC Authorizes FM Radio Station For Roseau Area

Roseau has been selected by the Federal Communications commission (FCC) as an available site for a new FM radio station. The selection is part of an expansion in the number of FM frequencies across the country. The FCC has set March 9, 1987 as the first date for submission of applications to be the owner of an FM station at Roseau.

"Almost anyone is eligible to apply for the new FM station," says Frederick A. Polner, a former FCC attorney, "but a preference will be given to local residents. No broadcast experience is required. In fact, the FCC favors newcomers to the industry."

If more than one application for the new radio station is filed, the FCC will compare the merits of each application. The applicant which is found to serve the community best, according to preannounced criteria, will be chosen as the licensee.

The FM radio dial is divided into 80 channels between 88-108 MHz with each channel corresponding to a particular frequency. An FM radio station at Roseau would operate on 102.1 MHz. This frequency was determined in a complex proceeding which the FCC recently concluded. Pattern of FM frequency allocations is based upon the distance between other FM stations so that radio frequency interference is avoided.

The signal of a new FM radio station would cover Roseau and the surrounding area, but the specific coverage area would be determined by antenna tower height and transmitting power. The station would be able to broadcast 24 hours per day and in stereo.

Children's Trust Fund Grants Are Now Available

Children's Trust fund, established in 1986 by the Minnesota legislature to promote the prevention of child abuse and neglect, is notifying the public of the availability of between $135,000 and $140,000 in trust fund grants during the coming year.

The fund is being administered by the Minnesota department of public safety. Its revenue is generated from a $2 surtax for each certified copy of a birth certificate issued after July 1, 1986, and from any federal money, gifts, donations and bequests received.

Grant applications from public and private nonprofit agencies for primary or secondary child abuse or neglect prevention programs will be considered for awards.

The notice of availability of the Children's Trust fund grants can be requested by contacting the Children's Trust Fund, 333 Shibley Street, Suite 567, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101, telephone (612) 296-5437.

LEISURELY BROWSERS Tuesday about eight miles east of Thief River Falls was this trio of moose — a massive bull, small cow and rather scraggly-looking calf. The animals were feeding in a wide open field about 10:30 a.m. when this Times photo was taken. Shortly thereafter they ambled into a pacth of aspen and willow about a quarter mile away. Both moose and deer are benefitting from the mild winter and shallow snow cover this winter. Losses should be minimal and a healthy crop of fawns and moose calves should be evident this spring. Deer numbers in the area are already extremely high and the state is due for a moose season again this fall.

Pyramid Schemes Illegal Under Minnesota Law

Pyramid schemes under Minnesota law are illegal and a fraud because they are inherently deceptive, according to the Minnesota Attorney General's office.

The reason pyramid schemes are deceptive is that the only people who wind up making any money at all are those few at the top of the pyramid, the promoters and their associates. Those at the bottom, the vast majority, invariably wind up losing all their money.

The mathematics are such that the numbert of participants necessary to sustain the pyramid is simply unobtainable. A nine-level pyramid, built by each articipant getting six "friends" to join would involve over ten million people! Clearly, the pyramid would have collapsed long before it reached this level because the population willing to risk its money in any such scheme is not that large.

Pyramid schemes are often fairly complicated and sophisticated. In an attempt to circumvent state statutes and to mislead potential participants the schemes may be disguised as games, buying clubs, motivational companies, mail order operations or investment associations. Many are made to look like legitimate, multi-level marketing companies. In such cases a recruit's entrance "fee might buy him or her the title of "distributor" and some kind of "product."

However, with legitimate multi-level marketing plans, while the salesperson may recruit others to sell the product, the primary income is derived from the sale of products. In a pyramid scheme the primary income is based on the number of new recruits and the product is secondary. In other words, the product is not really being offered to consumers, it is being used to recruit new members. sumers, it is being used to recruit new members.

There are a number of things to watch for to protect yourself from being drawn into an illegal pyramid scheme that is disguised as a multi-level marketing plan.

+ Consider the required start-up cost to participate. If the cost is substantial for the product or service you receive, look out. Pyramid schemes make most of their money signing up new recruits. The start-up fee in multi-level marketing companies is generally small.

+ Will the company buy back unsold inventory? If the answer is no, look out. Legitimate companies that require inventory purchases will usually buy back unsold products if you decide to quit the business.

+ Is the major profit incentive based on the commission from the products being sold to consumers? If the answer is no, look out. Multi-level companies depend on the sale of consumer products and services. Pyramid schemes make their profits on new recruits.

If you have questions or complaints about pyramid schemes call or write the Attorney General's Consumer Division in St. Paul: Room 124 Ford Building, 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-3353; or in Duluth, Room 708 Government Services Center, 320 W. 2nd Street, Duluth, MN 55802, (218) 723-4891.

Norman A. Holen quotes —

Traffic will be a lot safer when the time comes that curves will slow up a man on the highway as quickly as they will on a bathing beach.

Weather.....

When winter returned Sunday night and Monday it left a few inches of snow to cover the dirty brown stuff, but the extended outlook doesn't include any more snow. Some cloudy conditions can be expected through Saturday, but temperatures will be fair and no precipitation is expected. Highs will be in the mid 20's and lows in the single digits to mid teens. The conditions should be just about right for the World Series snowmobile races in Thief River Falls this weekend.

When I was in Rapid City, SD, for Christmas I picked up an interesting article in the Rapid City Journal which came through the Associated Press. The article carried some interesting school excuse notes. One parent in Leesville, LA, wrote: "My son is under the doctor's care and should not take P.E. today. Please execute him."

Another parent wrote: "Please excuse Mary for being absent. She was sick and I had her shot." Another, possibly confused with office work terms and medical terms wrote: "Please excuse Mary from Jim yesterday. She is administrating."

The Heritage community center in Thief River Falls will hold an open house and ribbon-cutting ceremony Friday. The ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at 10 a.m. and free coffee and donuts and guided tours of the building will be offered. A bake sale will begin at 10 a.m. also. Senior meals will begin at 11:45 a.m. and the Craft shop will be open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Visitors to the center will be entertained by musical interludes performed by several people from the community throughout the afternoon. Friday night a public dinner and program will begin at 6:30 p.m. The dinner costs $5 and no tickets will be sold at the door. Tickets can be purchased in advance at the Heritage community center, Larson Music and Ekeren Drug. At 9 p.m. visitors can dance to "Proposition 13."

Nelson Appointed Vice Chancellor At UM-Crookston

Appointment of Robert B. Nelson as vice chancellor for student affairs at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) was announced today by Donald Sargeant, chancellor. The appointment is pending approval by the University of Minnesota Board of Regents. He will begin work March 2.

Nelson, who was coordinator for student financial aid at the University of North Dakota, replaces Anthony Kuznik, who resigned last summer to become provost of Hibbing community college.

The vice chancellor will be responsible for the areas of admissions, student records and registration, financial aid, residential life, counseling, career planning and placement, minority programs, international programs, student health services, intercollegiate and intramural activities, campus security, student activities, and campus ministry. He will also serve as the financial aid director.

Mid-January Index Of Prices Show Decline In State

Mid-January index of prices received by Minnesota farmers at 112 was down three per cent from December and six per cent below the index a year ago, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Prices were above a month earlier for wheat, soybeans, dry edible beans, alfalfa hay, beef cattle, calves and lambs. The all-hay price held steady and other commodities were lower.

Preliminary average prices received by farmers for flaxseed in January were the lowest since November of 1972; for turkeys, since August of 1983. On the plus side, preliminary prices for calves were the highest since June of 1983.

The crops index fell four per cent to 85 during the month. This was 21 per cent below the index a year earlier. Mid-January prices and the changes from last month are: all wheat, $2.57 per bushel, up one cent from the revised December estimate; corn, $1.29 per bushel, down 23 cents; oats, $1.37 per bushel, down 17 cents; barley, $1.37 per bushel, down 14 cents; soybeans, $4.55 per bushel, up two cents; flaxseed, $2.96 per bushel, down 41 cents; potatoes averaged $4.60 per hundredweight for all grades, up five cents. ## VA Center Trains 372 Professionals During Last Year

Veterans Administration medical center at Fargo, ND, trained 372 health care professionals last year through affiliations with the area's university programs, according to David C. Engstrom, M.D., medical center director.

"Affiliations with university medical training programs and the VA training given to professionals research, as well as provide a valugive veterans the benefit of exposure to the latest medical advances and research, as well as provide a valuable service to the general health care community," Engstrom said. "VA hospitals nationwide train more than a third of all health professionals through affiliation agreements with more than 100 medical schools and more than 1,000 health professions schools," he added.

Last year the Fargo VA medical center provided clinical training for 60 medical students, 65 physicians, 115 nurses and 132 students in ancillary services, according to Byron D. Danielson, M.D., the center's associate chief of staff for education. "At any given time we have about 100 students training here in a variety of fields," Danielson added. He said the VA center has training affiliations with University of North Dakota, North Dakota State university, Moorhead State university, Concordia college, University of Minnesota, ND State School of Science, and vocational technical institutes in Moorhead, Alexandria and East Grand Forks.

Danielson said the training programs are part of the VA's network of sharing with private health care facilities, which in many cases include shared equipment and facilities and information on medical advances, and represents VA's "investment in the future."

Goodridge Students And Teachers Get Recognition

Each month the Goodridge public school names students and teachers of the month in its newsletter. This series helps acquaint the community with students and teachers in the school. An elementary junior high and senior high student, along with one or more teachers are interviewed.

Featured teachers for the months of December and January include Elva Fiedler, Duane Howard, Robert Brown, Ruth Sackett, Linda Peterson and Helen Davidson.

ELVA FIEDLER has taught in the Goodridge school system since 1968 when she and her husband Gene came to this area from Sleepy Eye and Gene went into the business of farming.

She received her bachelor of science degree from the University of Minnesota and has taught all grades at the elementary level. She currently teaches the third grade. Elva has also taught in Rockford, IL, Brainerd and Winthrop.

Twenty-one students will be preparing a full meal with all the trimmings in the home economics room this year as part of the third grade health and science class. One of the special fun things that the students do as part of their art and reading class is a fairy tale puppet show.

One of the highlights of Elva's teaching career includes being selected as "Teacher of the Year" in 1975 by the GEA. She went on to represent Goodridge public school as a semi-finalist in state competition and received the title of "Teacher of Excellence."

DUANE HOWARD, a native of the Goodridge community, taught the fifth and sixth grades in Byron and Long Prairie before coming back to the Goodridge school district in 1974. He now teaches and farms in the school district. He is a graduate of the University of Bemidji and has nearly completed his masters degree in elementary administration.

When Duane returned to Goodridge he directed the "Right to Read" program in junior high. Basically the program is still operating because the students read at their own level and master what they are reading.

Currently, Duane is in charge of the Title I program which consists of helping students who are working below age and grade level. He spends a lot of time working with individual students and is also sixth grade home-room teacher half days. He is helping with the fifth and sixth grade basketball program and is hoping to work with the fourth grade as well. He recently finished taking a course in instructing sixth graders to teach kindergarten through eighth grade in drug and traffic safety. The statewide program is known as "Kids Helping Kids."

Duane identified several concerns of small schools. One was that smaller schools excel in recognizing students with problems in both areas of social and academic issues. The other point that Duane noted was the fact that districts with extra funds can easily afford to offer extensive opportunities to students.

ROBERT BROWN is a graduate of Orono high school, Bemidji state university and spent two years at the Bemidji AVTI taking carpentry class. He started teaching the industrial arts program in Goodridge in 1984. He also coaches ninth and 10th

Legion Funds Brain Sciences Project

A $2 million brain science chair project by the Minnesota American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary has been announced by Duane (Bud) Redepenning, Anoka, department commander of the Minnesota Legion.

A $1 million fund-raising drive by the Minnesota American Legion and auxiliary will be matched by the University of Minnesota through its permanent university fund.

"For a long time, the brain sciences have been like an orphan in the medical profession," said Redepenning. "The establishment of this brain science chair at the new Minneapolis Veterans administration medical clinic, through the University of Minnesota's medical school, will be a giant step forward in the research and treatment of brain diseases, which are the major medical problem of veteran patients at the Minneapolis VAMC."

Minnesota American Legion and auxiliary approved resolutions calling for the establishment of a brain science chair at the Minneapolis VAMC, through the U of M medical school, with a $1 million fund-raising drive by the Legion and auxiliary at the organizations' annual fall conference last October in East Grand Forks.

"The University of Minnesota medical school is pleased to be working with the Minnesota Legion and auxiliary as we expand our research into the brain sciences," said Dr. David Brown, dean of the university's medical school. "Research in the brain sciences is extremely important in furthering the diagnosis and treatment of disorders such as depression, schizophrenia and Alzheimer's disease."

Thoma Mullon, director of the Minneapolis VAMC said: "The Minneapolis VA medical center is proud to work with the American Legion and American Legion auxiliary and the University of Minnesota medical school in the formation of a brain sciences center. The study of the brain is one of the final frontiers in medicine aimed at helping those who suffer from mental illness. The strong bond between these three organizations will ensure that the brain sciences center is successful in applying modern technology and research in the study of mental illnesses and brain diseases."

The establishment of the $2 million brain science chair was formalized at a news conference February 4 at the state office building in St. Paul with the signing of an agreement by the Minnesota American Legion and auxiliary, the University of Minnesota medical school and the Minneapolis VAMC.

First-Grade Girls From 3 Schools Become Brownies

Seventeen first grade girls were participants in a city-wide Brownie investiture held recently at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls, in which the girls were welcomed into Girl Scouting for the first time. After this ceremony, the girls are officially Brownie members of the Girl Scout organization.

Three lighted candles represented the three parts of the Girl Scout promise:

— On my honor, I will try to serve God and my country,

— I will try to help people at all times,

— And I will try to live by the Girl Scout law.

UPSIDE DOWN is the way Brownies receive their new pins. After they have performed a Brownie good deed, they will wear their pins right side up. Jessica Hanson, a Knox first grader, is shown receiving her new Brownie pin from her leader, Nancy Hager, at the city-wide first grade Brownie investiture held recently at Redeemer Lutheran church. For the first time, first graders were allowed to join the organization, and seventeen girls from Mark Twain, Washington and Knox schools became Brownies at the special ceremony.

Don't Be Wrong...

Write!

During World War II, Kate Smith made famous the statement: "If you don't write, you're wrong."

She encouraged folks on the homefront to write military people to help keep up their spirits during one of the worst wars in history.

And her admonition still rings true. Writing to people is a concrete way to touch them. There's something about a good letter that continues to bless with the passing of years. A person can read a letter over and over, can keep it tucked away in a special place and bring it out for re-reading during times of low ebb.

On impulse one day, I wrote a high school English teacher whose careful and demanding style extracted the best from me. Had it not been for her diligence, freshman English at college would have rolled me out! And I told her this.

Her response came by return mail. "A bright spot in my low day," is the way she described my letter.

The Apostle Paul was a great letter writer. And in each letter he expressed gratitude for those to whom he wrote. "I thank my God upon every remembrance of you. . . ." (Phil. 1:3)

"If you don't write, you're wrong."

First Graders From 3 Schools Become Brownies

The lighted candles were representative of the 10 Girl Scout laws.

The Brownie Story was read, telling of two girtls who wanted to be little helpers (Brownies). Their granny told them to ask the wise old owl, which they did. The owl then told them to go to the pond when the moon was out and turn themselves about, repeating, "Twist me, turn me, and show me the elf. I looked in the water, and saw . . . myself."

Each girl was twisted and turned by her leader before the mirrored pond and looked in to find themselves able to become Brownie helpers.

The ceremony of investiture was held with each girl repeating the Brownie promise and receiving her new Brownie pin from her leader. The pin is placed upside down until each girl has performed a good deed, at which time she will be allowed to wear her pin right side up.

Seventeen new Brownie Girl Scouts, along with parents and friends, were then treated to a special luncheon provided by their leaders.

Leaders are: Deb Hays, Washington school Brownies; Kris Hall, Mark Twain Brownies; and Nancy Hagen with assistant Cindy Semrud, Knox Brownies.

States Will Cooperate On Sales Tax Collection

Minnesota and five other Great Lakes states have put retailers on notice that if they don't voluntarily register by March 31 to collect sales and use tax from their out-of-state customers they will be subject to audits, and the states will exchange the names of their customers.

The tough enforcement action is part of the Great Lakes States Interstate Sales Compact designed to help the states enforce their sales and use tax laws by encouraging companies to register and collect use tax in all of the states in which they do business, and by exchanging information among the states on interstate shipments to individuals and businesses.

The cooperative enforcement agreement was initially reached in July by Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and the detailed agreement was signed by the states last week, said Minnesota revenue commissioner Tom Triplett.

"The purpose of this compact is to promote fair competition among retailers in the six states," Triplett said. "It's unfair when one retailer charges sales tax and another does not."

Thousands of individuals and businesses don't pay sales tax each year when they purchase items in other states, either directly or through mail order, and have the items shipped to their home state. Under the states' laws, consumers are required to voluntarily pay use tax to their home state on these items, however few actually pay and many don't know they are required to pay, Triplett said.

"The best solution is that the businesses voluntarily collect the use tax and send it to the customer's home state," Triplett said.

If businesses voluntarily register by March 31, 1987, to collect use tax, the states will not exchange customer lists on transactions made before Jan. 1, 1987, nor will a state request assistance from another state in auditing sales tax exemptions made before Jan. 1. However, if vendors fail to register voluntarily by March 31, the states will increase efforts to identify those vendors and to audit those which are not collecting the use tax.

Information available for exchange includes lists of taxpayers and potential taxpayers; tax or information returns or documents, including all supporting schedules, attachments and lists; audit reports and information regarding audit, collection, appeal and criminal tax matters.

"For Minnesota, the agreement means that the other states will cooperate with us on audits so that we can collect the taxes directly from their Minnesota customers if necessary," Triplett said. The other five states will have the same benefit.

Nationwide, Minnesota loses about $30 million each year in sales tax revenues because of untaxed mail order purchases and transactions made in other states, Triplett said.

"We don't know how much of this is attributable to transactions made in the other five states, but we do know it's substantial," he said.

The Great Lakes states may target certain industries in their enforcement efforts, Triplett said. Some of the main problem areas are interstate sales of computers, medical, dental and office equipment, furniture, boats, furs and jewelry.

"If retailers don't start collecting the use tax, the states will go directly to their customers for the use tax money, plus penalties and interest," Triplett said. "It would be more convenient if vendors collected the use tax directly from their customers," he said.

The parties have agreed to encourage retailers in their own states to register to collect use tax for any other states in which they do business. Information on businesses obtained from the compact will be used for sales and use tax enforcement purposes only, Triplett said.

For more information on registering to collect use tax, businesses may call (612) 296-6181.

Q. I have had a mole on my leg for a few years now. Recently it began to get larger. I know that one of the warning signs of cancer is a change in a mole. Exactly, what changes should I be looking for? Do changes always mean it is cancer?

A. One of the easiest ways to remember how to check changes in a mole is to follow the ABCD rule:

A. ASYMMETRY. Most normal moles are symmetrical. If you were to draw an imaginary line down the middle and compare the two sides, one side should look the same as the other. Normal moles are usually round and symmeterical.

B: BORDER. The border of a normal mole is usually even and well defined. Suspicious moles have poorly defined, fuzzy borders.

C: COLOR. A normal mole is usually brown and the color is the same throughout. Watch for moles which have more than one color or have black, red or blue in them.

D: DIAMETER. Most normal moles are smaller than the size of the tip of a pencil eraser. Be alert to a sudden increase in size or shape of a mole.

A change in a mole does not mean that it is cancer, but it does mean that it should be checked. A dermatologist, a doctor specializing in the diagnosis and treatment of skin conditions, would be an appropriate doctor to check your mole. Remember, when treated in the early stages even the most serious forms of skin cancer are curable.

Q. Not long ago, when I had a yearly physical exam, my doctor found a small lump on my shoulder. He said it should come off, and at an appointment a few days later, he froze the area and cut the lump out. After it was examined in the laboratory, the report came back that the lump contained basal cell cancer. Still, my doctor said not to worry — that everything was fine. I thought that every cancer was bad. Should I worry? Should I have more treatment?

A. Basal cell carcinoma is a form of skin cancer that grows mainly on areas of the body regularly exposed to the sun. It is one of the least serious forms of cancer because it grows very slowly and rarely spreads to other parts of the body. Basal cell tumors are usually fairly simple to remove and require no further treatment. This is one of the few cancers doctors almost always consider cured as soon as the tumor is removed.

Some people seem to be slightly prone to developing basal cell tumors. They may have several of them over a period of years. These new tumors do not mean that the original cancer has spread — each one is independent. People who have had a basal cell skin cancer diagnosed should be alert for any other unusual looking areas on their skin and should have regular physical examinations.

Q. I had surgery and chemotherapy for breast cancer two years ago. My doctors said then that there was no sign of any cancer left. Now they say the cancer has recurred. What exactly does that mean?

A. "Recur" means "to happen again." When cancer recurs, it means the disease that was thought to be cured, or was inactive (in remission), has become active again. Breast cancer may recur after several months or even years after initial treatment.

Your previous treatment was meant to destroy the original cancer and any of the cells that may have become detached from it. Sometimes, however, cancer cells in numbers too small to be detected may survive and be found only later when they have grown in number.

Cancer that recurs gets its start from cells that broke away from the original tumor and traveled through the lymph system or bloodstream to start new cancer growths.

Not every cancer cell that breaks away is able to start a new growth elsewhere. Most are stopped by the body's natural defenses or destroyed by treatment.

A recurrent cancer is the same type as the original cancer — no matter where it appears. This means, for example, that if a breast cancer recurs in the lung, it is not lung cancer; it is breast cancer that has spread to the lung.

Recurrent cancers are classified by location: local, regional or disseminated. Local recurrence means that the cancer has come back in the same place as the original cancer. When a doctor describes a recurrence as local it also means there is no sign of spread to lymph nodes or other body tissues. For instance, a woman who has had a mastectomy could later have a local recurrence of breast in or around the area of the surgery.

A regional recurrence involves growth of another tumor in lymph nodes or tissues near the original cancer site. A woman who has been treated for breast cancer might have a regional recurrence in the lymph nodes under her arm.

In disseminated recurrence, cancer has spread to organs or other tissues at some distance from the original site. For example, a woman who has had breast cancer might have metastasis to bones.

Q.: When should a woman begin having regular mammograms, and how frequently should she have them?

A.: The American Cancer society recommends that women who have no symptoms and no family history of breast cancer should have a baseline mammogram once between ages 35 and 39. From ages 40 to 49 women with no symptoms should have a mammogram every one or two years depending on their doctors' advice. After age 50 women should have a mammogram once a year.

Remember that mammograms are only part of a complete breast examination schedule. Every woman should know how to do a thorough breast self-examination and should examine her breasts once a month. She should also have her doctor examine her breasts at least every three years until age 40 and once a year after she is 40.

A woman who has had breast cancer or whose mother or sister has had it should be examined more frequently. Her doctor will recommend the best examination schedule for her.

Whenever a woman discovers a lump or other possible symptom of breast cancer she should go to her doctor — regardless of how recently she has had a regular breast examination.

Q.: I read in the newspaper that benign prostate conditions, like President Reagan had, are fairly common in older men. What about prostate cancer? Is that common too? What are the symptoms.

A.: Cancer of the prostate is one of the most common forms of cancer in American men. About 90,000 new cases of prostate cancer were diagnosed in the U.S. last year.

This type of cancer is rare in men under 55 years old. The average age for men to be diagnosed with prostate cancer is 70.

Most often, there are no symptoms in the earliest stages of prostate cancer. When they do occur, the symptoms depend on the size and location of the tumor.

As a tumor grows, the prostate gland may enlarge and press on the urethra, the tube through which urine passes out of the bladder. This pressure on the urethra can cause weak or interrupted urine flow, frequent urination (especially at night), inability to urinate or difficulty in starting urination. Other symptoms can be blood in the urine or painful burning urination. Persistent pain in the back, hips and pelvis also might be a sign of prostate cancer even if there are no other symptoms.

Benign enlargement of the prostate also can cause many of these same symptoms and is much more common than prostate cancer. But a man should never ignore signs that might mean cancer. He should see his physician for an examination.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

When the Chinese Ambassador Wellington Koo attened the 1921 Washington conference, he found himself at a banquet seated next to a woman who seemed ill at ease. After a bit of embarrassed silence, she said, "Likee soupee?"

Koo just nodded and finished his soup. At the end of the meal, he was asked to address the guests, which he did for 10 minutes in perfect English. When he returned to his seat, he turned to the woman and said, "Likee speechee?"

Language barriers are sometimes a source of humor, but more often of confusion and discord. In a country such as ours, which embraces virtually every nationality, religion, creed and ethnic group of this planet, a common language is especially essential to the orderly conduct of public affairs and private commerce.

In the past, maintenance of a common language has always come fairly easily. Wave upon wave of immigrants from all over the world have been absorbed into our culture, adopted our values and become proficient in our language.

But the massive influx of Spanish-speaking people in recent years has raised concern that this historic process should not be taken for granted. In some parts of our country, the Spanish language is so predominant that immigrants have little incentive to learn Egnlish. To make matters worse, some experts contend that much of the money allotted for bilingual education programs is used to reinforce use of foreign tongues, not encourage learning of English.

In an effort to halt the decline of English and refocus bilingual initiatives, a new organization — U.S English — was formed in 1983 to seek a constitutional amendment establishing English as the national language. Currently, seven states have enacted laws designating English as the official language.

Naturally, some groups perceive this movement as a sinister expression of racism or ethnic bias. This is simply not the case. Language initiatives, such as the one recently approved in California, are expressly directed to the official business of government. Were they to impinge on private communication, such as advertising, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce would oppose them resolutely.

Nor is it that the Reagan administration has cut back on bilingual education. To the contrary, funding in 1987 is the same as the year before. But Secretary of Education William Bennett has obtained changes in the program to permit local school jurisdictions more flexibility in using federal bilingual funds. The purpose is to use these programs to help immigrant students learn English, not reinforce use of other languages, and that is as it should be.

A common language is absolutely essential to the integrity of our political process and the stability and security of our society. Immigrants from other parts have every right to protect and cherish their customs and traditions, including their native languages, but they should also accept as a duty of citizenship the responsibility to master English.

Recently, the Disney Company launched an invasion of China, airing a half-hour television show on Chinese television starring Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse.

Disney has long-term plans for the world's largest consumer market. Disney hopes to make and market Disney character merchandise, distribute films and publish books and magazines in China. There may even be a Chinese version of Disneyland someday, just as there is a Japenese version.

All of this great news. Disney exports to China will help reduce our trade deficit and pave the way for sale of other U.S. products there. Further, the wholesale array of products offered by Disney can only enhance our country's reputation and influence with the Chinese people.

But there may be one small problem. You see, the Chinese are trying to promote free enterprise in their economy, an initiative that promises to raise the Chinese standard of living and improve China's relations with the West. But there is one Disney character whose behavior and lifestyle have undermined the credibility of free enterprise in the West, and could do the same in China.

I refer to Donald Duck's Uncle Scrooge, a billionaire businessduck, with whom most of us became acquainted through comic books as children. Uncle Scrooge maintained a huge money bin at his corporate headquarters. Whenever beset by troubles or boredom, he would swim around in it or push big heaps of cash back and forth with a bulldozer.

Unfortunately, that image of the corporate tycoon and his money bin has become permanently frozen in the minds of millions of Americans, and is reflected in their attitudes toward business to this day.

Thus, whenever government proposes new regulations that cost business billions for compliance, people just shrug their shoulders. So what? All the corporations have to do is back a truck up to the old money bin and shovel out a few tons.
sock business with a $120 billion tax hike and the public response was a big "ho-hum." Just take it from the money bin.

In truth, there are no money bins. Corporate expenses, whether to comply with regulations or pay taxes, are reflected in lower dividends to shareholders, lower pay and benefits to workers, and higher prices for products and services.

It would be difficult to calculate the damage done to this country by Scrooge McDuck Theory of Economics, but one thing is clear. China is a poor country and can ill-afford such illusions. If the Chinese are wise, they will welcome Mickey, Minnie, Donald, Daisy, Goofy, Morty, Ferdie, Huey, Dewey and Louis, but will bar Uncle Scrooge at the border.

It has become obvious to everyone in recent years that our country is undergoing profound economic change, but there is great debate about what it protends for our future.

Some contend we are losing our manufacturing base as our economy becomes more reliant upon the services sector. They regard this as a sinister trend that will eventually erode our economic vigor and standard of living.

It is true that we are losing many jobs in manufacturing industries. In 1950, manufacturing accounted for 26 per cent of all the jobs in this country; today only 18.1 per cent.

At the same time, however, it is clear that manufacturing itself is not losing ground. In 1950, manufacturing accounted for 21.4 per cent of our gross national product. By 1985, it had actually risen to 21.7 per cent.

Obviously, we cannot equate the loss of jobs in manufacturing to erosion of our industrial base. Rather, the statistics suggest strongly our manufacturing industries are simply becoming more efficient, producing more with fewer people. That is a clear sign of health, not decay.

It appears to me we are undergoing the same type of change that our ancestors went through when this country entered the industrial age. Millions of workers left the farm to take jobs in factories. It certainly did not mean the end of our ability to produce agricultural products. To the contrary, we continue to produce more than we know what to do with.

To be sure, it was a difficult time for people who had to make radical readjustments of their lifestyles, learning new trades and skills and adapting to new environments, but the end result was a higher standard of living for everyone.

I see the same thing happening today as we move into a post-industrial age. We are not losing our manufacturing clout, but in the future, manufacturing will produce fewer and fewer job opportunities, as is the case with agriculture.

Service industries are clearly the wave of the future. They account for about 70 per cent of our GNP and virtually all of the rapid job growth we have had since 1979. In 1983, U.S. exports of services equalled $132 billion, or 20 per cent of total world trade in services.

It is foolish to denigrate the importance of services. Just as the machines of the industrial age represented an extension of the arm and back, our new high technology service industries represent an extension of the brain and nervous system.

An when you stop to think about it, the translation of thought into action is the highest activity known to our species. I for one do not dread the transition to a service economy. It simply means that humanity is making progress, and that our country is on the cutting edge of it.

"There is scarcely an instance of a man who has made a fortune by speculation and kept it," said Anderew Carnegie in 1902.

I think Carnegie was right. The insider trading cases that have rocked Wall Street in recent weeks are really nothing new, nor are they a reason for investors to become alarmed. In every field of endeavor there will always be certain individuals who, in their avarice, play fast and loose with the law. They invaribly come to a sorry end.

As for those who predicted the insider trading scandal would jerk the plug from the market and send investors fleeing in droves, I believe the market itself has answered that question, attaining new highs in recent weeks. If anything, the apprehension of a few rascals seems to have restored confidence that cops are on the beat and no one is above the law.

In truth, it does appear that fraudulent practices are the exception, not the rule, on Wall Street. The Securities and Exchange commission estimates there is $50 billion in securities traded on a daily basis. If all fraud is counted, including insider trading, the SEC estimates it amounts to "a tiny fraction of one per cent."

It is possible that more law enforcement would enhance protection of small investors, just as more policemen would make our streets safer. But the most effective protection available to small investors is to simply be wary, reading carefully the prospectus of every firm considered for investment. Quite often a prospectus will offer a brutally frank analysis of a company's potential, but too often investors neglect to read them and get stuck. When people go around looking for a quick kill, they usually find one — their own.

The stock market is the ultimate barometer of the health of our economy. The shenanigans of a few miscreants are unlikely to have a lasting effect upon the real value of this nation's corporations. In the long run, it is the productivity and efficiency of a corporation that determines its value, and that is what smart investors will look at.

Judging by recent stock market performance, that is exactly what they are looking at, and they like what they see.

Those members of Congress who are so critical of President Reagan's dealings with Iran should be mindful of the old saying — "People who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

The critics contend President Reagan should not have sold military supplies to Iran, regardless of the quanity or their possible outcome on the Iran-Iraqi conflict. They may be right. The president's goals were laudable, but foreign policy is a complex area in which mistakes are easy to make.

For example, just a few weeks ago Congress imposed stiff economic sanctions against South Africa to hasten an end to that country's deplorable apartheid policies President Reagan vetoed the measure, contending it would make matters in South Africa worse instead of better. But Congress overrode the veto and imposed sanctions anyway.

Now the results of that action are being seen, and preliminary indications are that it was a dreadful mistake. Black workers by the tens of thousands are losing their jobs. The U.S. corporations that spearheaded a robust reform movement in South Africa are pulling out, taking their voices of moderation and progress with them.

For its part, the government of South Africa has taken sanctions as a cue to step up repression. It has moved away from the modest reforms it has embraced in recent years, cracked down on dissent, thrown anti-apartheid activists in prison and moved to silence the press.

It is difficult to see how all this will hasten the end of apartheid. Anti-apartheid activists in South Africa occupy the high moral plane, but have little practical muscle. The government holds all the cards and is wielding them with severity.

There were many pros and cons in the sanctions debate, but the dominant theme of supporters was that the U.S. should be on the side of history. What they failed to understand is that the tide of history does not always run in the direction of justice and progress. Sometimes it moves backwards, as it appears to be doing now in South Africa.

Prior to sanctions, the U.S. government and U.S. businesses were serving as agents of progress in South Africa Granted, it was painfully slow progress, but progress nevertheless. Now we have lost the little influence we had in that tragic situation.

Those members of Congress who are so piously indignant about President Reagan's alleged foreign policy mistake in sending arms to Iran would be advised to pause and consider their own foreign policy mistake in South Africa. Like President Reagan, they were operating from the best of motives, but in foreign policy good motives are often insufficient.

This would be an excellent time for everyone, in Congress and the White House, to adopt a more humble tone.

As of May 1, 1987, the Soviet Union will launch a major new experiment in private enterprise when it officially sanctions creation of family-run businesses that will operate outside the purview of the state.

Of course the Soviets, like the Chinese, are outspoken in their insistence that they are not cozying up to capitalism. But would a rose by any other name smell less sweet?

Since the days of Lenin, the only private enterprise to enjoy legal status in the Soviet Union has been in agriculture. For the past .0 years, rural workers have been permitted to farm small plots and sell their produce at free markets. The results have been about as you would expect — using less than 1 per cent of the arable land in the Soviet Union, the private farmers produce more than 10 per cent of the country's fruit and vegetables.

This is not to suggest that is the limit of free enterprise in the Soviet Union, however. Indeed, there is a vast underground economy at work providing an array of goods and services that the government, in its monumental incompetence, simply cannot handle. Some experts on Soviet affairs contend the country could not survive without its underground economy.

The new Soviet law simply acknowledges this reality and gives some private operators legal standing and, not incidentally, exposure to Soviet tax collectors. But the Soviets were careful to limit such operations to family enterprises which will not be permitted to employ unrelated workers.

Nor do the Soviets appear eager to turn over major industries to private management. The new law permits manufacturing of such consumer goods as toys, furniture, knitwear, shoes and fishing tackle, and services such as auto and appliance repair. There will be no stock market appearing on the Soviet scene in the near future.

And yet, in recognizing the utility of private enterprise, the Soviets are begrudgingly following a world-wide trend as more and more nations reject socialist prescriptions and expand their free markets. Such change comes hard to socialist ideologues, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for them to ignore the stark fact that the dream of socialism is based upon illusion. We are witnessing the triumph of experience over hope.

And who knows? Even in the Soviet Union, economic freedom may yet sow the seeds of political freedom.

The honeymoon that business has enjoyed with government in the past six years is coming to an abrupt halt as a dramatically altered 100th Congress prepares to convene in the nation's capital.

With the Democrats in solid control of both houses of Congress, it is safe to assume their constituency groups will be lining up to demand increases in domestic spending. New House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas has already called for higher taxes, and we might expect the new Senate leadership to follow suit. The new chairman of the Senate budget committee, Lawton Chiles of Florida, is a strong proponent of higher taxes. The pressure will be intense and President Reagan, embroiled in the Iranian controversy, will be hard pressed to stem the tide.

The Democrats have also announced their intent to push early and hard for new trade legislation. In this sphere, business has less cause for concern because Speaker Wright and other prominent Democrats appear sensitive to the threat of protectionism. Business can be optimistic that a new trade bill will be balanced and well thought out.

The same cannot be said of labor legislation. It is no secret that unions have lost much clout in recent years, or that they are trying to recoup their sagging fortunes through government fiat. They already have tremendous support in the House which, during the 99th Congress, ratified five of the six top priority items of the AFL-CIO. Their only loss was plant closing legislation which went down by only three votes, and then only after an all-out business campaign.

Those bills got nowhere in the Senate where the Labor and Human Resources committee was chaired by Orrin Hatch of Utah. Now Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts is in the driver's seat, and he is outspoken champion of union power. Indeed if there are any senators more pro union than Kennedy, they must be Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio and newly elected Barbara Mikulski of Maryland, both of whom are also on the committee.

Thus, we can expect an all-out push for double breasting legislation that would, in effect, draft millions of construction workers into unions against their will, a hike in the minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.45 an hour, plant closing legislation that would make it almost impossible to close down inefficient operations, labor protective provisions for airlines that would serve as a precedent for other industries, parental leave which would mandate paid leave for both fathers and mothers of new children, as well as children of elderly parents who need attention, a comparable worth bill under which federal bureaucrats would decide ployer's ability to pay broadened health program in which employers would be required to provide extended health care to all employees regardless of the employer's ability to pay.

Forwarned is forarmed Business will face some tough battles in the coming months and must be prepared to fight tooth and nail.

TIMES Around The Region

Fertile Break-Ins

Fertile — Concordia Lutheran church in Fertile was broken into February 8 between the hours of 2:30 and 6 p.m. A cabinet was forced open and the office of youth director John Albertson was entered, but nothing was reported missing. The Fertile police department believes there may be a connection between the break-in and another church robbery the same day in which $35 was taken. The Fertile Journal writes, "Evidence indicates that the person or persons involved are local people since there were no items taken and they knew exactly where to find the keys to the cabinet as well as where the offerings were kept."

Bagley — American Legion Post 16 of Bagley presented the Bagley school district with ninety American flags of various sizes for use in classrooms recently. They also gave the 24 members of the Bagley school patrol stocking caps reading — what else — "School Patrol."

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Efficiency Is Possible

America may be able to improve the effectiveness of our armed forces, experts point out, if Congress makes a few changes in itself.

Senator Sam Nunn said: "If we are going to demand reform in DOD (the Department of Defense) we are going to have to reform ourselves." Committee Chairman Barry Goldwater was equally emphatic when he said: "Congress is compounding the problem of DOD and major changes in the way we conduct our business are long overdue."

Nevertheless, recent congressional actions suggest these changes are not being made, point out the experts at the Association of the United States Army.

The perennial issue of military base closings dramatically illustrates the failure of Congress to get its act together.

Once upon a time, the Defense Department was able to close or realign bases it no longer considered necessary. Congress reacted by voting itself increasing powers to review base closings. Now the Pentagon must go before Congress and attempt to justify proposed closings. As a consequence, political maneuvering and pork barrel politics ensure the continued existence of unneeded (and expensive) facilities.

According to the Grace Commission report, there are 5,535 military installations around the world — of which only 312 are essential for national defense. Yet every state and more than one-half of all Congressional districts contain or are close to military installations. Many Congressmen view military bases primarily as sources of local jobs, and few will let one close without a battle.

The result: Few are ever closed.

This is but one example of how Congress misleads the American public and itself stymies efforts to improve defense efficiency and cost saving.

Who Does The Work?

Recently the U.S. Supreme Court upheld a California law that requires employers to grant up to four months of unpaid leave to women disabled by pregnancy and childbirth, even if such leaves are not granted to other disabilities. The decision affirmed that the federal law against discrimination was ". . . a floor beneath which pregnancy disability benefits may not drop — not a ceiling above which they may not rise."

Columnist Ellen Goodman hailed the decision and said it provides a direct signal to the states that they can offer extra benefits to pregnant workers. Then she writes as follows:

"What next? The California law does raise the ceiling of benefits to pregnant women, but just a few inches. It only covers the physical disability of child-bearing, not child-caring. What working families need is a much wider support system to have families without losing their jobs and jobs without losing their families.

"The Supreme Court has said that we may allow the special treatment of pregnancy. The decision is a real, but not a final, victory for working women. Another mid-course correction looms ahead in the path toward equality.

"At this moment in change, we need to do more than just make it a bit easier for women to carry the double burden of work and home. We need to share the load. It's important to mute any disadvantage that employers find in hiring women. It's equally important to engage men in the earliest stages of their children's lives.

"From this plateau, we can take the next step. We can write disability programs that cover all workers. We can legislate child-care leave that includes fathers, like the parental-leave bill that Democratic Rep. Pat Schroeder of Colorado is shepherding through Congress. We have finally begun to raise the ceiling. Now it's time to raise the roof."

It is interesting to see that the Supreme Court and feminist advocates such as columnist Goodman have finally acknowledged that there are actually differences in men and women. Bumper stickers that proclaim "The Best Man for the Job May Be a Woman" may be a little outdated. Acknowledgement that pregnancy and child-birth and early child care require time away from work is perhaps overdue. As talk show host Bruce Williams frequently says, "I don't have any problem with that."

But we wonder at the proposed legislation which would include fathers in child care leave and liberalize time away from the job for working mothers. It might be a sociological step forward but it could be a disaster in the workplace and certainly a nightmare for employers.

The fact remains, whether the proponents of liberalization know it or not, that the reason either men or women are hired for jobs is because there is work that needs to be done. When those people are not on the job, either the work does not get done or other people are required to put in extra time and effort to fill the gap. Neither situation is good on a short term basis and both are intolerable over any extended period of time.

While we are legislatively lamenting the tribulations of conflicts between work and family, let's not lose sight of the fact that choices often have to be made. And in the rush to make it easier for child-bearing and child-rearing, consider the reason why employment exists in the first place. As we seek the answers to equality in employment, let's not forget to ask the question, "Who will do the work?"

No More Politics Needed

Following editorial by Tim Berg is from the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock:

A proposed bill sponsored by Rep. Jim Tunheim in the Minnesota House to establish a citizen advisory board to oversee Department of Natural Resources (DNR) functions would appear to be a step in the wrong direction in terms of protection of the state's natural resources.

The proposed 12-member advisory board would consist of four at-large members and eight elected by the legislature from the various congressional districts.

The function of the board, according to Rep. Tunheim, would be to make the DNR more responsive and accountable to the public and "would act as the governing body to allow the people of Minnesota additional opportunity to influence DNR actions."

If citizen influence means more episodes like the Grygla elk fiasco, the state can well do without more uniformed input from special interests, no matter how well-meaning.

The DNR is traditionally between a rock and a hard place when it comes to implementing programs for the protection and enhancement of natural resources. It's inescapable that they're going to step on some toes and make some enemies because of their charter which compels state-wide, not regional interest in protecting the environment and wildlife.

It should be noted that the DNR regularly conducts public hearings and solicits input from a variety of sources whenever contemplating actions that will affect citizen's property and livelihood. The fact that end results don't always please everyone should not be used as an excuse to entrench an additional level of bureaucracy into a decision making process which already takes into account professional, technical and political considerations.

There's no doubt that there would be precious little public land, clean water or wild game for the enjoyment of all the citizens of the state if decisions were left entirely to local interests.

Rep. Tunheim's bill may be a compromise version of similar proposals put forth previously by Independent Republicans which would have fragmented the DNR into powerless regional entites, each one subject to political influence and pressure from special interests throughout the state.

The end result would be the substitution of a self-serving process for professional knowledge, to the detriment, not only of the state's natural resources, but the best interests of the citizens, all of whom have a stake in the management and preservation of a valuable and vulnerable environment.

Politicians may be justified in catering to the special interests of a limited constituency, but a department charged with protecting and promoting the interests of a broader constituency, not all of whom are farmers or real estate developers, should not be hamstrung with another amateur regulatory board.

Excerpts from the February 18, 1937 Times, compiled by Sharon LaCoursiere.

— A little ad at the bottom of the classified page this week read, "FOR SALE: Propeller-driven snow sled. Price $190. James Philipp. Mavie, Minn." Would this have been a forerunner of our modern snowmobile?

— "Ladies: buy your Easter foundation garment from Mrs. T.P. Anderson, local representative of the Spencer Corset Company. Telephone 230."

— Pink salmon cost 10 cents a can, and red, 23 cents; oysters were 15 cents a can; and you could buy a large, five-pound economy pail of pickled herring for 79 cents — or one pound for 18 cents.

— In anticipation of Easter, hot cross buns were 15 cents a dozen and orange layer cakes cost 23 cents. If the ladies of the area were too indulgent of these, they would certainly be in need of Mrs. Anderson's services advertised above!

To The Editor:

This letter is to those customers on dual heat. When I came to pay my bill up there at the auditorium last week the girl said my allotment for heat help was used up and I had to pay $11.72 of the balance due. I was stunned but paid that $11.72.

When I got home I checked my paid stubs against what heat help was sent them, and I came up with $88.28 yet due me as credit. The next day I went up there with my proof. The other girl went over it and said I was right, plus the $11.72 I'd paid totaled $100.00 credit yet due me.

They did not return my over payment, but said they'd extend it on my credit. Well believe me, I am watching I get the full credit due me. I see no excuse for such an error by our city office. So customers, watch it and check, or it might happen to you.

Sincerely,
-s-Viola Dirks,

SOCIAL SECURITY QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

In an effort to more effectively serve the public, the Grand Forks social security office has changed its operating procedures to include appointments for those who prefer one. People walking in without an appointment will be waited on as usual, but may have to wait.

According to Howard Kossover, district manager, this change is being made to make better use of the workday and in response to public comment. Kossover said for the last several months a public comment box maintained in the office has indicated public desire for the opportunity to make an appointment.

"We feel that an appointment system will both address this concern and make better use of our time because our interviewers can plan their workday more effectively. When someone calls for an appointment we will advise them of the evidence needed to speed up the processing of their application. As a result the public will have better service and less waiting time.

"As an added service we will also schedule telephone appointments where we will telephone claimants at a specific time. This will let them complete their business without visiting the office," he said.

Not everyone requires an appointment, according to Kossover. "We realize that some people do not want a specific appointment and that a portion of our usual business, such as applications for social security numbers, are not conducive to appointments. However, we urge everyone to telephone first since virtually all of our business can be completed by telephone and because we can still advise people on what is needed. This helps speed up the processing of their application. In any case, we will take care of everyone who contacts the office either by phone or by walking in."

To speed up the application for social security numbers, a self-help desk has been set up in the office. This enables people applying for a new or replacement card to omit an interview which will decrease waiting time. Unless they have a question, all they have to do is complete the form and then have their certified birth certificate and ID examined by an interviewer.

Appointments can be made only for the Grand Forks office by calling 772-5517.

Q. My husband is age 68 with rheumatoid arthritis. He cannot sit on a regular chair as he has stiffened up. The doctor has prescribed a heavy duty lift chair for him. We asked Medicare to approve in advance the coverage of this and they said that the chair would not qualify? What now? Park River, ND.

A. A lift chair is usually not considered to be medical equipment because its basic use is to serve a comfort or convenience function rather than serve as medical treatment. An advance opinion by the local Medicare Carrier, in this case Blue Cross-Blue Shield of North Dakota, does not prevent you from submitting a formal claim for benefits if you decide to purchase the chair. A decision based on an actual claim can be appealed.

Q. Does your office have phone equipment to aid the hearing impaired? Grand Forks, ND.

A. Yes. The Grand Forks office has a TTY machine which enables us to receive telephone calls on a printer. Phone number 772-5517 should be used. Individuals phoning us in this manner should allow us some extra time to get the phone connected to the printer. We have this machine through the courtesy of the Minnesota regional service center for hearing impaired persons.

Q. I was in a car accident last month and will be unable to work for a long time. Should I obtain my X-rays and bring them with me when I apply for disability benefits?

A. You will be asked to provide names and addresses of doctors who have treated you and to sign medical release forms. You do not need to bring any medical reports with you but bringing what you have could make your claim go faster. In other words, bring what is readily available to you but we usually contact the doctors and hospitals directly. Social security strongly advises that you phone the office before coming in so that we can tell you what to bring with you and make an appointment if desired. Virtually all social security business can be completed by telephone.

Q. I've been getting SSI checks for the past four years. Every year my social security office contacts me for information and to fill out papers — little changes from year to year. Is all this really necessary?

A. Yes, it is. SSI is a program for people who are 65 or over, blind or disabled, and is based on need. To be sure that you're being paid correctly, your case must be reviewed from time to time.

You also are required to notify social security if you have a change in your address or living arrangements, your income or your resources. Changes can be reported by telephone, mail or in person. The phone number for the Grand Forks social security office is 701-772-5517; in Grafton 352-0656.

Q. My disability application was turned down. It was explained to me that just hurting so much that I cannot work is not good enough to be allowed. Why not? Roseau, MN.

A. Under existing law (PL 98.460) pain alone cannot have a significant effect on making a disability decision unless a medically determinable impairment is present which could reasonably be expected to produce the pain alleged. This illness or injury can be physical or psychological in nature. If you believe that the original decision is incorrect you can file the appeal called a "reconsideration." If this is done, the first decision will be reviewed by medical personnel not involved with that decision.

Q. I am mailing in applications to get my four children social security numbers. Do they need to be mailed separately?

A. No, you can mail them in one large envelope. Remember that we will need to see both a birth certificate and proof of identity for each child. Your documents will be returned.

From The

MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

With the Legislature now in its second week of the 1987 session, it might be a good time to put a visit to the State Capitol on your agenda if you are planning to be in the metropolitan area.

I believe most of you would find it both enlightening and interesting to spend some time sitting in on committee meetings, House or Senate floor debates, or just touring the Capitol and state office building to see the legislative process at work.

I know before I became a representative I really wasn't fully aware of what takes place on a "typical day at the Capitol." Now that everything is in full gear, I think you would enjoy sharing in the hustle and bustle of the political world right here at the hub of state government.

In addition to the legislative activities, there is the Capitol building itself, an outstanding architectural monument to the history and beauty of Minnesota. If you haven't visited the Capitol before, you may wish to take one of the guided tours available at the information desk in the Capitol Rotunda area. The tours take place on the hour, starting on weekdays at 9 a.m. and continuing until the last tour at 4 p.m. on Saturdays from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. and Sundays, 1 to 3 p.m.

Reservations are not necessary, but would be a good idea if you plan to visit as a large group. Special tours can be arranged in accordance with a particular interest area — whether it be art, architecture, history, etc. There are also brochures available for those who prefer a self-guided tour. For additional information or to make a reservation, call 612-296-3962 or 612-296-2739.

The House public information office in Room 175 of the state office building can prove a wealth of information on scheduled committee meetings, House sessions and the issues under discussion during any particular day. When you arrive at the Capitol, this would be a good first stop. Or if you wish to know what will be happening before you visit, dial the "House Call" line at 296-9283. It's a 24-hour telephone service that provides recorded messages about a day's legislative activities.

If you do visit the Capitol, please remember to let me know so we can arrange a visit. I am always eager to see people from home, and welcome the opportunity to talk with you about any particular concerns or questions you may have. My mailing address is Rep. Wally Sparby, State Office Bldg., St. Paul, MN 55155. My phone number is 612-296-9918.

Market information provided by the Chicago Board of Trade, 141 West Jackson Blvd., Chicago, IL 60604.

Another year has passed and the story of the 1986 farm economy was written, like that of 1985, in red ink. Farmers are peering across the foggy expanse of 1987, trying to see a profit and a respite from debt.

So is Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng, but he is quick to point out that his view, even from so lofty a perch, is just as murky.

"I don't have much confidnece in my ability to know what's ahead or anybody else's ability," he said in a year-end interview. Some things are apparent, though.

Farmland values will slow their decline. An easy prediction, Lyng feels. "They are already less than half of what they were."

Some trends started in 1986 will carry over into 1987. "We will have good net cash farm income," he said. "Income from livestock, poultry and dairy will remain good along with some other bright spots. But we will still have a huge surplus in the major grains and that is bound to put a damper on it."

While farmers and elevator operators have dealt with the mountains of stranded grain by building new storage facilities, the government has taken two different tacks. The 1986 Farm Bill lowered price supports. In concert, the Federal Reserve took action to devalue the American dollar, making American prices competitive on the world market. Still, the supply awaits an international demand.

And the surplus grows larger with every bumper crop.

Lyng expects Congress to renew its attack on those bumper crops with calls for mandatory production controls.

"Legislation for mandatory production controls will appear. I have opposed that. The administration will continue to oppose it," he said. "The 1985 Farm Bill should be left fairly much alone.

"One of the biggest problems is the cost. Everyone is worried about the deficit. There were $26 billion in farm payments last year."

Some of those payments were six- and seven-digit checks to large corporate operators which made those billions harder to swallow for legislators with non-agricultural constituencies.

Different formulas may be instituted to determine future payments.

Some have suggested tying payments to the size of the operation or simply covering the cost of production.

"So-called 'decoupling' of support prices from farm income," Lyng noted. "There may be some merit in that. But it's not so easy to administer. Just writing checks to farmers isn't the total answer.

"In all probability, we could see an adaptation of the 50-92 program of last year. Farmers were paid 92 per cent of their deficiency payment but only had to plant 50 per cent of their base. Some say we should reduce planting to zero per cent of base and pay 100 per cent of deficiency just to reduce the surplus."

Other legislation that may be considered will be aimed at opening foreign markets to U.S. products — or else.

Foreign trade representative Clayton Yeutter has been conducting negotiations with the European Community to determine the compensation due to the U.S. because of markets lost when Spain and Portugal were admitted to the EC fold.

As yet, those negotiations have been fruitless. President Reagan has announced tariff increases on a variety of the EC's food and drink exports that were to take effect Jan. 31 if an agreement is not reached.

"It's difficult to foresee," said Lyng, "but I expect the EC will counterretaliate. The European Community has some very serious problems of its own. They get preoccupied with that and sometimes you have to take some pretty strong action to get their attention."

Lyng, who accompanied Yeutter to Brussels for the negotiations, said the EC negotiators agreed that compensation for the lost markets is due but not about how much. "The offer was so low we couldn't take it seriously. They knew that," he said. "Why they would risk a trade war I don't know."

Farmers and exporters also complain that Third World customers have erected similar trade barriers to encourage domestic producers to achieve self-sufficiency ala India or China.

Otherwise, like Americans contend, there would have been a better response to the more favorable exchange rates, lower prices, and USDA's export enhancement program.

"It's disappointing that they haven't worked faster," he admits, "but I think the lack of Third World resources is a bigger problem then trade barriers."

Lower prices for U.S. grains have not increased exports because surplus is a global problem. "There were tremendous crops around the world last year," Lyng said.

The futures exchanges such as the Chicago Board of Trade are some other popular scapegoats for frustrated producers. Lyng views those markets as "vitally important."

"Properly used and properly regulated, futures can actually take some of the risk out of marketing for farmers," he said.

"In fact, I wonder why farmers produce things when they could purchase those things at below the cost of production on the futures market. Why spend more to produce for the cash market."

Lyng's personal agenda for 1987?

"The top priority will be the same — exports," he said. "The most important and the most difficult."

Meanings of particular words change over the years. One such word that has come to mean more today than it historically has is "lust." In lower-case form, its meaning is still basically the same. In its upper-case form, however, LUST means something much more volatile than an unharnessed emotion. LUST is the acronym for "Leaking Underground Storage Tanks," and, in this contest, "LUST" has been the basis of much recent environmental concern.

Every service station has them. Every community has them. So do farms. Underground storage tanks number in the millions nationwide, and an estimated 350,000 or more are leaking — and jeopardizing the quality of groundwater supplies throughout the country.

There are estimated to be as many as three to five million underground storage tanks in the United States. Industrial use of these storage tanks is primarily for fuel storage but also includes storage of a wide range of other substances: acids, metals, industrial solvents and chemical wastes. Commercial businesses and individual homeowners use underground storage tanks almost exclusively for fuel storage.

Most numerous underground storage tanks are those used for fuel oil at residences and for gasoline at service stations. An estimated 1.2 million steel underground storage tanks are found in service stations alone.

Installation and use of underground storage tanks are often not regulated, and there are no design requirements yet at the federal level or in many states for storage facilities that might pose a threat to groundwater. Of further concern is that the typical design life of tanks varies from 15 to 20 years for unprotected steel tanks and is highly dependent on environmental conditions.

Underground storage tanks are known to have caused many cases of groundwater contamination. Experts estimate that as many as 350,000 underground gas tanks may be leaking nationwide, and the threat of leaks from older tanks may be increasing.

The implication for human populations is very real. According to the U.S. EPA, leaking storage tanks may be causing the "most serious risks to human health and the environment."

For the 50 per cent of Americans — and 75 per cent of all Minnesotans — who depend on groundwater for drinking water supplies, LUST should be regarded as a not-so-subtle reminder that groundwater is a resource-at-risk — and we should all be concerned.

We are flooded with information today — with more information than we can readily handle. Current water problems are presented, discussed and analyzed at great length in a multitude of booklets, brochures, flyers, reports, studies, slide shows and any other format you can imagine.

We probably have sufficient high quality information right now to help us address water problems. What we need though, is to help people change, to make them aware of water concerns and to encourage them to become involved in the process of doing something about them.

What do we need to make that happen? We need education — not information, but education.

What's the difference? It's a big one.

Information is brochures sitting in a little holder on a table in an agency office, waiting to be picked up and read. Information is bookshelves full of reports, studies and surveys of water-related problems. Information is people with knowledge and expertise and ideas, sitting in meetings talking with other people with knowledge, expertise and ideas.

Information is booklets, reports, slideshows and speakers sitting around someplace waiting to be used.

How is education different? Education bypasses the waiting part. Education is getting the booklets and studies and speakers out to the people — at conferences, at farm shows, at town meetings, in schools, even right into their homes. Education is the timely and efficient distribution of appropriate information to appropriate audiences.

For water concerns, time is critical, and change is a notoriously slow process. Information itself, even excellent information, does nothing to speed the process of change. Information just exists until it becomes the basis for education which builds awareness and involves people personally in the process of change.

It's beginning to happen. Education programs and public awareness campaigns are increasing as we begin to realize the importance of getting everyone involved in the process of change.

We're beginning to understand the critical difference between information and education. Information is a product — a necessary but static product. Education is a process — a necessary and vital process.

We're taking the information off the shelves and tables and out of the dusty boxes and we're taking it to the people. That's education. It's beginning to happen, and we need to be sure it continues.

The Freshwater Foundation has excellent information available on water issues. Contact the foundation at 2500 Shadywood Road, Box 90, Navarre, MN 55392 or call (612) 471-8407 for a list of publications.

Goodridge Gives Recognition To Teachers, Students

grade basketball and junior high football.

In his classes students in grades seven through nine work on a single project such as a night stand and the senior class must select items that have drawers and doors in their project. All materials are paid for by the students. Safety is part of the class education program. The class is not just for boys, a number of girls in grades seven through nine are also taking industrial arts classes.

Brown would like to see computer carpentry and drafting become part of the basic introduction in the curriculum as software is available now.

Brown's hobbies include hunting, fishing, softball, and he would like to get into taxidermy. His family includes his wife and two daughters, Sara and Erica and a new addition to the family is expected soon.

RUTH SACKETT came from the Viking area and took her Normal training in Warren. Her first teaching job was in the Edgewood country school district 28, located northeast of Viking.

She spent many of her teaching days in other country schools such as Angus, Radium, Steiner and in the town of Viking. From 1956 through 1966 she was a substitute teacher and spent much of her time raising her two daughters, Rita and Ronica.

In the fall of 1966 Ruth started working seriously on her bachelor of science degree and in 1969 she graduated from Bemidji state university. She has spent the past 21 years teaching in Goodridge and this year her second grade class has 21 students.

Her hobbies include gardening, reading and sewing. She and her husband Roger spend some relaxing days fishing on Lake of the Woods.

One project that takes place in her classroom is a trip to Thief River Falls in the spring where the students sing for Valley home residents, have a picnic in the park and visit her home.

LINDA PETERSON taught first grade in Thief River Falls before coming to Goodridge where she now teaches kindergarten. She graduated from Karlstad high school and received her bachelor of science degree from Bemidji state university. She has also taken additional classes at both Hamline University and Bemidji state.

This year she is spending more time with her class of 24 students in the area of science. One project is making miniature volcanoes using baking soda, vinegar and food coloring. Another project that her students are involved in is drawing pictures and the fifth and sixth grade students write stories about the picture.

Her hobbies include golfing, reading, playing the piano and being a spectator at sports events with hockey at the top of her list. She also enjoys riding her bicycle and thinks nothing of riding it to Goodridge for breakfast.

Linda and her husband Neil have three children, Jason, Kelly and Alison. The love to travel during the summer and camping-out overnight is one of the highlights for the children.

Special education instructor HELEN DAVIDSON has been with the program for sixteen years. She carries a masters degree in elementary education and administration with a special certification in elementary reading and special education. She received her Normal training in Thief River Falls and at one time taught at a country school located just west of Highlanding which included all eight grades.

Her hobbies include knitting and cross country skiing with her husband Glenn near Lake of the Woods. They have three children, Craig, Clyde and Stacy, their youngest who as many remember, was the pianist for the musical, "Oklahoma."

There will be more demands by the state for school districts to provide more help for the emotionally disturbed children, according to Helen, and as far as what is being done now in special education, it has about reached its plateau and the program needs evaluating.

RHODA HRUBY, the sixth grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hruby, likes Goodridge school because "the teachers are the best."

Rhoda was chosen as the elementary student of the month for December. Her favorite subjects are math and reading and her activities at school include playing the flute in band and participating in school musicals and band concerts. She participated in the 1986 spelling bee and plans to participate this year also. Her activities outside of school keep her busy. She serves as vice president for the Mavie 4-H club. In her spare time she babysits and collects shells, and likes to cook and take photographs.

CALLY WILSON, the eighth grade daughter of Suzette Johnsrud and Jon Wilson, believes the best thing about going to the Goodridge school is that everyone knows each other and that is what is good about attending a small school.

Her favorite subjects are art and science. Her extra-curricular activities include band and volleyball. She is the basketball manager and president of her class. She is also a member of the local 4-H club.

BETTY JO KIESOW, 11th grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kiesow, said she likes Goodridge school because of the closeness of a small community.

Betty Jo is a member of the national honor society and was a star xylophone player for the school years of 1985 and 1986. Her extra-curricular activities include band and basketball and her hobbies include reading and playing the drums. She keeps very busy in school as a member of the student council, the annual staff, the letter-persons, the pep club, knowledge bowl and national honor society. Her favorite subject is English.

Students chosen for the month of January were Laura Vettleson, Rhonda Srnsky and Shawn Groven.

RHONDA SRNSKY, the eighth grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Srnsky, likes attending Goodridge school because "they have a lot of activities and spirit; and, we are all like one big happy family."

Rhonda's favorite subjects are math and science. Her extra-curricular and co-curricular activities include volleyball, basketball, band and pep club. She enjoys listening to tapes, riding three-wheelers, snowmobiling and caring for animals. She belongs to the Catholic Youth Organization and her personal motto in athletics is to give it all she's got.

SHAWN GROVEN, the 11th grade son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Groven, likes a small school like Goodridge because everyone gets along with each other.

Shawn's favorite subjects are math and industrial arts. He is a member of the natioanl honor society and has been named to the all conference football team, all conference basketball team, and named most valuable player in football and basketball. Obviously his extra-curricular activities are basketball and football. In his spare time he enjoys snowmobiling, hunting and other sports. He is also a member of Luther League.

Stress Materials Gain Popularity Across Country

"Growing Beyond Stress" — a national community service project aimed at assisting farm, ranch and rural families in coping with the emotional trauma that often accompanies the financial stress resulting from a difficult agricultural economy — has reached an estimated 2,500 families since the program was unveiled in mid-November of 1986, according to officials of Cenex, sponsor of the program.

"The level of response to the program has been much higher than expected," Cenex community relations director David Karpinski told reporters during a press conference held in conjunction with the Cenex annual meeting at the Bismarck (ND) convention center. "It indicates there is a real need for stress related services in the rural community — and Cenex has made a commitment to helping meet that need."

Karpinski said "Growing Beyond Stress" materials have been sent to support groups and individual families from Virginia to Washington state. Each kit includes resource materials for leading a three-part workshop or seminar series designed to help participants identify stress symptoms, clarify the causes of stress and cope with stress and stressful situations. More than 800 stress kits have already been distributed and requests continue to come in at a rate of eight to 10 a day.

"We originally printed 1,000 kits, but the project is already in its second printing," Karpinski said. "We are receiving requests from farm organizations, church groups, mental health centers, educational institutions, youth groups — just about any organized community group that sees a need to deal with stress in the community. In addition, we have received dozens of requests from individual farm families, who prefer to tackle this issue in a private family unit setting."

Combustion Air For Home Heating Can Hold Danger

Some widely publicized home heating system malfunctions this winter have put the spotlight on the importance of an adequate combusion air supply, say energy specialists at the department of public service.

A home's heating system, whether it's a furnace, boiler or wood stove, needs air from outside the house to function properly. If for some reason there isn't enough air getting to the flame, it's possible for a life-threatening situation to develop.

In Minnesota, the most common type of home heating system is the natural draft furnace. The hot exhaust gases created when the gas is burned for heat rise naturally up the chimney. No special means of bringing air to the furnace was provided in older homes — instead, the air needed for combusion leaks into the house through small cracks and holes in the structure.

In some situations, however, if the supply of outside air is inadequate, the exhaust gases may stay in the house and be burned again in the furnace. When this happens, deadly carbon monoxide is formed.

There are a number of possible causes. Other appliances, such as a clothes drier, water heater and especially fireplaces, may also be working and using air. Bathroom and kitchen fans may be running, while attic insulation bypass allow inside air to escape to the attic.

If some or all of these factors are present, the draft up through the chimney can be reversed, causing the hot exhaust to be drawn down into the house. Extended periods of mild weather can often make the situation worse — the funace doesn't run as often, allowing the chimney to cool, and a cool chimney doesn't draft as well as a hot one.

One way to tell is you have enough combustion air is to perform a draft hood test. The draft hood is an opening that allows room air to enter the exhaust system. It is usually a device in the pipe just above the furnace fan, or an opening near the top of the furnace, close to the exhaust pipe that runs to the chimney.

Turn the furnace on and let it run for a few minutes. Then hold something that smokes near the draft hood and see if the smoke is drawn into it. If it isn't, then exhaust gases are spilling into the house. Let the flue cool down, and then do the test again with all exhausting devices operating, such as kitchen fans, bathroom fans and clothes driers. Also make sure that all vented appliances such as water heaters are running. Do the test a third time with any wood stoves or fireplaces operating.

If you find the exhaust system malfunctioning, you need to bring additional combustion air into the house immediately. The quickest solution might be to crack open a window in the furnace room until you can install a permanent air supply.

For detailed information on home heating system combusion air and how to test for it, call the Minnesota Energy Information Center and ask for the free guide, "Combustion Air for Safe Heating." Inside the Twin Cities area call 296-5175. Long distance call toll-free 800-652-9747, and ask the operator for "energy."

Dry Eyes, Mouth Can Be Related To Arthritis

Bothered by a dry mouth and dry eyes — and things seem to be getting worse?

The problem might be Sjogren's syndrome. This condition is often seen among people who have rheumatoid arthritis, lupus and scleroderma, but half the people who have Sjogren's do not have these diseases.

People with Sjogren's feel severe dryness of the eyes and mouth, which makes chewing, swallowing and speaking difficult. Their eyes may feel gritty and itchy.

People with this condition should drink fluids frequently. Artificial tears or eyedrops can relieve dry eyes. Regular dental checks and good oral hygiene are essential since the risk of developing cavities increases with this condition.

For more information, contact the Arthritis foundation and request a copy of the brochure "Sjogren's Syndrome." Telephone 1-800-552-1278.

Ag Department Inspects State's Seafood Firms

Minnesota department of agriculture (MDA) recently contracted with the National Marine Fisheries service (NMFS) to provide federal seafood processing inspection in the federal agency's behalf.

The contract, in effect since January 20, will enable the MDA to provide inspection services to Sea-Fest Products of Motley, a division of International Multifoods. The firm produces surimi-based products that are popular replacements for seafood.

"This agreement will allow the MDA to offer inspection services to SeaFest and other Minnesota firms interested in seafood processing and will also save the NMFS considerable time and money," said Tom Masso, Minnesota department of agriculture food inspection division director.

The MDA will inspect facilities for federal standards pertaining to grades, specifications, regualtions governing processed fishery products and other NMFS regulations and requirements.

LEAFING THROUGH YOUR LIBRARY

by Deanna Swanson
Branch Librarian

We all remember when the ship Hjemkomst sailed to Norway and made a name for itself. The Thief River Falls Library will commemorate the event with a special program on February 19 at 2 p.m. Betty Westberg, a sister-in-law of the ship's builder, the late Bob Asp, will be here to show a videofilm and speak about the Hjemkomst.

Speaking of programs, the storytime for toddlers on Tuesday mornings, and for three to five-year-olds on Wednesday mornings, featured bunnies this week. "This bunny is mine!" announced a two-year-old at the toddler storytime. Jean Heinrichs, program presenter, wondered if his father would be thrilled to have a real live bunny at his house.

To enhance the stories told about rabbits at storytime, Sandy Drevlow brought two rabbits to visit with the children. The toddlers were thrilled to be able to pet the bunnies and watch them hop. The three to five-year-old group on Wednesday took turns holding the rabbits. The rabbit puppets which Jean used were not as popular as the real thing.

After the storytimes, the children and their mothers pick out books. Titles which feature rabbits include "I Am A Bunny" by Richard Scarry, "The Rabbit" by John Burningham, "The Great Bunny Race" by Kathy Feczko and "The Marathon Rabbit" by Mike Eagle.

I selected some titles from our new books which will interest elementary students. These are juvenile non-fiction and juvenile fiction books. The non-fiction books can be found with the adult non-fiction books. "Through Grandpa's Eyes" by Patricia MacLachlan tells of a young boy who learns how his Grandpa uses his hearing, smelling and touching senses in place of his eyes. Jeanne Cole prepares siblings for the many changes a newborn brings in her book "The New Baby at Your House". Children learn about eagles being an endangered species and that they are a symbol of America's freedom in "Where the Bald Eagles Gather", by Dorothy Hinshaw.

Cenex Reports Increases In Sales Volume

Despite a year in which a slumping agricultural economy, shrinking production acreage and declining farm input prices cut deeply into agribusiness sales and earnings, Cenex was able to increase sales volume and market share and will return $7.5 million in patronage to its member-owners, officials of the regional farm supply cooperative said today.

Cenex group vice presidents Noel Estenson (petroleum and finance) and Dave Johnson (operations) reported on Cenex 1986 operations and finances to more than 2,000 delegates and visitors gathered at the Bismarck (ND) civic center for the 56th annual meeting.

"Fertilizer prices, which have dropped $47 dollars a ton since 1982, dropped $15 a ton in 1986," Johnson said. "That price decline alone reduced Cenex fertilizer sales by $38 million — a figure, which on the bright side represents significant cost savings for our farmer-rancher owners."

Johnson added that Cenex increased both fertilizer sales volume and market share in 1986, with fertilizer unit volume (tonnage) up nearly eight per cent, while the industry was down an estimated 10 per cent.

Estenson painted a similar picture of the situation in the petroleum industry, where prices were down 40 per cent in 1986. Estenson lauded the impact of that decline on farm and ranch production costs, but added that it created considerable challenge for the Cenex petroleum division.

"Dollar sales were down 15 per cent, despite a six per cent increase in gallonage — about twice the industrywide average," Estenson said.

Other sales volume and market share highlights of the Cenex operations report included a 13 per cent decline in ag chemical sales, as compared to an industrywide 22 per cent slump; a one per cent increase in fee tonnage, as compared to an industry decline of about 10 per cent; and a five per cent increase in seed sales, which also outdistanced the industry.

This all added up to 1.1 billion in sales and $461,000 in earnings on continuing operations, Estenson said. He added, however, that reorganization and belt-tightening in response to a difficult agricultural economy resulted in a $12.1 million negative bottom line.

The Cenex group vice president went on to explain that those losses were primarily asset write-downs, as opposed to cash losses, noting that Cenex did complete the year with $11.3 million in potentially taxable income.

Annual Toothpick Engineering Event Set In Moorhead

Fargo-Moorhead Engineering club will hold its 14th annual toothpick engineering contest at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, February 24, in Moorhead center mall. It's open to any student of any age.

Object of the event is to build a model span bridge by gluing together roughly 500 round, wooden toothpicks. The structure's total weight, however, can't exceed 85 grams (.1875 pounds).

The bridges should be strong enough and built to support nine-inch metal weights while clearing a 22-inch span. During the contest weights are stacked on top of each model and the one that supports the heaviest load before collapsing wins.

Any student — elementary through college — who would like to enter the contest, or receive detailed rules, should write or call Charles Martin at Moorhead state university's pre-engineering department (218) 236-2240 or 236-2104.

Entries should be brought to Moorhead center mall by 5:30 p.m. the evening of the contest. Prizes and trophies will be awarded to the top three designs and to the best design in each age group.

The contest is being held in conjunction with national engineering week.

Senator Says US People Want Clean Water Act

"Veto of the clean water bill is almost irrelevant," U.S. Senator Dave Durenberger said recently.

"The message is clear. The Congress and the American people are determined to enact a clean water act which provides adequate funding for municipal sewage treatment, with or without the President's support. Once again, the President's veto will be over-ridden."

The clean water act, which Sen. Durenberger co-sponsored, was passed January 21 by a 93-6 Senate majority. It commits $18 billion to building municipal sewage treatment systems over eight years, including about $44 million per year in sewage treatment grants for cities in Minnesota.

Sen. Durenberger made his comments at a press conference in Moorhead where he also discussed the impact of the pending federal highway reauthorization bill on Minnesota communities.

In all, Durenberger said, 173 Minnesota communities have been identified as "high priority" for municipal sewage treatment funding under the Clean Water Act. "Most are smaller communities in rural areas which would go broke," Durenberger said, "If they tried to finance the full cost of building a new sewage treatment system themselves.

"Federal water quality standards are requiring cities to upgrade their sewage treatment systems," Durenberger said, "and the federal government has an obligation to help pay the bill."

World Is Losing Ground Due To Erosion Problems

"The Dust Bowl of the Great Depression awakedned many Americans to the need for soil conservation. Unfortunately, over the intervening 50 years our national commitment to preserving our fertile farm lands has slipped away. Now erosion rates in the Midwest are higher than in the thirties," states Mary C. Turek of the Land Stewardship Project.

"In this country people still find it relatively easy to ignore soil erosion. We have some of the richest soil in the world, so the crisis of land will not become for us a crisis of hunger in this generation. Most of us simply refuse to worry about preserving the land for unborn generations.

"Other countries do not have our cushion of prosperity. In Haiti, for example, the connection between destruction of the land and hunger is glaringly apparent. Deforestation and erosion have stripped the land. According to one farmer, we have a saying that the rocks have children here.

"Haiti's deforestation goes back to colonial days when the French cleared the land to produce export crops of sugar and coffee. Honduras has a similar, though more recent, reason for deforestation: its mountainsides are stripped by beef cattle raised for export to the United States. In Honduras, the cattle are eating the mountains.

"On the other side of the world, Vietnam's tropical forests are also vanishing," Turek said. "Defoliants, including Agent Orange, killed 4.9 million acres during the Vietnam war. Lumbering, firewood gathering, population pressure and clearing for agricultureal purposes continue to contribute to the problem. Forest cover has dropped from 50 per cent before World War II to 20 per cent today, with accompanying damage to the soil and fertility.

"In Africa the land suffers from desertification. Overgrazing and over-farming wear out the land which then turns to desert. The problem has been aggravated by the recent drought, but desertification has much more to do with agricultural practices than with lack of rain," Turek said.

"As the song says, we are the world. And we all share a responsibility for restoring, preserving and protecting the good earth which feeds us all."

(Aim of the non-profit Land Stewardship Project, 512 West Elm, Stillwater, is to apply religious, ethical and environmental principles of caring for the land and the people on it. The project is built around the concept that farmers and landowners have a moral obligation to the land, and that society as a whole shares that obligation.)

Hartz Wholesale Name Changed To Hartz Foods

RIBBON CUTTING ceremony Friday morning at 10 a.m. officially opened the Heritage Community center building in Thief River Falls. Combining on the scissors work were Mayor Bob Carlson (left) and Morris Howick, chairman of the Pennington county council on aging which built and operates the senior center. In brief comments before the ribbon cutting, Mayor Carlson said that "through the doors of this facility pass those who, in my estimation, are the finest people in the world . . . senior citizens." Howick thanked the people on hand for attending, invited them inside for coffee and tours of the building, and greeted them at the door.

Annual meeting of L.B. Hartz Wholesale, Inc., produced several items of consequence this year, including a report of the most successful year ever in sales volume and profitability and a new name for the wholesale grocery firm which has operated in Thief River Falls for years.

Members of the corporation voted to change the name of the company to Hartz Foods, Inc., according to Sheldon Knutson, who was reelected as president. "The new name is shorter and less cumbersome," he said, "and is also more specific in identifying what our business is all about. The word 'wholesale' could indicate that about any type of operation while the word 'food' is specific and easily understood by anyone."

At the annual meeting four directors were reelected to the board of directors for three-year terms. They include grocery store owner members Everett Ault of Thief River Falls and Dally Sass of Grafton, ND, and company workers David Johnson and Elling Iverson.

Reelected at the reorganizational meeting of the board following the general membership meeting were Knutson as president, Elling Iverson as vice president and head buyer, Everett Kompelien as secretary and office manager and Orville Trontvet as treasurer and cashier.

The annual meeting of members was conducted February 10 in Thief River Falls, following a food fair February 8 and 9 at the national guard armory where 70 booths were arranged by food and related suppliers and about 500 people attended. A banquet for dealers and sales representatives was served to about 400 people at the Best Western Inn on the night of February 9.

Because of the competitive nature of the wholesale food business, officers of the company declined to list for publication the dollar amounts of sales volume and profitability which they said were both company records. But they did provide a number of statistics which give some insight into the size of the operation and its contribution to the community of Thief River Falls.

Knutson said that sales volume of the company had gained about 15 per cent over the past five years and that the number of stores served at the end of the fiscal year (Sept. 30, 1986) was 348, an increase of 20 stores over the previous fiscal year. The stores are all located in Minnesota and North Dakota, he said, and 229 were represented in person or by proxy for voting at the annual meeting.

The company operates 35 truck-tractors which traveled more than two million miles during the past fiscal year in procurement and delivery of grocery items. Delivery is provided on a regular basis twice a week and a computer ordering system — which is in the process of being improved and expanded — permits grocers anywhere in the system to receive next-day delivery on any of their regular delivery days.

Beginning last October 1 the company began billing and assembling of shipments on Sunday. Although Hartz Wholesale was one of the last

Marshall County Sheriff's Dep't. Captures Robbers

Capture of three suspected bank robbers by Marshall county sheriff's department with assistance from Warren and Stephen police on Thursday probably turned out better than anyone could have expected.

Friday morning, Marshall county sheriff deputy Mike Johnson told the Times by phone that one of the suspects, earlier identified in other news releases as Paul Milton Fullerton, 28, from Mayflower, AR, was really an alias. His true identity is Thomas George Harrelson. Harrelson was wanted by the FBI on a long list of criminal charges including robbery and attempted murder.

"We are very glad and probably fortunate things went the way they did," Johnson said.

As events unfolded Thursday, Marshall county sheriff's department was notified around 2:30 p.m. that a robbery had taken place in Drayton, ND, and the suspects were known to be heading their way.

Johnson said as one of their deputies spotted the car used in the get-away stuck in a ditch, four family members were taken hostage. The family apparently stopped to assist the stranded motorists, according to Johnson.

Clayton and Janet Pokrzywinski of Lankin, ND, along with their two granddaughters, age six months and three years, stopped their grain truck to offer assistance. The Pokrzywinskis were going to Argyle and driving along highway 220 just north of Oslo.

Janet Pokrzywinski said they had

World Series Of Snowmobile Races Attracts Big Crowd

As the fourth annual World Series snowmobile races came to a close in Thief River Falls on Sunday, officials were pondering just how things could have been different.

Motorsports Racing Plus (MRP) officials were pleased with the crowd of nearly 4,000 and the fact that few accidents happened. In fact, everything seemed to go very well, according to Tim Berg of MRP. Of course, a little less snow and more sunshine would have brought out more people, but it was enough for Berg and many of the racers to be sledding on snow for a change.

Berg said this seems like it's the first race with snow this year and even though the track was a little rough and changes had to be made because water came up through the ice, it was great. Actually, another 600 feet of straightaway also would have made the track better, he said.

Other racers and officials agreed with his assessment of the track and all thought the credit for a good track should be given to the Jaycees of Thief River Falls, who sponsored the event along with the chamber of commerce of Thief River Falls.

Sue Lillevold of the chamber of commerce agreed that the race went well. She said 153 racers registered at the chamber of commerce before the races. She believed the crowd was larger on Saturday than the past couple of years despite blowing snow. Racers came from throughout the midwest to attend the World Series snowmobile race.

High-point racers were Steve Johnson and Steve Houle. Johnson of Wentworth, SD, won high-point honors for the sport class, winning a VCR from the convention and visitors bureau.

Drawing some of the biggest crowds were the favorite Kitty Cat races held on Sunday. Enthusiastic youngsters as well as parents and friends watched as Arne Rantanen Jr. of Warroad, Bryan Dyrdahl of Bagley and Shane Sabraski of Rice Lake won first, second and third respectively in the stock Kitty Cat races. In the modified Kitty Cat races Kenny Klaudt of Bismarck, ND, won first; Kyle LaFave of Plummer won second; and Landon Adamson of Thief River Falls won third.

Other race results included:

George Liapis Selected MCC Teacher Of Year

"Academic success is different for each student. My goal is to motivate, to encourage and to help each student do his or her very best. For some that means earning a C; for others, it means earning an A.

"It is not the actual grade that is important, but that each student achieves the grade that represents his or her best effort. Success is being the best that you possibly can be. As a teacher it is important to me that I do my best to make that happen."

If you say that sounds like part of the philosophy of teaching by someone who ought to be teacher of the year, give yourself an A and go to the head of the class. It is an excerpt from the philosophy of education prepared by George Liapis, teacher of the year at Marshall County Central high school at Newfolden.

Liapis was selected for the honor at Newfolden this year by a committee of the Marshall County Central Education association (MCCEA) headed by Linda Bradseth. He will be that school's entry in statewide competition for Minnesota teacher of the year.

"It is important for a teacher to create the proper atmosphere within the classroom so that each student, if he or she chooses, can perform at the best of his or her ability. There are many factors that contribute to building an atmosphere where a student will choose to succeed," Liapis said.

He is one teacher who can draw upon experience in earning a living outside the field of education to relate subject matter to his students. He worked in a managerial position for S & L Company in Bemidji for five years before returning to teaching and coming to Newfolden in the 1981-82 school year.

Liapis, 36 and single, is originally from the Bemidji area. His father was a school administrator and the family moved a number of times while George was attending school. He attended sixth through 11th grade at Hallock but graduated from Clearbrook high school. After two years at the University of Minnesota in St. Paul, he attended Bemidji state university for two years and graduated in 1975 with a bachelor of science degree in education with a broad science major — a major no longer offered at BSU.

George taught earth and physical science at Ortonville for two years before taking the retailing job in Bemidji and later moving to Newfolden. The curriculum has been somewhat molded to his expertise, according to principal David Kragness. Liapis teaches all of the junior high science courses — two sections each of seventh grade life science, eighth grade earth science and ninth grade physical science.

"We have said for some time that if we have the right person in the junior high school science area we would prefer that person to have all of the science classes," Kragness said. "We believe we have found the right person and we are very happy with the way it seems to be working."

Kragness acknowledged that Liapis is not highly visible in the types of community activities many people choose. "His life is right here," the principal said, indicating the school building. "It is common to see him in the classroom well beyond normal school hours, or maybe before or after some sporting contest or other school activity, giving personal help to students who want or need it."

All of which is not to say that Liapis shuns activity other than what is in his classroom. He is speech coach at the school (four years as head coach after two years as assistant) and is carrying on the strong tradition the school has maintained. Marshall County Central is the defending District 32 speech champion and has been either champion or runner-up for the past 11 years.

A member of the National Education association and Minnesota Education association, he is a past president of the Marshall County Central chapter, presently serves as vice president and will advance to the presidency for a second time next year. He videotapes the school's football games and assists with volleyball matches. Because his parents have a resort in the Bemidji area where he spends his summers and most weekends, he holds membership in First Lutheran church there.

For leisure time activities he enjoys curling, golf, tennis, spectator sports, gardening and yard work and hunting.

"Each student is a unique individual unto himself or herself and it is important to me that I show concern for each student's personal well-being," Liapis states in his philosophy of education. "For the most part that involves being willing

Cold Facts About The Common Cold

In spite of the nearly one billion colds Americans catch each year, a recent survey shows many people still have questions about the causes, spread and treatment of the common cold.

What is a cold and how is it caused?

A cold is an infection of the upper respiratory tract, that is, the nose, throat and sinuses. Colds are caused by some 200 different viruses. One, the rhinovirus, is the most common, accounting for about 30 per cent of all colds.

Should colds be taken seriously?

Yes. While most colds clear up without any aftereffects, complications can arise. Untreated colds can occasionally lead to more serious illnesses, including bronchitis and pneumonia. The elderly, those with chronic illnesses, such as heart disease or diabetes, pregnant women or young children, are likely to feel a cold's effects more seriously and are more prone to developing complications. It's advisable to consult a physician if anyone in these risk groups experiences cold symptoms.

What is the difference between a cold and the flu?

While many symptoms are similar, the flu is usually accompanied by a sudden and severe onset, and a combination of fever, chills, headache, fatigue, muscle aches and a sore throat. Common symptoms of the common cold can include a runny, stuffy nose, sneezing, watery eyes, a slight cough, loss of appetite and sense of smell and a general run-down feeling.

What's the best treatment for the common cold?

Most experts advise a common-sense approach to cold management, including staying comfortable, drinking plenty of liquids, eating a balanced diet and not smoking. Just as important as rest and proper diet, is use of an over-the-counter cold medication. Such products are quite effective in releaving symptoms of sneezing, runny nose and congestion.

A decongestant reduces swelling of the nasal passages, which relieves congestion and allows you to breathe easier, while the antihistamine dries up the excess secretions and decreases the sneezing associated with the common cold.

How are colds spread?

Colds are most commonly spread through hand contact. Surprisingly, kissing, sneezing and coughing are not usually to blame. Cold viruses can survive on hard surfaces for hours, and healthy people contract colds by shaking hands with a cold sufferer or touching an infected surface, then rubbing their nose or eyes.

What's the best way to avoid catching or spreading a cold?

If possible, avoid contact, especially hand contact, with cold sufferers. To help build resistance to infection, eat a balanced diet, get adequate rest, exercise regularly and don't smoke. If you do catch a cold, you can lessen the chance of others catching it by washing your hands frequently with soap and water, using disposable tissues, avoiding crowded rooms with poor air circulation and disinfecting contaminated objects with soap and water or disinfectant spray.

Is there a preventaive or cure for the common cold?

Scientists are working on a variety of remedies to prevent or cure the common cold. Some of the current research involves a compound called interferon, zinc and specially-treated tissues. However, don't look for any cure to be on the market soon — extensive testing is still needed.

DEED Commissioner David Speer, told a large group of listeners Friday at the Best Western in Thief River Falls that despite DEED's St. Paul location, the major focus of the department will continue to be in greater Minnesota.

Group Sings Praise Of DEED Friday At Meet In TRF

City mayors and councilmen, county commissioners, businessmen, farmers, reporters, educators and representatives of various religious denominations as well as other state governmental staff members listened to testimony of praise for the Minnesota Department of Energy and Economic Development (DEED) Friday at a meeting of DEED officials and state legislators at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

Singing the praise of DEED and requesting that the legislators in attendance carry back their message seemed to be the main order of business. However, dissent over Governor Rudy Perpich's proposed tax reform bill also surfaced and was a hotly discussed topic.

Arvid Christianson, Fosston, praised DEED for its assistance to his community and said he hoped the legislators would go back and convince other legislators not to cut funding for DEED.

DEED Commissioner David Speer, and legislators who spoke before the large group, said that despite DEED's St. Paul location, the focus of the department would continue to be in greater Minnesota.

Sen. Roger Moe said DEED's approach to helping greater Minnesota was changing from a single business approach to a more regional approach. Moe said different regions often identify different needs and sources.

Sen. Moe said there is a large interest in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area in helping identify different needs and sources. He is author of a bill that redefines assistance to greater Minnesota.

Mayor Bob Carlson of Thief River Falls said DEED should be praised for its assistance to rural Minnesota, especially by Thief River Falls. He said he also understood that DEED had to support the governor's proposal. But, he said, he wondered what the future would bring if enterprise zone credit was eliminated and property taxes continued to climb.

Mayor Carlson and Don Stewart, community development director in Thief River Falls, pointed out that if enterprise credit were eliminated as proposed by the governor's plan, Thief River Falls could lose as much as $880,000.

Stewart said a cost-benefit analysis was in the process of being compiled by all the cities involved. According to his figures in Thief River Falls, the state has received about $2 for every $1 it has invested.

Don Barron, city councilman for Thief River Falls, commenting upon commercial property taxes that will increase by over 20 per cent in Thief River Falls, said "We can't stand it, friends; we can't stand it."

Sen. Moe, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer and Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls said they were aware of the problems and they were taking steps to correct them.

Sen. Moe said as far as he was concerned the governor's property tax program was "dead on arrival almost immediately."

Rep. Todd Otis and Sen. Lawrence Pogemiller, both of the Minneapolis area, echoed Moe's message. Otis and Pogemiller both added, however, that the Minneapolis area, on average, pays more for help that goes to the rural area than people who live in the affected rural areas.

Rep. Pogemiller said he expected cooperation with the legislators from the city and rural areas to continue because it is in their interest to help the rural area, which he believes is tied to the economy in urban areas. Pogemiller said the cities are experiencing problems related to problems in the rural areas already, though they are of a different nature. He said urban areas are suffering the affects of rapid growth and a migration from rural areas to urban areas.

Pogemiller said cooperation has existed for a long time, but now many people in the Minneapolis area feel they should take care of themselves first, and now that they have the power to say so, they want to keep it.

Pogemiller warned the group to keep in mind that the people in the Twin Cities pay more generally, and don't complain. he said continued cooperation is necessary to both rural and urban areas.

This meeting was one of several meetings DEED officials plan to hold in rural communities throughout the state this month.

Marshall County Sheriff's Dept. Captures Robbers

just passed a young girl and a man on crutches when a man stepped into the truck's path and waved them down.

Janet said they couldn't have kept going unless they ran over the man, but they also didn't know they were to be in such danger. She said she later learned that people from the bank in Drayton were watching the events unfold from a nearby farm, aware of the danger the family was in, but unable to do anything.

The man, Stuart Kenneth Skarda, 28, of Mayflower, AR, didn't seem too interested in getting his car out of the ditch, Janet said, but seemed more interested in picking up his friends and getting to the nearest town.

Even then they didn't realize their danger, but when a patrol car pulled up behind them and the Pokrzywinskis said they could not get help from him, Harrelson (the man on crutches who was wanted by the FBI) pulled out a gun and said, "Lady, we're not stopping; I've got a gun."

Patrol cars kept showing up and after so many road blocks and miles that she began to lose track, her husband decided to put an end to the situation. Slowly he pulled the truck closer to the side of the road and then suddenly Warren police Chief Jack Sedlacek shot out the rear tires on the truck and the truck went into the ditch.

"We piled out of one side of the truck as fast as we could and they piled out the other. Fortunately for everyone, they gave up peacefully," Janet said.

Several law enforcement vehicles were in pursuit of the truck when it reached the road block set up four miles west of Argyle on Marshall county highway 4. At that time, Johnson said, the suspects gave up peacefully.

Harrelson, Skarda and Cynthia Elizabeth Ehrlich, 22, of Little Rock, AR, were arrested and taken into custody at the sheriff's department in Warren. Police recovered the $2,807 taken from the Drayton, ND, State Bank, by Ehrlich.

When Harrelson's true identity was discovered, FBI agents immediately went to Warren to pick up the three. They were transported to a maximum security section of Stillwater prison quietly late Thursday night.

Janet said the group did not talk much in the truck during the 45-minute ordeal. She said one comment she remembers Harrelson making was that he was doing it all for the farmer. "I can't imagine how he thought robbing a bank would help the farmer," she said.

"It was like a bad dream," Janet said. "They never pointed a gun at us and kept assuring us that as long as we cooperated everything would be okay." But, she said, she was afraid for the children, believing the bank robbers might take the children as hostages.

Janet said she was afraid for the children. She didn't know if law enforcement officers knew they were in the truck being held hostage and didn't know if they would shoot. She said she kept trying to hold up the baby so that the patrolmen would see her and not shoot. But she said she later realized that the officers were well aware of their condition.

The children really didn't seem to know what was going on. Of course the six-month-old child didn't and the three-year-old seemed to think the patrolmen were trying to get them and not help. Friday evening she said the girl had been thinking about it a lot and seemed disturbed by it. Janet said she knew her daughter, who she was babysitting for at the time, was very upset, as was her husband.

Janet said the family is really trying to cope with all that has happened, and happened so quickly. This weekend they planned an ice fishing trip to get away from it all.

GEORGE LIAPIS, junior high school science teacher, is Marshall County Central high school's teacher of the year for 1987. He has taught at the Newfolden school for six years and is speech coach and eighth grade class advisor. Last year he also coached the school's Knowledge Bowl team. A past president of the Marshall County Central Education association, he is vice president this year and will become president again for 1987-88.

George Liapis Is Selected As MCC Teacher Of Year

to listen to their concerns and problems. It also requires showing an honest interest and concern in how each student conducts himself or herself and to help the students make wise decisions."

While he enjoys nearly all phases of teaching, Liapis says he especially enjoys working with seventh graders who are coming into the junior high school science program for first time. "They are in the life science program where we do things like dissecting and everything is new and exciting for them," he said. "It's just fun to see their interest and enthusiasm from day to day."

Liapis also commends the school district for providing needed materials for teaching the science courses. "I try not to ask for anything unreasonable," he said, "and by the same token, I can't recall being refused anything in the way of materials that I needed for my programs." He also likes the school district's use of the American Testronics testing program (instead of Iowa Basic testing) which gives him a better comparison of science achievement.

Liapis lists five areas he considers especially important in building class atmosphere where students will choose to succeed. They are as follows:

(1) Learning cannot take place in a classroom that does not operate in a controlled and disciplined manner. I encourage and expect students to conduct themselves in a courteous and responsible manner. I compliment good behavior and enforce, fairly and consistently, the rules of the class.

(2) I expect, encourage and compliment quality work. Success of this make every effort to reinforce quality work done by students with some type of special recognition.

(3) I try to sincerely express concern for students both as persons and students. I am interested and involved in student endeavors, be they extra-curricular activities, hobbies or just being someone to talk with. I also make it as obvious and important as possible that I care how students do academically, both in my classes and in all their classes. I offer and provide any extra help that might be needed to improve the growth and quality of their school work.

(4) I encourage and try to demonstrate by personal example the importance of polite, courteous and constructive behavior.

(5) I try to be enthusiastic and excited about what I am teaching. I want my students to be interested and curious about what they are studying. If that is going to happen, I have to spark that interest. Enthusiasm about the subject can go a long way toward producing that spark.

One might assume from his statements that Liapis is serious about his work. His example proves his concern and interest as does the final statement of his philosophy of education:

"Teaching is an awesome responsibility. I thoroughly enjoy teaching and look forward to each new day. I count myself very fortunate indeed to teach in a school with such a quality staff and an excellent group of young people. I want students to succeed and to feel like a success. To that end I am constantly striving."

Money Available For Law-Related Help Projects

Minnesota Supreme Court has established a program to use the interest on lawyer trust accounts to improve the delivery of legal services to the poor, promote development of law-related education for the public and develop programs to enhance the administration of justice.

The lawyer trust account board has made grants of over $4,000,000 to legal services organizations, programs providing legal education for the public in its four prior grant cycles.

The board is soliciting proposals to distribute funds to projects in any of the three program areas. It will support not only traditional approaches, but will encourage projects that show innovative approaches to recognized needs throughout the state. For application information, contact the Executive Director, 318 Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155. Deadline for submitting applications is April 15.

MN Farm Bureau Opposes Hike In Minimum Wage

An increase in the state's minimum wage would place an increased burden on farmers and would likely result in reduced farm employment, according to the board of directors of the Minnesota Farm Bureau. The opinion was expressed at the board's regular monthly meeting in St. Paul February 17.

A state House committee Tuesday approved a bill that would raise the adult minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.35 an hour by July 1989. Minimum wage for those under 18 would increase to $3.92 in two years. Minnesota last increased the minimum wage in 1982, one year after Congress raised the federal minimum wage.

The board observed that "depressed commodity prices, high expenses and devalued assets have left no margin in which farmers can increase operating costs by raising wages for employees." As many as 40 per cent of the farmers in Minnesota hire outside help to operate their farms.

Merlyn Lokensgard, Minnesota Farm Bureau president speaking for the group, stated that such an increase at this time could trigger renewed inflation.

"Farmers were particularly hard hit during the most recent inflationary period, as the cost of farm equipment, supplies and services we depend on escalated much faster than the prices we were receiving for our crops and livestock," he said.

Since Congress may increase the federal minimum wage this year, Lokensgard pointed out, it would be a wiser course of action for the Minnesota legislature to postpone any action until after Congress has acted.

MSBA Sponsors Member Day

More than 600 educational leaders from across the state are expected to attend the fifth annual Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA) school board member day at the Capitol on Tuesday, March 3, in St. Paul, according to Harry Sjulson of St. Hilaire, MSBA president.

During the day, school board members and superintendents will receive updates on legislative issues from MSBA staff members, hear from legislative leaders and have direct discussions with their area legislators.

Pre-Paid Paternity

Clearbrook — The Clearwater County Memorial hospital will offer a new program to ease the pocketbook pinch for future dads. They will soon begin a prepayment savings plan for the birth of a baby that will offer birthing bed options, private room services, childbirth education classes, and a candlelight dinner for two or a family birthday party for parents, new baby and siblings, whichever the case may be.

Considerations Continue

Red Lake Falls — In an informational meeting held in Red Lake Falls February 13, the Minnesota Waste Management Board reaffirmed that Red Lake county is still under consideration as a site for solid waste stabilization and containment. Red Lake county, which has passed a resolution of interest in obtaining the facility, will receive up to $4,000 a month to study the plant, while potential locations are being selected and evaluated by the waste management board. Long-term benefits to the county if it is selected for the site would be cash payments, tax breaks for local landowners, increased local government aids and other forms of assistance.

Keep On Munching . . . All Alone

Gonvick — As part of the Sno Daze celebration at Gonvick-Trail school, students held a banana-eating contest. The contest was enjoyed by all, since one of the contestants was their teacher, Mrs. Vazquez, who was blindfolded as part of the proceedings. Mrs. Vazquez won the contest, hands down, as she munched those bananas at a rapid pace to keep ahead of her co-contestants. Except, as part of the fun, there were no other contestants and blindfolded Mrs. Vazquez was only racing to beat herself while everyone else watched.

Oslo Man Arrested

Warroad — Warroad police recently apprehended three individuals in possession of a large amount of marijuana February 11. In connection with the apprehension, David Allen Stoltman, 22, of rural Oslo, was charged with possession with intent to distribute. He appeared in District Court division II before Judge Donald E. Shanahan February 12 where bail was set at $2,000. He was freed on payment of bail. Investigations continue in the case.

Wood-Cutting Accident

Middle River — Jerome Berg, a farmer in Whiteford township, was injured recently when he was working in the woods east of the Wally Chaplinski farm. His leg was broken by a falling tree while he was cutting wood. He spent several days at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls and is now recuperating at home.

Claim For $50,000

Detroit Lakes — A Detroit Lakes man, Jerome Axton, has filed suit in Becker county for damages stemming from a car-pedestrian accident July 4, 1983, near Legion Beach in Detroit Lakes, in which a vehicle driven by Gordon Stenberg, Fargo, ND struck Axton and caused injuries. Axton is seeking in excess of $50,000 for bodily injury.

Marshall County Reports

Warren — The Marshall county sheriff's report listed the following incidents in the Warren Sheaf: a number of guns, tools, musical instruments and miscellaneous items were removed from the Erling Hegg residence in Viking some time before January 26. Theft was estimated in excess of $1,500. Hegg reported the incident to the sheriff's department January 26. January 27, Charles Bishop and Darren Bentow of Thief River Falls were apprehended while attempting to break into the Hegg residence. Both men were charged with burglary in the third degree. A third individual, Jeffrey Mattson, also of Thief River Falls, was also arrested in connection with the incident. the sheriff's report also stated that a 1983 Jeep CJ-7 driven by Paul Dickson of Inkster, ND, was damaged in the amount of $1,500 when the driver lost control of the vehicle and it rolled on county road 10 about 10 miles north of Alvarado.

Name Dropping

Red Lake Falls — The Red Lake Falls Gazette reported that the new bride of Mark Thatcher, son of England's prime minister, is the granddaughter of a former pastor of St. John's Lutheran church in Red Lake Falls, Immanuel Lutheran church in Wylie and Redeemer Lutheran church in Plummer. Rev. Paul H. Burgdorf served the area churches from 1925 to 1940. Diane Burgdorf Thatcher briefly attended a Minnesota Lutheran college before moving with her family to Dallas, TX, where her father, Theodore Burgdorf, is termed a millionaire auto salesman.

Hallock Car Theft

Area Trucks In MI Accident

Stephen — Trucks driven by Kevin Donarski of Stephen and Earl Ryan of Strandquist were involved in an accident on U.S. highway 41 West near Marquette, Michigan, February 8. Blowing snow and icy roads contributed to the accident. Both trucks were hauling potatoes at the time.

The INSIDE SCOOP

by GAYLE BORCHERT

Students at Lincoln have had some good news and some bad news recently. The good news was that the school newspaper came out Friday, February 13, and it was really enjoyed by all the students at Lincoln. One of the most interesting items the school newspaper contained was a poem by former Lincoln student Maria Edington; it is entitled "Don't Forget Me". Exerpts from the poem are printed below.

To the Senior at Lincoln High School: things haven't been the same since I said good-bye . . .

By the way, good luck to all the winter sports whom I read of in the Times — many great reports . . .

I'm finding lots to do: intra-mural volleyball, swing choir and wrestling stats are where I'm at. Leader of the spirit club, yearbook staff, 4-H and FHA help to fill up my day . . . What do I want of thee? All I ask is don't forget me . . .

The bad news was that the German students who usually visit every year will not be coming this year.

Because of the late date that the German club found out, an exchange with a different city is not possible. This is especially unfortunate due to the fact that over $1,000 had been raised for the students coming here and for those going abroad.

The hockey cheerleaders gave students at Lincoln a real boost of spirit for the Warroad hockey game. They sold pom-poms for a dollar each. The dollar included the price of admission to the hockey game.

The downtown merchants last week got into the Prowler spirit by posting signs supporting the girls basketball team before their big basketball game against Fergus Falls. It is really nice to see the community supporting the Prowlers this way. (At the deadline time for this column the big game had not yet been played.)

Anyone wearing Prowler blue and gold to the girls basketball game last Friday got in free.

This little tidbit was overheard in the hall of Lincoln: One possible cause for the freshman rash of injuries is that they simply have not adjusted from the Franklin one story school to the two stories at Lincoln. Their inability to negotiate stairs has been extremely costly.

Schedule of Events

February 23 — Hockey subsections, Prowlers vs. Indus or Hallock (home);

February 24 — Boys' basketball vs. Middle River (home, Parents' Night); Boys' swimming at Fargo South;

Thought Provoking Comment On Subjects Of Public Interest

Finding The Lost Amendment

Paul Gann, co-sponsor of California's famous Proposition 13, now heads a 62,000 member "Committee to Cap the National Debt" which is seeking to overturn the recent congressional pay raises. The means for doing so is pointed out in the following comments by Gann:

We've seen a lot of hokum and smoke out of Washington through the years, but the recent congressional pay hike fiasco is one for the books.

Pay hikes for elected officials are never more popular than the people who receive them. Still, one must consider the current "automatic" pay raise system with a certain amount of awe and wonder. It is, arguably, the worst way to raise public salaries ever devised by the mind of man.

Gall? No, not strong enough. Hypocrisy? Well beyond that. No, what we have here is a new creation. The ultimate collective nose-thumb of the decade. Congress establishes a system under which its pay automatically climbs, unless they vote to overturn it within a certain period. Then, after the raises are legally in effect. They cast a meaningless vote against it, to please the folks back home.

Thanks to a long-forgotten Constitutional Amendment passed by the Congress back in 1789 (but never ratified by the states), the automatic pay raise scam may soon come to an end.

When the original Bill of Rights were first introduced and passed by the Congress, there were 12 not 10 amendments. All but the first two were ratified by the states and became the first 10 amendments to our Constitution.

The first amendment passed had to do with reapportionment and no longer is significant. The second, however, is very relevant. The text reads: "No law, varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives, shall take effect, until an election of Representatives shall have intervened."

Had that amendment been ratified, automatic pay raises would be unconstitutional. Congressmen would have to vote for their raise and then face the voters back home before they could accept it.

What makes this more than an interesting historical sidebar to the current debate is the absence of an expiration clause. In modern history, amendments to the constitution usually contain a time period, such as seven years, during which the passed amendment must be ratified by three-fourths of the states. The absence of such a time limit means that this first proposed amendment to our federal Constitution may still be ratified.

In fact, it is currently pending before a number of states. The recent "Pay-scam" is certain to fuel the growing movement, perhaps, in time to ratify the amendment in time for the 200th Anniversary of the Constitution.

During the first three years after its initial passage in 1789, the Congressional Pay Amendment was ratified by six states — Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Delaware and Vermont. Another congressional pay raise prompted Ohio to ratify the amendment in 1873.

More than 100 years passed before the next state climbed aboard, Wyoming, in 1978. Maine ratified in 1983, followed by Colorado in 1984. The pace quickened dramatically in 1985, as Arizona, South Dakota, New Hampshire, Oklahoma and Tennessee added their names to the list.

Last year, the total reached 18 — of the needed 38 — as Indiana, New Mexico and Utah ratified. It is now pending before California, Rhode Island, Alaska, Mississippi, Georgia, Illinois, Wisconsin, Washington, Minnesota, North Dakota, New Jersey, Montana, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska.

Our Constitution is a living document that has preserved our liberties for nearly two centuries. What better way to celebrate its 200th birthday than by finishing the job our Founding Fathers started? The American War for Independence isn't over; not just yet.

$10,000 Breakfast

There are many who say that the part of political action committees (PACs) has become far too large in the politics and government of today and that something must be done soon to curtail that activity and reform campaign financing. Among those people are the members of Common Cause, a Washington-based organization.

Common Cause recently distributed a column written by Thomas B. Edsall of the Washington Post which it says provides an illuminating example of the point it has been trying to make.

The story points out that Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Texas Democrat who is now chairman of the U.S. Senate finance committee, has offered 200 Washington lobbyists and political action (PAC) directors the opportunity to have breakfast with him once a month — at a cost of $10,000 each. He told them that the money would go into his 1988 reelection campaign fund and would give them membership in his exclusive "Chairman's Council".

If too many people take the offer to permit relatively small gatherings, Sen. Bentsen promised to hold multiple breakfasts. The senator's press secretary said he had promised to limit the number attending the breakfasts to 35 or 40.

About 40 of the lobbyists and PAC directors had signed up during the first week for the system which requires a $5,000 immediate payment and another $5,000 by June 1. The $10,000 commitment will cover council membership through the 1987-88 election cycle, and Sen. Bentsen will pick up the tab for the breakfast.

Nobody seemed too concerned about the idea. In fact, Oregon Republican Sen. Bob Packwood, who served as chairman of both the commerce and finance committees when the GOP controlled the Senate, had a similar breakfast program but the participant cost was only (?) $5,000.

It got to be very club-like," a Packwood aide said. "He began to look forward to the meetings. He got very attached to them." A briefing held on Sen. Bentsen's breakfast proposal attracted a lot of interest. "I suspect everyone of any consequence who was there will sign up," said Thomas Hale Boggs Jr., whose firm's clients include ABC, Kitachi, the Scrap Iron and Steel Institute and Ford. "To raise $10,000 for the Senate finance committee chairman isn't very hard."

Should Sen. Bentsen collect half of the 200 people invited into his breakfast club, it would mean a cool $1 million for his reelection campaign. (That's less the cost of the breakfast, of course.) Would such a group have great influence through being able to whisper into the senator's ear? What do you think? Who would the senator be inclined to attempt to please more, Billy Bob Bodine from the cotton fields of Coiled Springs, Texas, or Sammy Slick, breakfast club member from Washington, DC? You know the answer.

It would appear to us that Common Cause has cause for concern — just as the rest of us do about the influence of political action committees. Do we get the best government the people of the nation deserve — or only the best government money can buy? There is a difference, and it can be translated into about $9,997.51 for breakfast.

Borrowed Nonsense

Teenager to Friend: "Not only has he broken my heart and totally devastated and destroyed my entire life, he spoiled my whole evening."

Sign on church bulletin board: "Work for the Lord. The pay may not be great but the retirement plan is out of this world."

Interesting Opinion

"In one of our concert grand pianos, 243 taut strings exert a pull of 40,000 pounds on an iron frame. It is proof that out of great tension may come great harmony."

"One of the most difficult lessons for ambitious young people to learn is that when you try to make an impression, that is the impression you make. Those whose center of emotional gravity is deeply embedded are willing to wait quietly in line until they are discovered."

— Sydney Harris

Poor Neglected In Budget
by Don McGillis
Executive Director
Mahube Community Council, Inc.
Detroit Lakes

At issue, Governor Rudy Perpich's 1987-89 biennial budget, is presently being debated by the state legislature and citizenry of Minnesota.

The people of this state have always considered the governor to be a champion in his commitment to help the poor. Why has he abandoned that commitment now?

We categorically oppose the governor's recommendations because they: (1) damage Community Action program agencies; (2) abandon a 12-year history of state bipartisan support to Community Action programs; (3) do not restore the $300,000 Minnesota Economic Opportunity Grant program cut from the Community Action programs in 1986; (4) turn local, flexible poverty program dollars into categorical program funding; and, (5) increase the Minnesota Department of Jobs and Training administrative funds at local agency expense.

We also voice opposition to the governor's recommendations to repeal the rent credit deduction, the dependent child care deduction, and the expansion of the six per cent sales tax to non-profit corporations (schools, churches, units of government, etc.), which is equivalent to another six per cent cut in funding.

We side with those calling the governor's plan a rip-off dressed up as tax reform. The money that Community Action programs lose under his plan is money that is used to help the poor, feed the hungry and shelter the homeless.

Poor families will be hurt throughout the state. Behind the governor's proposed cutbacks and diversions is human reality — the homeless, the unemployed, the disabled and mentally ill citizens of Minnesota.

It is unfair and unconscionable for Governor Perpich or the state legislature to reduce or divert the funding needed to help Minnesota's 480,000 low-income residents.

to the Editor

Fellow Citizens:

A quiet state of shock has settled over our county since the mailing of real estate tax statements. Real estate tax increases of 20 per cent to 40 per cent are an outrage in light of our soft farm economy. Huge increases on commercial property are especially burdensome and unrealistic.

A favorite saying of L.B. Hartz is "a squeaking wheel gets the grease." Take your pen in hand and write your views to the editor of the Thief River Falls Times. Maybe a special section of the Times could hold all letters regarding real estate taxes. Let's not have a recurrance of this year's tax surprise next year at this time.

Yours truly,
-s- James H. Winjum

Dear Mr. Lundgren:

I am writing to you in response to the letter printed in the February 9th issue of the Times. I am no longer an official member of the Lincoln student body, but I was for three years and I do know that this letter did not express my views on the reported behavior of the student cheering section at that particular hockey game.

The Lincoln high school student body encompasses around 800 students. It's hard to believe one person could be audacious enough to claim they are expressing the sole view of the students. I will now express some rebuttals to the points made in that editorial. The argument: "all the other towns do it, why shouldn't we" is not acceptable. Does that make it right? Why should we bow to their low, unsportsmanship-like attitudes just because "everyone's doing it?"

Another claim was made that the chants inspired the team. I don't believe it's the chants themselves that inspire a team, it's the act of chanting that does. A unified, strong, powerful cheering section shouting acceptable cheers can, and will produce an intense excitement in the air that inspires a team to win. It's not the words of the chant that matter. It's knowing you have all of those people behind you, supporting you and producing enthusiasm by cheering that matters.

As for the last comment — Thief River Falls making a choice between a winning hockey team and a rowdy crowd — we must realize everyone has their own interpretation of the word rowdy. The World Book Dictionary defines it as rough or disorderly. Could it have been a misrepresentation of terms? Perhaps the words lively, loyal or enthusiastic would have been more appropriate to the meaning of this statement.

On the other hand, it is a possibility that the student meant it as it is defined. Either way, what gives them the authority to express an opinion and label it as a community wide view? Everyone has the right to speak their views, but to claim it as the overall view of many others is quite presumptuous.

I do wish to thank that anonymous writer for letting the opinion be heard, and I'd like to read other sides to this issue as well. One last note: I wish LHS all the best in their future pursuit of generating true school spirit.

Sincerely,
-s- Maria Edington
High School Senior

Sister Navarro To Speak Here On Nicaragua

Sister Margarita (Margie) Navarro, missionary in Managua, Nicaragua, for the past six years, will be in Thief River Falls on Monday, March 2, for a presentation to the general public in Northland community college theater at 2:30 p.m. There is no admission.

In her presentation, Sister Margarita will offer her perspective on the present situation in Nicaragua, as well as the perspective of those to whom she ministers. She will also speak about her work in the re-education center for delinquent youth, and invite questions that relate to the influence and involvement of the U.S. government in Nicaragua.

Sister Margarita has a 24-year background in missionary work in Central America. Her career began in Panama in 1963 where she worked to reduce illiteracy among the poor. In 1974 she moved to a slum city of two million, just outside of Mexico City where she joined a team of missionaries whose efforts were devoted to better health care, education, housing and employment.

In 1980 Sister Margarita became a member of the human rights commission of the Catholic church in San Salvador, El Salvador and worked closely with the president of that commission.

In 1983 she moved to Nicaragua as part of a team living and working in a barrio just across from the U.S. embassy in Managua. She is presently involved in the work of re-educating delinquent youth. The public is welcome to attend.

Thief River Falls Girls Finish Regular Season At 19-1 . . .

Otters End Prowlers' Winning Streak, 56-53

Thief River Falls' bid for a perfect 20-0 regular season record came up three points short Friday and the Prowlers fell to Fergus Falls 56-53 in a girls high school basketball game played in front of a sold-out Lincoln High School gymnasium crowd.

Doors were locked at 7:30 p.m. — a full half-hour before game time — when officials decided they simply couldn't squeeze any more fans into the packed building. Those who got in saw a good show. What they didn't see was win No. 20 for the Prowlers, who couldn't come up with the fourth quarter magic that had kept the 19-game winning streak alive in recent come-from-behind victories over Bemidji and Crookston.

They tried, though. Fergus Falls had a 10-point lead with 5:05 remaining when a Keri Solseth jumper from the side made it 49-39.

Thief River Falls cut the deficit in half following a pair of Laura Beito free throws with 58 seconds left in a still-close 52-47 game, and had a chance to make it even closer when the Otters turned the ball over against the Prowlers' press with 53 seconds left.

But Thief River Falls missed the ensuing field goal attempt, and complicating matters, fouled Michelle Hilley on the rebound. She made both free throws for a 54-47 cushion with 47 seconds to go.

Same pattern a couple of moments later — a missed Thief River Falls field goal, a foul on the rebound, and two Fergus Falls free throws — made it 56-47 after a pair of Carleen Rose gift tosses with only 27 seconds showing.

Thief River Falls made it close at the end when Kelly Cornell sank two free throws with 22 seconds left, added a field goal on a drive with 18 seconds to go following a Fergus Falls turnover, and Brenda Russell did the same after another Fergus Falls turnover, but with only one second remaining.

Fergus Falls went to 15-4 with the win, and took the No. 1 seed in the upcoming North Sub-Region 8AA tournament away from Thief River Falls in the process. "Thief River is an excellent ball club," offered Fergus Falls coach Denny Hanson. "We knew we had to play our best basketball to win, and we did. It was our most consistent game of the year.

Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer returned the compliment by saying, "Fergus Falls is an excellent ball club. They're the best club we faced all year."

What the game really boiled down to, explained Schafer, was the Prowlers' inability to capitalize on opportunities, especially at the free throw line where Thief River Falls made just 13 of 30 attempts (43 per cent). The misses included the front end of nine bonus opportunities.

"No question in our mind, we would have won if we could have made the free throws," said Schafer. "The last eight ball games we've shot 58 per cent at the free throw line — that's been our strong point. I can't think of anything we should have done different, except make the free throws. We shoved the ball down the middle and drew the fouls, just like we wanted to, but then we missed the free throws."

Fergus Falls led most of the night, beginning with a 10-4 start and a 14-11 lead at the end of the first quarter. Six times Thief River Falls pulled within a single point in the second quarter, but never caught the Otters, who had a 26-23 halftime lead, thanks in part to a 5-for-14 Thief River Falls free throw effort.

Thief River Falls finally went ahead when Beito and Russell had back-to-back baskets to open the second half, producing a 27-26 lead with just 53 seconds elapsed.

But the Thief River Falls offense failed to put Fergus Falls away during a stretch in the middle of the third quarter when the Otters were obviously struggling. A drive to the basket by Cindy Kruta provided the Prowlers with a 32-30 lead with 2:49 left in the quarter, but Fergus Falls then went on an 11-2 scoring surge that wound up winning the game for the Otters, who carried a 41-35 lead into the final eight minutes.

"That one stretch in the third quarter where we had a two-point lead, but then couldn't put them away really hurt," acknowledged Schafer.

A long jumper from the side by Russell made it a 41-37 game to start the fourth quarter, but five straight Fergus Falls free throws gave the Otters a 64-37 edge with 7:05 remaining. It was particularly frustrating for the Prowlers, who missed the front end of a bonus opportunity at one end of the court, fouled on the rebound, and watched Hilley sink her two 1-and-1 tries at the other end of that nine-point bulge.

And the frustration mounted when the Otters' Kathy Fawcett was whistled for her sixth personal foul with 5:30 left in a 47-39 game. With a pair of free throw opportunities on and ball out of bounds on the technical foul call the Prowlers could have made up some lost ground in a hurry. Instead they came out of it without a point, and Solseth followed with her basket for the 10-point cushion with 5:05 to play.

Russell, the 5-3 senior guard, led all scorers with 23 points. Beito had 14 at center and Cornell added 13 from her guard spot. Carleen Rose, a 5-10 sophomore guard, scored 17 for Fergus Falls, and Hilley, a 6-0 junior center, had 16.

Thief River Falls wound up 20-for-50 from the field (40 per cent). Fergus Falls was 17-for-41 (41 per cent). The Otters were 22-for-31 at the free throw line (71 per cent), mostly in the second half since they were a quiet 4-for-4 in the first half. Thief River Falls had a 29-27 rebound edge, and also had one more turnover than Fergus Falls, 19-18.

Great Show

Friday's sell-out crowd that showed up to watch the Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls girls high school basketball game will be remembered as a highlight of the 1986-87 season for the Prowlers.

It was a tremendous show of community support for the Prowlers in their bid for a perfect 20-0 regular season finish. They failed on that account, but they lost to a very good Fergus Falls team. It was a great match-up, one that could very well be duplicated in the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA finals shortly.

Neither coach thought that the added pressure coming with the big crowd hurt their teams.

"The crowd was great," said Fergus Falls coach Denny Hanson whose team has three sophomore starters. "We talked about it all week. We expected it, and we just tried to feed off the energy of the crowd. We appreciated it. Thief River Falls is a great host. It was a match-up of the two best teams in the sub-region, and they deserved a crowd like that."

"The girls were excited about the crowd," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer. "I don't think it bothered them."

Thief River Falls will open North Sub-Region 8AA tournament play at home Thursday, March 5, against the No. 4 or No. 5 seeded team — two yet-to-be-named teams who will meet Tuesday, March 3.

Miscellaneous

+ Minnesota Community College Conference basketball Player of the Week honors were awarded to Northland sophomore guard Greg Campbell, it was announced this morning (Monday) by Northland coach Chet Engelman. It was the first time a member of the Pioneers earned the statewide honor this winter.

+ Credibility of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune was shaken just a little Thursday in an article written by staff sports writer Tony Morton. Trying to give a sneak preview of the sectional high school hockey tournaments across the state, Morton listed what he figured were the favorites in each of the eight sections. Good reading if you're into hockey. We hope, however, his Section 1-through-7 forecasts were a little closer than his Section 8 thinking. He wasn't wrong in picking Warroad as the Section 8 favorite, of course, and he can't argue with Crookston as a contender, but Morton then blew it by listing Indus as a little threat. "Not many opponents have been able to keep up with Warroad, but Crookston and Indus have good teams," wrote Morton. We're not knocking Indus, but, hey, let's get serious. Morton obviously took a look at the Section 8 standings, saw Indus near the top and threw the Trojans into the pot not knowing the circumstances.

FERGUS FALLS guard Carleen Rose was free under the basket as Thief River Falls defender Brenda Russell arrived too late to stop the second half shot during Friday's high school basketball game played here. The Otters handed the Prowlers their first loss of the 1986-87 season, 56-53, with Rose getting a team-high 17 points in the process.

Northland Wins 72-66 For State Meet Berth . . .

Pioneers Hold Off UMC

A 20-point second half lead nearly disappeared Thursday, but Northland Community College held off a University of Minnesota-Crookston rally to win a 72-66 regular season-ending Northwest Division showdown that qualified the Pioneers for the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament this week at Inver Hills Community College in Inver Grove Heights.

Greg Campbell had a starring role for the winners with a big 32-point performance, but the 5-11 sophomore guard had a great supporting cast, most notably Anthony McCullough, the 6-4, 235-pound football star who contributed 12 points and grabbed 19 rebounds.

The two Canton, OH. products sparked the Pioneers' strong start that included a 14-2 scoring run and a 27-15 lead 11 minutes into the pressure-packed game. Campbell scored 17 points and McCullough grabbed 13 rebounds as the Pioneers built a 17-point 42-35 cushion with 1:31 remaining in the first half that ended at 42-27.

It was a 20-point spread when Northland guard Ray Davis connected from long range with 12:12 left in a 59-39 game. And it was still a 16-point difference when Campbell scored from underneath with 7:02 left in a 67-51 contest.

But then it got interesting. Northland went the next 5-minutes, 15-seconds without a point as the margin shrank to 67-61 before McCullough came down the base line and jammed in a two-hand dunk with 1:47 on the clock.

Crookston promptly resumed a 15-2 scoring tear, though, when 6-5 freshman Brian Scheuring of Eveleth hit a three-pointer from the side and Berent Thompson made both ends of a bonus free throw opportunity following a Northland turnover for a 69-66 game with 1:12 still to play.

That was as close as the Trojans got, however, as the Pioneers spread their offense and ate up the clock down the stretch. Morris Matthews gave Northland breathing space with a pair of free throws with 42 seconds to go, and a Northland rebound off a missed Crookston shot wound up producing Campbell's 32nd point on a free throw with 16 seconds showing to complete the scoring.

The win sends Northland to the state tournament with a 12-11 record, and the loss ended the UMC season at 10-10.

Northland coach Chet Engelman said the close finish after the one-sided start was more of a credit to UMC than a discredit to Northland. "They (UMC) didn't quit," he explained. "We made a couple of silly mistakes in the second half that hurt us, but Crookston has a good team. They hustle."

Engelman said as much for his own team: "Our kids really hustled. They really wanted to win. They didn't want to be the first Northland team in umteen years not to go to state."

Umteen, in this case, dates back to 1977 when Northland failed to make a state tournament appearance.

Northland finished 28-for-61 from the field (46 per cent), while UMC went 22-for-78 (28 per cent). The Trojans' shooting percentage took a nose dive when the visitors decided to concentrate on a barrage of three-point attempts. They were 11-for-38 from that range, including a miserable 2-for-13 in the first half. Northland had a 52-41 rebound advantage.

Scheuring led UMC with 19 points. Shawn Ness, a 6-2 sophomore from McVille, ND, had 18. They did most of their damage from the outside — when they connected.

Pioneers Face Willmar At State

Northland will face Willmar Thursday at 9 p.m. in the final opening round quarterfinal game of the 1987 Minnesota Community College Conference men's state basketball tournament at Inver Hills Community College in Inver Grove Heights.

The Pioneers clinched a state tournament berth by holding off rival University of Minnesota-Crookston 72-66 in Thursday's final game of the 1986-87 regular season schedule. A UMC win would have put the defending state champion Trojans back in the state tournament and would have ended the Pioneers' season.

In Thursday's other first round state tournament match-ups, Fergus Falls will play Mankato Bethany at 1 p.m.; Itasca goes against Inver Hills at 3; and Hibbing tackles Normandale at 7.

Consolation and championship round semifinals will be played Friday, and finals will be staged Saturday.

Northland met Willmar earlier this winter, losing a close 55-52 decision back on Dec. 7.

DRIVING TO the basket, Northland Community College guard Greg Campbell scored two of his game-high 32 points as he went by University of Minnesota-Crookston defender Shawn Naas during Wednesday's basketball game in the Northland gym. John Honek of Northland (45), along with Pete Shogren (43) and Berent Thompson (13) of UMC trailed the play. Campbell's scoring led the Pioneers to a state tournament-clinching 72-66 win over the Trojans.

Prowlers Host Bears In Sub-Section Play

Thief River Falls will host Hallock tonight (Monday) in a 7:30 p.m. North Sub-Section 8 high school hockey tournament game at the Sports Arena. The winner will advance into the Section 8 tournament quarterfinal field this weekend at East Grand Forks.

In other Sub-Section 8 match-ups tonight, Lake of the Woods will be at East Grand Forks, Brainerd visits Moorhead and Alexandria will be at Fergus Falls.

Opening round games were played Saturday. In the North Half, Hallock eliminated Indus 5-2, East Grand Forks breezed by Red Lake Falls 12-1, Lake of the Woods shut out East Grand Forks Sacred Heart 9-0, and Thief River Falls drew a bye. In the South Half, Moorhead blanked Crosby-Ironton 12-0, Brainerd sidelined Detroit Lakes 4-1, Fergus Falls handled Bagley 9-1 and Alexandria stopped Little Falls 8-0.

Already seeded into the Section 8 quarterfinals are Warroad, Crookston, Roseau, and Bemidji.

Opening round Section 8 doubleheaders at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena will have Warroad playing the No. 8 seed at 6:30 p.m. and Bemidji vs. the No. 5 seed at 9 p.m. Friday, while Crookston is paired with the No. 7 seed at 6:30 p.m. and Roseau goes against the No. 6 seed at 9 p.m. Saturday.

Friday winners will meet in the Monday, March 2, semifinal game, while the Saturday winners clash in the Tuesday, March 3, semifinal. Championship game will be played Friday, March 6. Semifinal and championship games all start at 7:30 p.m.

Northland Women Rally To Beat UMC 79-76 In Overtime

Northland Community College women's basketball season ended Thursday, but the Pioneers went out in style by beating rival University of Minnesota-Crookston, one of the favorites for this week's Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament title, 79-76 in overtime.

And they did it in dramatic fashion by overcoming a 16-point second half deficit with a late-game charge in front of a packed Northland gymnasium crowd that had arrived early for the men's and women's doubleheader.

It looked like Northland would go out quietly when a poor start found the Pioneers trailing 20-11 13½ minutes into the game. They were never closer than five points in trailing 33-24 at halftime as the Pioneers made just 10 of 40 first half goal attempts (25 per cent).

Things didn't get any better at the start of the second half as Northland fell behind 52-36 with 12:41 remaining in the game.

It was still a 13-point difference when LeeAnn Langenbau, a 6-2 freshman center from Pequot Lakes, made one of two free throw attempts with 7:28 left in a 61-48 game.

But Northland's Janelle Lorsung then out-scored UMC 8-2 over the next 2½ minutes to make it a catchable 63-56 game with 4:56 to play.

UMC rebuilt its lead to 69-58 when Grygla's Deb Klein scored on a drive with 2:56 on the clock, but the Trojans then zeroed out as an 11-point game-ending run by the Pioneers tied it at 69-69 to force a five-minute overtime.

The Northland rally started with a basket from the side by Jody Pahlen, followed by three free throws from Lorsung, a fast break lay-up by Sheila Jaeger and a pair of free throws by Angie Enerson to pull Northland within 69-67 with 52 seconds remaining.

UMC tried to work time off the clock, but turned the ball over with 26 seconds to go, and sent Jaeger to the free throw line with just 18 seconds left. The Plummer product sank both ends of the bonus opportunity for the tie, which was preserved by a UMC turnover with one second to play.

It was a 74-74 tie in overtime before Lorsung made the first shot on a bonus free throw opportunity with 1:05 remaining. Moments later she came up with a block on Nancy Rolzynski, and the Northland possession produced Patti Odberg-to-Pahlen feed underneath for a lay-up and a 77-74 edge with 27 second showing.

Northland allowed the Trojans' Kim Vesey to drive through the middle with six seconds left, making it 77-76, then added a pair of free throws from Enerson with time expired for the three-point final.

It was quite a turnaround from the first to the second half, acknowledged Northland coach Tom Neibauer. "In the first half, our good kids couldn't get the ball to go down," he said, referring to numerous close-in misses by the Lorsung, Enerson and Pahlen trio. "They're as good as they come. If the ball doesn't go down for them, there's not much else you can do. In the second half, the big difference was the kids hustled. They didn't die. We got some big steals, we played better defense underneath on Langenbau and we took the ball to the hoop."

Lorsung (26), Enerson (24) and Pahlen (18) produced 68 of the 79 Northland points, and 48 of them came in the second half when Lorsung, a center from Waubun, netted 20; Enerson, a forward from Mentor, scored 16; and Pahlen, a forward from Plummer, had 12.

Vesey, a 5-10 sophomore from Warren, led UMC with 19 points, and Langenbau, after getting 11 in the first half, finished with 17. Michelle Johnson, a 5-6 sophomore from Karlstad, had 10 points.

Northland finished with a 30-for-72 field goal night (42 pr cent), which included a hot 20-for-32 second half (63 per cent). The Pioneers were 19-for-35 at the free throw line. UMC finished 33-for-77 from the field (43 per cent) and 10-for-24 at the line.

UMC will take a 14-8 record into state tournament play. Northland ends the year at 12-11, but went out with a smile. "Crookston is the best team in the state," pointed out Neibauer. "You beat them, you've got to be happy."

TRF Boys Handle EGF 53-44

A Thief River Falls offense that has been struggling lately came to life in impressive fashion Friday as the Prowlers out-scored East Grand Forks 72-50 in a boys high school basketball game at the Green Wave gym.

East Grand Forks edged Thief River Falls 50-49 in double-overtime when the two teams met here Jan. 16, but the Prowlers owned the rematch, shooting 55 per cent from the field (26-for-47) and 80 per cent at the free throw line (20-for-25). The Green Wave, meanwhile, struggled with a 39 per cent mark from the field (22-for-57) and a 33 per cent figure at the line (6-for-18).

"I'm real happy with the consistency offensively," said Thief River Falls coach Tom Hunt. "We haven't been shooting the ball very well lately, but we had good shot selection, and we ended up with good percentages in both field goals and free throws. Overall it was one of our most solid games offensively and defensively of the year."

Thief River Falls had a 21-13 first quarter lead, maintained a 35-27 halftime edge and opened up a 53-38 third quarter spread.

Chris Nelson had an outstanding game for the winners, said Hunt, scoring 24 points on a 9-for-16 shooting performance and a 6-for-6 free throw night, to go along with 14 rebounds. Jarrod Kalsnes also played well, according to Hunt, with an 18-point contribution on a 7-for-11 night from the field, and Chris Bjorgaard came up with a 12-point, 7-assist effort.

Thief River Falls had a 35-29 rebound edge and also had more turnovers, 18-14.

With the win the Prowlers went to 9-8 for the year. They host Middle River Tuesday.

Huskies Hold Off Eagles

Goodridge built a 21-point third quarter lead, then held off a fourth quarter East Grand Forks Sacred Heart rally to claim a 53-44 boys high school basketball win Friday over the visiting Eagles.

Shawn Groven scored 23 points and Roger Coan had 11 for the Huskies, who led at the quarter stops 10-4, 27-18 and 43-26 in winning for just the third time in 17 starts this winter.

"I was satisfied with the victory, naturally," pointed out Goodridge coach John Rahn, "but I was disappointed that we weren't able to keep that lead in the fourth quarter. We lost our composure and let them get back into the game."

Sacred Heart didn't waste time in cutting the 21-point deficit to 10, but wasn't able to make up the rest. Chris Shea led Sacred Heart with 13 points.

Goodridge was 21-for-62 from the field (34 per cent) and 11-for-27 at the free throw line (41 per cent). Sacred Heart was 16-for-50 from the field (32 per cent) and 12-for-29 at the line (41 per cent).

The Huskies made it difficult for themselves, pointed out Rahn, by missing the front end of six bonus free throw opportunities down the stretch that could have cemented an easier win.

Goodridge will be at Oklee Tuesday.

Grygla . . . . . . 54
Middle River . . . . . . 39

Three quarters of unproductive Middle River offense resulted in a 54-39 win for host Grygla Friday night.

Grygla had quarter leads of 16-6, 27-12 and 41-19. The Skippers managed to save face by doubling their offensive out-put in the fourth quarter, out-scoring Grygla 20-13 in the process.

"We couldn't buy a basket," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "Grygla played a pretty good ball game, but we didn't do a thing on offense."

Middle River shot just 26 per cent from the field for the night (14-for-53). The Skippers were 11-for-17 at the free throw line (65 per cent). Grygla shot 46 per cent from the field (22-for-48) and was 10-for-16 at the line (63 per cent). Those figures were from Middle River charts, which also showed Grygla with a 32-31 rebound edge and a 14-8 Middle River high-figure in the turnover department.

"I was really pleased with our play defensively," reported Grygla coach Vern Johnson. "It was a pretty solid effort, one of our better games this year."

Both teams play Tuesday. The 6-13 Skippers will be in Thief River Falls, while the 10-8 Eagles finish with Greenbush at home. The ten wins is already a school record, topping a previous-best 9-11 Grygla finish.

The Nordics lost the ball 22 times on turnovers in falling to 10-8 for the year.

"Way too many turnovers," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We didn't play well. We didn't play with much intensity. We just threw the ball away too many times."

Stephen had quarter leads of 12-10, 22-16 and 35-26.

Kelly Dahl led the Nordics with 16 points, while Tom Bolstad netted 10. Justin Pagnac led Stephen with 18 points.

Plummer . . . . . . 71
Fisher . . . . . . 44

Plummer made use of a newly-installed press Friday for a 71-44 win at Fisher.

The Cardinals led only 16-12 at the end of the first quarter, but a switch in the press produced a 35-19 halftime cushion for the winners, who held Fisher to just three second quarter field goal attempts while coming up with a number of steals.

Plummer had a 49-30 third quarter lead.

Wade Grinde led the Cardinals with 24 points, while Shane Freyholtz had 16 and John Fisher 10. Jason Reitmeier and Dwight Love both scored 11 points for the Flyers.

"I was happy we won, but we're still not taking our time offensively," explained Plummer coach Jim Baron. "We rush our shots."

Plummer still shot 53 per cent from the field, though, on a 29-for-55 night. Fisher shot 40 per cent on a 14-for-35 effort. The Cardinals were 13-for-24 at the free throw line, where the Flyers were 16-for-25. Plummer had a 32-26 rebound edge, and forced Fisher into 28 turnovers. The Cardinals lost the ball 12 times.

Plummer received a 30-point scoring performance from 5-4 senior guard Janelle Konickson and a 16-point, 10-rebound effort from 5-6 senior forward Robin Brantl Thursday in a 75-37 girls high school basketball win at Alvarado.

The Cardinals started with a 5-0 deficit, but had a 14-8 lead when the first quarter ended, then rolled up a 40-17 halftime cushion and had a 53-25 third quarter spread.

Hallock-Kennedy . . . . . . 59
Grygla . . . . . . 34

Grygla had a tough time of it offensively Thursday in a 59-34 loss to a strong Hallock-Kennedy team on the road.

"We didn't play well at all," reported Grygla coach Mike Gast. "Offensively we just weren't clicking. I was disappointed. I knew we would have to play a perfect game to beat them, but I wanted to give them a game, at least."

Hallock-Kennedy had quarter leads of 18-8, 33-16 and 51-26 as Grygla fell to 7-10 for the year.

MCC . . . . . . 57
Roseau . . . . . . 52

Marshall County Central ran its record to 17-1 Thursday with a 57-52 win at Roseau.

Free throw shooting hasn't been one of the Nordics' strengths this year, but they came through at the line against the Rams with a busy 27-for-36 night (75 per cent) that off set a Roseau edge in the field goal department.

"We definitely won the game at the free throw line," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. "We penetrated offensively and drew fouls — that's exactly what the game plan was."

Roseau started with an 8-7 first quarter lead, had a 26-23 edge at halftime and maintained a 41-38 third quarter advantage. But Marshall County Central out-scored Roseau 18-11 in the fourth quarter with a 13-for-15 free throw performance.

Jodi Foss, a recent addition to the 1,000-point list, had a 20-point night for the Nordics, which included a 14-for-18 free throw effort. Andrea Kragness added 12 points and Kari Boe had 10. Sara Huglen led Roseau with 12 points.

Roseau was 21-for-59 from the field (35 per cent), while Marshall County Central was 15-for-51 (29 per cent). The Rams were 10-fro-19 at the line. Roseau had a 40-33 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 18-12.

MSHSL News

TV Contracts

Minnesota State High School League Board of Directors has approved extension of the television rights with KMSP-TV (Channel 9), Minneapolis, for Prep Bowl and boys and girls state basketball tournaments.

A two year extension was granted for televising football championship games in the Metrodome in Minneapolis for Prep Bowl VI in 1987 and Prep Bowl VII in 1988. The station televised Prep Bowl title games for a first time last November.

KSMP-TV will also televise the 1988, 1989 and 1990 girls and boys state basketball tournament championship series. When it carries the girls and boys state basketball tournaments this March, it will mark the second year of a two year contract for those two tournaments.

Mark Olson Serves As House Page For Week In St. Paul

Mark Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitey Olson and a junior at Lincoln senior high school, spent the week of February 9-13 as a high school page for the State House of Representatives at the Capitol in St. Paul.

During this time, Mark met with Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls, worked as a page in the House chamber and was given the opportunity to learn about issues which face the 1987 Minnesota legislature.

This year, 160 outstanding high school juniors from schools across Minnesota will participate in the program designed to provide students with firsthand experience in the democratic process, as they work and learn with their state legislators.

As pages, they become familiar with House procedures and take part in informal seminars with lawmakers, lobbyists, news reporters, elected administrative officials and other Capitol insiders. Discussions are held on everything from current issues to the ethics of political philosophy. A variety of tours, films and lectures conclude the learning half of the program.

Students also work directly with the legislators, doing everything from carrying messages to copies of amendments to members during House sessions, to updating members' bills and journal files at each chamber desk.

"The House of Representatives strongly advocates the participation of young people in the legislative process," said Fred Norton, Speaker of the House. "As active citizens, they are using this rare opportunity to help play a key role in making government work for all Minnesotans. I am sure this is a positive and lasting experience for them as it is for House members to work with the young people."

In its 13th year, the high school page program allows students to have an active interchange on a non-partisan basis with House members in their development of an objective view of the two-party system of government. Students are nominated by their respective high schools to participate in the program, and House program staff makes a random selection of those chosen to attend, including one alternate from approximately 500 applicants.

MARK OLSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Whitey Olson of Thief River Falls and a junior at Lincoln high school, participated February 9-13 in the state House of Representatives page program. He is pictured in the House chambers with Rep. Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls.

Humphrey Joins In Opposition To FmHA Regulations

Attorney General Hubert Humphrey III and attorneys general from Iowa, Illinois and North Dakota are filing comments today in Washington opposing new regulations proposed by the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) which would overhaul the agency's farm loan programs.

According to Humphrey, the regulations will turn FmHA into a commercial-type lender. "FmHA was originally established by Congress to provide loans to family-sized farmers who could not obtain credit from other lenders," Humphrey said. "It was never intended to function like a commercial bank."

Specifically, the attorneys general oppose FmHA's proposals to:

(1) Institute new risk assessment ratios for evaluating loan applications because the use of these ratios could disqualify half of FmHA's current borrowers;

(2) Authorize FmHA to prohibit loans on any commodity which the agency declares is in surplus;

(3) Require liens on all assets of a borrower regardless of the amount of the borrower's loan;

(4) Weaken FmHA's county committees by authorizing the county supervisors to overturn favorable committee decisions regarding a borrower's eligibility;

(5) Prohibit operating loans for cash rent; and

(6) Reduce to one year the period during which the agency must give perference to family-sized farmers when selling property held in the agency's inventory.

Humphrey says that the last two proposals violate federal statutes, and all of the proposals violate the spirit of the law establishing FmHA. "For the past 50 years, FmHA has been there to help farmers in need. Now FmHA is turning that purpose on its head and planning to abandon the very farmers that it was designed to help."

FmHA originally allowed only 30 days for interested persons to comment on the 100 pages of proposed regulations. However, at the urging of the attorneys general, the Senate agriculture committee requested that FmHA extend the deadline. On February 13 FmHA agreed to extend the deadline until March 19, an additional 30 days.

Public Invited To Visit College During February

Northland community college extends a special invitation to the community to visit the campus during community college month, proclaimed for February by President Ronald Reagan and Gov. Rudy Perpich.

Governor Perpich's proclamation recognizes "the important contributions Minnesota's community colleges have made to the educational, economic and cultural well-being of the state."

Resolutions signed by President Reagan and Governor Perpich pay tribute to an educational system which has achieved tremendous success in the area of higher education. Community colleges presently account for nearly half of all college students enrolled in undergraduate programs throughout the nation.

In Minnesota, over 41,000 students enrolled in community college courses during fall, 1986. Forty per cent of these students were over age 25. Fifty-six per cent enrolled on a part-time basis.

Many adults have returned to college through the community colleges' unique Alliss opportunity grant program. Adults over 25 who have been away from high school or college for seven years and do not possess an advanced degree can take one college course of up to five credits at no charge. The cost of books is also included in the award.

In 1985-86 there were 5,726 Minnesotans who took advantage of the expanded educational opportunities created by the Allis Grant program. Participation in the program appears to be strong this year, as 2,581 students received Alliss Grants for fall quarter, 1986.

Community colleges also offer unique educational opportunities to high school students through participation in the state's postsecondary enrollment options program. In the 1986 fall quarter, 1,162 juniors and seniors enrolled for college courses under this program.

In his proclamation, President Reagan calls upon all citizens to observe this month with activities appropriate to the achievements of the national community college system. In doing so, Americans express recognition of the vital role these institutions play in higher education and their "significant contribution . . . to the strength, vitality and prosperity of our nation."

By providing educational opportunities at reasonable costs and accessible locations, community colleges have greatly enhanced the opportunity for every student, young or old, to pursue a higher education, states Dr. James Haviland, vice provost at Northland.

Ag Commissioner Calls U.S. Farm Policy "Failure"

Commissioner of Agriculture Jim Nichols said today a recent decision by the Farmers Home administration (FmHA) to let almost 1.5 million acres of government-owned farmland lie idle during 1987 is an admission that current farm policy is a complete failure.

FmHA administrator Vance Clark recently said the decision was made because the federal government will lose as much as $3 per acre by renting the land and paying government subsidies to farmers. That is because the government will have to pay more in deficiency payments to tenants than the government will pick up in return for rent, Nichols said.

"Can you imagine owning the land and not farming it because it's a sure loss," Nichols said. "The irony here is that taxpayers are the big losers since they will pick up the tab either way."

Nichols said the decision by the FmHA mirrors the predicament faced today by the nation's farmers who are losing money by farming the land.

4th CRP Sign-Up Half Gone; Much Interest Shown

Fourth sign-up period for the Conservation Reserve program (CRP) is now over half gone and there has been a lot of interest in this sign-up because of the change in the erosion formula for 1988, according to Ralph Rundell at the Marshall-Beltrami SWCD. The 1987 bids were screened by either the current or the 1988 method, whichever will be most beneficial to the landowner. The 1988 bids will be figured using the "new" or more stringent method. This has brought some changes in plans by owners who wanted to bid for 1988 but now will need to bid for 1987 if they are to qualify.

The change to accepting alfalfa hay as a crop has made more acres eligible for bid, but has not changed the erosion requirements. "In this respect, the change has not really helped many Marshall or Beltrami County farmers to qualify," Rundell said. "It sounds good but in reality hasn't changed much.

If you are interested in bidding land for CRP, go to your county ASCS office and submit your bid before close of business on February 27," he added.

City Council Looks At Cutting Back Personnel

Representatives of Thief River Falls' city council are looking for answers to property tax increases and discussing the possibility of cutting back on local governmental staff as an option to property tax increases.

Mayor Bob Carlson said at the council's Tuesday night meeting that if he has to take his share of the blame for property tax increases as an elected official, then he wants to know the answers why.

Mayor Carlson suggested council members sit as a full council on May 19 for the entire day. Usually on May 19, the day in which local citizens can discuss any questions and problems they might have with property taxes, the council handles each complaint separately, and councilmen do not listen to complaints for an entire day.

Mayor Carlson also said that he was going to try to get some local people together to pursue answers to why the property tax rate has increased so much. He said he would like to get representatives of all three local governments together and do some cost cutting, which might involve cutting back on the number of positions in local governmental staff.

Assistant city clerk Roger DeLap urged the council to think of a plan and direction to take before deciding to cut back on manpower. Councilmen concurred, but all agreed that personnel cutbacks, like the cutbacks being experienced by school districts across the state, are inevitable.

Police Chief Kenneth Froschheiser presented his annual report on the number of reported incidents in Thief River Falls during the past year. The report indicated that incidents responded to by police had increased by 23 per cent. The largest increases were seen in speeding violations, no current registration, and crimes against the person. The largest single response made by police in Thief River Falls, however, was to open car doors for people who had locked their keys in their car.

City council decided to go ahead with the 1987 street and utility project. Every property owner who is in the affected area will receive a notice of a public meeting tentatively set for March 31. In addition to the project's main work area in the fourth ward, the project may include Greenwood street west and Barzen avenue.

Harry Oen, representing the Council on Aging and the Heritage community center, appeared before the council to request a settlement of electrical bills between the city and contractor. The council agreed when the project was just beginning to get under way to pay a certain amount of the center's electrical bill each year. The council agreed to pay $312.28.

Oen also requested that the city do the excavation and paving of a parking area east of the center. Cost of that project was estimated at $2,500. The council agreed to do the excavation and paving with its own crews.

The council approved a planning commission recommendation to approve a preliminary plat of Millyard subdivision. Don Stewart, community development director, further asked the council to waive cul de sac requirements because of the location of current buildings, no future need for them, and because there is plenty of room to turn

SPECIAL AWARDS were presented Monday evening at the Thief River Falls board of education meeting to Mrs. Dolores Carlson, widow of the late Myrle Carlson, by school board members Paul Bortnem (left) and Harry Sjulson. Rev. Bortnem presented a service plaque from the school district and Sjulson a booklet of nomination form and testimonial letters compiled when Myrle Carlson was nominated as a candidate for school board member of the year.

Carlson Memory Is Honored By Board

"Myrle didn't plan on dying. He was planning on running for reelection to the board," stated Dolores Carlson Monday evening following presentations made to her in her late husband's behalf by the Thief River Falls board of education.

Mrs. Carlson received a plaque recognizing her husband's school board service and a booklet of nomination forms and testimonial letters prepared for his entry as a candidate for Minnesota school board member of the year. Presentations were made at the regular meeting of the board of education by vice chairman Paul Bortnem in the absence of chairman Hank Hallstrom and by Harry Sjulson, president of the Minnesota School Board association.

Sjulson said that the entry of Carlson by the local district in school board member of the year competition had begun before his death June 7, 1986, and the MSBA permitted the entry to be made posthumously. Winners were announced at the annual meeting of the association recently completed.

Included in the booklet prepared for competition was a hand-written summary which Carlson had completed prior to his death and was discovered by Mrs. Carlson among some of his personal papers in the law enforcement center office where he served as veterans service officer. She passed it along to the school district for inclusion in the entry materials.

"I look ahead with great anticipation to running again as a candidate for your board of education," Carlson had written. ". . . . So many positive things are happening in our school district that really excite me. Our certified staff is deeply involved in an effective school concept. Some of the staff attended seminars on this program and are working very hard at it.

". . . Our new five-year plan will be put into motion at the beginning of our new school year. This plan also entails a lot of hard work and complete all-district cooperation. Administration, certified staff, parents and students all will make this five-year plan work."

He also cited interest of volunteers in working in classrooms or other places and the need for everyone to feel they are a part of the school system. He noted the old high school was being removed and the new central heating plant being built.

"These are some of the many reasons I am excited about District 564," he wrote. "I can't stop working with something so exciting and important. Could you?"

The service plaque Carlson received states: "Presented in loving memory of Myrle L. Carlson, school board director and treasurer, 1980-1986, in recognition of his dedication and concern for the students and staff of the Thief River Falls public schools. His spirit, optimism and perseverance will be long remembered."

Carlson was treasurer of the district for five of his six years on the board. He served as Minnesota state high school league representative from the District 564 board, and was on negotiating committees. He held membership in the Lions club, Elks lodge, Northwest Medical center association, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, golf club, Eagles lodge and American Cancer society.

"While a member of the board of education," the nomination form states, "Myrle served on a number of board committees dealing with negotiations, extra-curriculars and facilities. He brought to each of these activities a positive, can-do attitude. Myrle advocated for better understanding and communication in bargaining; he supported co-curricular activities with an emphasis on academic and athletic achievement; and he always asked what will it do for students.

"For six years Myrle battled cancer with an unrepressed spirit and optimism that served as a model to us all."

Subcommittee Of Minnesota House Here On Friday

Minnesota House rural development subcommittee will hold a hearing in Thief River Falls Friday in the city auditorium from 10 to 11:30 p.m.

Chairman of the subcommittee, Rep. Roger Cooper, said there are two major issues on which members of the subcommittee will be asking the public to comment. "The first is, what rural development programs are working? Second, what needs to be done?" he said.

The subcommittee is holding hearings in various areas of the state to help lawmakers develop a legislative agenda for rural development. The subcommittee is currently considering the rural development act, which establishes a Greater Minnesota corporation.

The opportunity to testify is open to all members of the public. Speakers are asked to limit remarks to 10 minutes and arrive at the forum a half hour early for scheduling purposes.

County Hears Jobs Semi-Annual Report

Pennington county commissioners heard a semi-annual report of activities by Jobs Inc. and a request for $15,000 by that organization Tuesday evening in Thief River Falls.

Don Stewart, community development director, who shares duties as city planning officer and Jobs Inc. executive director, presented a list of highlights from the year's activities by Jobs Inc. The commissioners heard the statement without making a decision on whether to grant the $15,000 to Jobs Inc.

Dave Forsberg, Forsberg's Inc., appeared before the commissioners as representative of a new organization called "No Overly Waste" (NOW Inc.). Forsberg presented a proposal requesting investment of funds by the county in a project which would shred cans at Future Fuel and market them. Commissioner Bill Penning said he would not invest the money in the project unless they could prove to him that money could be made from it. He said he would not pour money into a project which could not survive.

Don Stewart, in his report on Jobs Inc. progress, noted that Jobs Inc. participated in: the OTH-B radar site; conducting a business expansion and retention survey; training seminars; discussions with new businesses which were considering moving to Thief River Falls, which included an institutional furniture company from Montana and an aircraft refitting operation; getting Bridgeman's renovation; healing wounds left from the move of Northwest Regional Development center to Thief River Falls, writing grants together with the AVTI to the McKnight Foundation; marketing the airport; finding grants for the water treatment plant; and lobbying for the continuation of Enterprise zone credit.

Stewart said he had no news on the OTH-B radar site plans. He did say, however, that the air force had moved the completion date of the final environmental impact statement to the end of March or beginning of April.

Jobs Inc. requested re-funding of its organization to the tune of $15,000.

Local Woman To Compete For Mrs. Minnesota Title

by Sharon LaCoursiere
Times Reporter

Elizabeth Engelbrecht is ready to represent Thief River Falls in the Mrs. Minnesota pageant March 15 in Bloomington. She received her official notification the end of January and has been busy ever since, lining up sponsors, planning her wardrobe, and just generally bubbling with enthusiasm about the event.

Of the 75 to 80 women applying as contestants to the Mrs. Minnesota contest, only 27 have been selected as finalists. The selection was based on an essay application stating interests, activities and personal statistics and a colored head and shoulders photograph.

The contest will be held March 15 at the Holiday Inn International airport in Bloomington. The public is invited to the fashion show at 3 p.m., and the evening portion of the pageant at 7:30 p.m., when each contestant will take part in the state costume competition and then be escorted by her husband as she participates in the evening gown competition.

Support of family and friends played a big part in Elizabeth's decision to enter the pageant. She said her husband, John, was the one who took the initiative in the original call to the pageant director in Excelsior, and he has been supportive and helpful throughout the preparation.

"And," she said, "Friends have been so helpful and kind. I feel they are participating in the contest with me. Considering how short a time we've lived here, so many people have been so helpful."

John and Elizabeth moved to Thief River Falls last June after attending Baptist Bible college in Springfield, MO. He is a Baptist minister, but is currently working at Hydra-Mac, and Elizabeth is a happy housewife and mother of Ryan, age 5, and Aimee, age 2.

She and her husband met at a marina in West Palm Beach, FL, and spent their three-month honeymoon cruising the Bahamas in his small sailboat. After nearly 10 years of marriage, Elizabeth said she and John still date and he brings her flowers and candy. About her marriage, she said, "I'm more old fashioned. I'm a romantic. I believe in mutual submission in marriage, and mutual support."

Mrs. Minnesota contestants will be judged in evening gown, swimsuit and state costume competition, and take part in four-minute personal interviews which will include a prepared one-minute presentation by

Shipping Ass'n. To End 70 Years Of Operation

After 70 years of operation as a local cooperative, the Thief River Falls Livestock Co-op Shipping association will be merging this year with the Middle River Cooperative Shipping association. Approval for the merger was voted by the Thief River Falls group at its annual meeting in February of 1986.

Over the 70 years of its operation the shipping association was involved in marketing hundreds of thousands of head of livestock, at one point surpassing the $1 million mark in value of livestock sold in a single year.

Marvin Koop, secretary-treasurer of the association since 1969, said that the association has had difficulty in finding a local trucker with good equipment for livestock transport since Merton Hutchinson resigned as trucker-manager in January of last year. Since that time the members have shipped primarily with Marvin Ness and Roger Lorenson, truckers for the Middle River association.

Koop also said that there has been a decrease in livestock shipping in recent years, although in 1985 there were 1,906 head of livestock shipped through the association with a gross value of $511,714.

Minutes of the association have been kept in a record book of the cooperative since it was formed on Feb. 26, 1916. T.H. Bjerke served as acting secretary and directors elected were Ed Grundhaus, Harry Woolson, J.B. Conner, Hans Anton and A.G. Loftness. The meeting to organize had been called by the Thief River Falls Commercial club.

Listed as signers of the association's by-laws were J.B. Conner, Ed Grundhaus, Hans Anton, A.G. Loftness, T.H. Bjerke, H.T. Bued, P.H. Wright, P.B. Malberg, William D. Rigert, Carl Jenson, W.E. Sargent, F.T. Satre, C. Christensen, R.L. Muzzy, John Kommedahl, Fred Beerbower, Ben Rosendahl and Harry Woolson.

At the first annual meeting on March 4, 1916, Conner was elected the first president with Anton as vice president and Woolson as secretary-treasurer. R.L. Muzzy was appointed manager and his compensation was set at 10 cents per hundredweight of livestock shipped. Bond for the manager was set at $2,500. At the annual meeting in 1917 the manager was commended by the board for "the excellent showing made."

Woolson served as secretary of the association until 1928 when Anton was elected. In 1934 Carl Beiswenger assumed those duties and in 1937 Christ Nelson began a long period of service as secretary-treasurer, ending with his death in 1957. Lloyd Nelson was appointed to fill the office until the next annual meeting when Harry Oen was elected and served until Marvin Koop succeeded him in 1969.

Shipping during early years of the association was done by rail. The annual report for 1929 — the first operating report included in the minutes — showed 45 carloads of livestock shipped which included 957 cattle and calves, 527 hogs and 1,661

Ann Odegaard - Rocky Joppru Wed December 6 In TRF

Ann Marie Odegaard and Rocky D. Joppru were united in marriage December 6 at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Roger Hanson officiated at the 4:30 p.m. double ring ceremony before approximately 206 guests.

Parents of the couple are Avis and Jerry Odegaard and Mildred and Melvin Joppru, all of Thief River Falls.

"Annie's Song" was sung as prelude by Kathy Bousu, who accompanied herself on guitar. Bridesmaids, escorted by the groomsmen, entered to "The Prince of Denmark March," and bridal processional was "The Wedding March From the Sound of Music."

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown she designed and fashioned herself of white satin brocade with a V-neckline and cathedral-length train trimmed in pearls. To compliment the gown, she wore a tiara of pearls and a flowing fingertip veil.

She carried a bridal bouquet of red and white roses in a spray of snow-covered pine with red velvet streamers. Personal attendants were Sharon Odegaard and Pam Joppru.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Patti Smeby, Thief River Falls. Bridesmaids were friends of the bride, Diane Angermeier, Fargo, ND, and Kathy Pederson, Brainerd; and sisters of the groom, Cookie Overby, Lakeville, and Jan Hams, Thief River Falls.

Junior bridesmaid was Melissa Hams, niece of the groom. All bridal attendants wore matching red, satin brocade, floor-length gowns and carried red roses in a spray of snow-covered pine with white velvet ribbon. The junior bridesmaid carried a white muff with a red velvet bow.

Solo, "Make Us One, Father," was sung while Sarah Smeby and Skye Odegaard, nieces of the bride, carried roses to the couple for presentation to their parents. Cheri Perisian, a friend of the bride, sang, "The Lord's Prayer."

Roy Seaverson of Sioux Falls, SD, was his friend's best man. Groomsmen were all friends of the groom, Mark Haraldson, Fergus Falls; Gary Johnson and Frank Hagman, both of Thief River Falls, and Terry Tollefson of Minneapolis. Junior groomsman was Shane Odegaard, nephew of the bride.

Dean Joppru and Chuck Odegaard ushered the guests. Gentlemen of the wedding wore black tuxedos with red bow tie and cummerbund and red rose boutonnieres.

The groom was attired in white tails with matching vest and accessories.

The mother of the bride wore a street-length gown of ice blue satin brocade. The groom's mother wore a silk gown of royal blue. Both mothers were presented with corsages of white roses.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was held for the guests at the American Legion club in Thief River Falls, presented by the parents of the bride. Dance music was provided by "The Last Resort." Host couples were Don and Kyle Joppru and Larry and Marlene Odegaard.

Highlight of the serving table was a three-tiered chocolate and white layered wedding cake iced and decorated in white, featuring a flowing fountain at the base, and topped with a silver Christogram surrounded by an arrangement of red and white roses. Red ribbon streamers led to heart-shaped side cakes inscribed with the names of the bride and groom.

Cutting the wedding cake were Vi Joppru and Geraldine Wick, and Lisa Odegaard and Heather Overby served it to the guests. Jerry Bruggeman and Mindy Green served punch; Sean Odegaard, Shawn Qualley, Jonathon Hams and Shane McNatton arranged the gifts; and Kristen Odegaard and Jenny Overbye distributed candy kisses.

Major Appliance Problem? Four Steps Suggested

If your dishwasher just stopped washing or your oven refuses to bake, it's time to do "The Four Step."

No, this isn't a new dance — it's the logical and common sense thing to do when one of your appliances stops working.

Step one — Stop everything and read the use and care booklet. Yes, admit it, that's the book you've been avoiding since the day you bought the appliance! While you're doing that, also check the plug and fuses, pilots and controls. You just may find the answer to your problem.

If not, go to Step Two. Call the local dealer where you bought the appliance or a reputable local service agency, trained and equipped to handle appliance service problems.

If you still have your problem, it's time for Step Three. Contact the manufacturer or brand-name retailer of your appliance. You should find the address and phone number in the use-and-care booklet. Most companies now have 800 numbers, so the call is usually free.

If your problem persists, then to to Step Four. Write the Major Appliance Consumer Action panel. The panel receives complaints that can't be resolved by the local service agency or dealer or manufacturer. It will immediately route your complaint to the right official in the company. If the company refuses to do anything or you don't like their offer, the panel will then review your complaint in detail. If they feel you have a legitimate complaint, they will recommend the company take a specific action to resolve your problem. If they feel you don't have a legitimate complaint or that you can't substantiate a problem, they'll let you know.

When you write MACAP, be sure to include:

+ Your name, address and a daytime phone number;

+ The type of appliance, brand, model and serial number;

+ The purchase date and price of your appliance;

+ The name, address and phone number of your local dealer or service agency;

+ Copies of all letters you have written or received about your complaint;

+ Copies of all service receipts (including those within warranty where you did not pay for service); and

+ A clear description of your problem and what you think is a reasonable and fair solution.

Take heart! MACAP has resolved 80 per cent of the complaints it has reviewed during the past 16 years. And appliance companies have agreed with the panel's recommendations in over 90 per cent of the cases.

One last important bit of information — MACAP only handles complaints about clothes washers and dryers, dehumidifiers, dishwashers, food waste disposers, freezers, microwave ovens, ranges-ovens, refrigerators, room air conditioners, trash compactors and water heaters.

The address to write to MACAP is 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60606. Be sure to ask for a free brochure that tells how to resolve appliance problems and use MACAP.

County Hears Jobs Annual Report And Fund Request

Jobs Inc. made the same request last year, but during the summer requested that some of the funds be withheld because they would not need it. Stewart said, however, that this year they anticipated a need for the full $15,000.

Dave Forsberg presented a proposal to develop a feasibility study to determine the best solution for handling "ecology scrap (steel cans) and compost material produced at Future Fuel, Inc."

"My company firmly believes, as does Pennington county and Future Fuel, that we can totally eliminate the need for sanitary landfills," writes Forsberg in his proposal.

After discussing the proposal at length, and future prospects of hearing complaints from the public about the smell of the cans and compost piles this summer, the commissioners decided to fund the proposal for a one-month trial period.

The feasibility study would look at two phases of the operation: ecology scrap and compost. NOW proposes to continue with work already started on the study, complete the study and manage it until operations can be taken over by Future Fuel, Inc. For this service NOW Inc. would require a fee of $2,500 plus expenses for equipment costs and other expenses such as travel.

In other business, the commissioners denied a request by Randy Otis on behalf of Chaparrel apartments in Thief River Falls to give an abatement of penalties on delinquent taxes; moved to pay $2,715 to Northwestern Minnesota rail shippers corporation for repairs and costs of repair to the railroad line between St. Hilaire and Warroad; approved a motion to grant an enterprise zone modification to include a parcel of land next to the airport and Bridgeman's; approved an increase in the conservation reserve program without setting an upper limit; approved bid letting for an overlay on state aid highway 22; and approved a 3.2 liquor license for Rocksbury market.

TRF City Council Looks At Cutting Back Personnel

around. The cost of the plat will be divided among Tri-State Land Co., the city and Nash-Finch. Stewart said approval of the preliminary plat is no indication that the Nash-Finch (Piggly Wiggly store) proposed new store construction will or will not continue.

Arlen Merrill has been terminated as an employee of the city. Merrill was injured two years ago, in June of 1984, and has since then been on medical leave of absence. Councilman Milan Borsheim said the city tried to put him back to work, and only then put him on medical leave of absence. City Attorney Paul Ihle said a lawsuit determining whether he is gainfully employable and should remain eligible for the city's health insurance is possible.

In other business the council approved a request for a 10-minute parking zone stall with one disenting vote by Councilman Borsheim; approved low bids on two transformers from Border States; turned over the matter of a safety barricade above the dam near Horace avenue to the public safety committee; and approved a progression raise for Barry Newton, fire fighter.

Shipping Ass'n. To End 70 Years Of Operation

sheep. Gross receipts to shippers were $68,596. The report listed "So. St. Paul Expenses, Freight, etc." as $4,713.92.

Economic conditions of the 1930's were reflected in the annual reports of the association during that period. In 1931 gross receipts were only $30,843 on 40 carloads of livestock shipped, including 913 cattle and calves, 624 hogs and 819 sheep. In 1933 there were 31 carloads of livestock shipped and only $16,713 in gross sales.

Minutes of the 1935 annual meeting stated: "Question of handling this stock by truck as compared with rail shipments was discussed. General feeling was expressed that everything possible should be done to keep the association alive and to compete with truckers."

By 1938 the number of livestock shipped had climbed to 4,168 head and the 1,116,203 pounds brought a net of $61,210. Annual report for 1942 showed shipment of 2,390 cattle, 759 calves, 2,274 hogs and 3,378 sheep — a total of 8,801 head weighing 2,555,328 pounds — but no listing of value. It appears that the 8,801 is the largest number of animals shipped in any one year through the association.

More than 2 million pounds of livestock were shipped each year during the early 1940's, dropping to 1,565,392 pounds in 1948. In 1952 it was noted that shipment of 1,525 cattle, 466 calves, 731 hogs and 1,733 sheep totaled 1,667,449 pounds and provided net proceeds of $300,752.

During the 1960's value of livestock shipped exceeded half a million dollars in most years and the totals continued upward into the early 1970's. Record dollar volume was reached in 1976 when gross value of livestock sold was $1,007,650. The 6,571 head of livestock shopped weighed an aggregate of 3,382,690 pounds and included 3,585 cattle, 609 calves, 829 hogs and 1,548 sheep. It was the only year on record where gross value exceeded the $1-million mark.

Gross value of livestock sold continued around the $750,000 mark into the early 1980's, then fell to just over half a million dollars in the past two years.

Members of the board of directors at the time of merger with the Middle River association include Robert Wald, St. Hilaire, president; Harvey Troska, Goodridge, vice president; Marvin Koop, Thief River Falls, secretary-treasurer; Leland Nelson, James Muzzy, Ray Rausch and Duane Vatsaas, all of Thief River Falls, directors.

It should be noted that the Muzzy family has been involved with the association since it was founded, with R.L. Muzzy as one of the signers of the by-laws and James Muzzy as a member of the final board of directors. The Koop family has been involved since 1923 when Henry Koop was elected to the board of directors.

Select Preparer Of Tax Returns With Proper Care

Many taxpayers have already received their tax packages from the IRS and are now ready to complete and file their tax return. If you are one of the many who pay someone else to prepare your tax return, the Internal Revenue service offers some guidelines to follow when choosing a preparer.

Do not sign a blank return or one which is partially complete. These returns could be altered by the preparer. A tax return preparer is required by law to sign and date the return and to enter an identification number. You must be furnished a copy of the completed return. Preparers who promise a refund, claim a special relationship with the IRS or boast of ways to beat the tax system should also be avoided, the IRS suggests.

Choosing of a preparer is particularly important because you, not the preparer, are responsible for the accuracy of your tax return. Most tax return preparers are honest and do not deliberately attempt to defraud either their clients or the IRS. However, a few misuse the responsibility of preparing a tax return for someone else. As much care should go into the choosing of a tax preparer as the selection of an attorney, doctor or any other professional.

Local Woman To Compete For Mrs. Minnesota Title

each contestant and three minutes of questioning by the judges. They will also take part in a "Gala Spring Fashion Show" of gowns furnished for them by a leading fashion retailer. Elizabeth has already submitted her size for the fashion show gown, a svelte size six.

For evening gown competition, Elizabeth has chosen a periwinkle blue gown with matching shoes and rhinestone jewelry. Her dress for the judges' interview will be teal blue silk, in a style that is very "tailored and professional," she said. With it she will wear pearl accessories and cream shoes and hose.

Her swimsuit is turquoise green with matching shoes. Contestants were asked to choose a solid color, one-piece suit of "modest design." For the state costume competition, she will wear an Arctic snowsuit, which she feels is representative of this community's interest and enjoyment.

Mrs. America contestants will be judged on poise and personality, intelligence and appearance.

As far as her appearance, Elizabeth said she hasn't changed her normal routine to prepare for the event. She has always been physically active, choosing to walk instead of ride and doing aerobic exercises each morning. She has just been increasing her participation in these exercises to tone up any flab from winter.

She will wear the same amount of make-up for the pageant competition that she always has, since make-up is a part of her daily routine. She stated, "I don't like to be full of glitter. I'll just add a bit for the lights — make-up tends to wash out under the stage lighting, but basically I'll wear the same make-up I always do."

Since Elizabeth is an avid reader, she feels up to answering whatever questions the judges may toss at her. She enjoys keeping up on current events and has been even more diligent in this lately, to make sure she's ready for anything.

Elizabeth loves to meet people and feels her natural self-confidence will be an asset in the contest. She said, "I recognize shyness and hesitancy in others, and can relate to that, even though I would say I've never been shy myself." And her out-going, vivacious, Irish-Spanish personality certainly speaks for that.

She did admit her self-confidence was tested when she had to find sponsors for the pageant. "I found it very hard to go in and sell myself," she said, "but everyone was so nice. It wasn't hard at all. I even got more sponsors than I needed."

Elizabeth's local sponsors are: K-Mart, The Mercantile, Unruh Motors, KTRF and KSNR, Northland Foods, Bryce and Ruth Bray, Wes Johnson, Arctco, Inc., and Hairlines Unlimited. Other sponsors are, from West Palm Beach, FL, Rev. and Mrs. Robert McLaughlin, Mustang Paradise and Friends of West Palm Beach; California Natural, Inc. of Beverly Hills, CA; and Showcase Boutique of Pennsylvania, FL.

Hardee's Gains Third Spot In Food Popularity

Hardee's Food Systems today announced that according to the most recent CREST Report (Consumer Restaurant Eating Share Trends), Hardee's has surpassed Wendy's in customer traffic to become the third most popular hamburger chain in America behind Burger King and McDonald's.

According to the CREST Report, which is the foodservice industry's primary source of share date, Hardee's has increased consumer visitation by 5.1 per cent over the same period one year ago.

The Report also showed that Hardee's share of U.S. customer traffic increased to 9.1 per cent in the Quick Service Sandwich Restaurant category. Hardee's and McDonald's were the only two major hamburger chains to post real growth during the 12-month period.

In a press conference held at the Metropolis Restaurant of NYC today, Jack Laughery, chairman and chief executive officer of Hardee's Food Systems, Inc. said, "The consumer is voting with his feet and coming to Hardee's in ever increasing numbers. Obviously we are very pleased. By all measurements, Hardee's is one of the most consistent and fastest growing fast food companies in America."

Bill Prather, Hardee's president and chief operating officer, added that the company's new thicker and juicier hamburgers have been the key to Hardee's recent surge. "Consumers told us that they wanted a better hamburger product and we gave it to them. There is no question that Hardee's new hamburger is at the heart of this consumer realignment and has led to an increase in average unit volume at Hardee's to $830,000 for the period ending Dec. 31, 1986," said Prather.

Both Laughery and Prather credit Hardee's success to three criteria: the growth of Hardee's restaurants through company-owned and franchised restaurant expansion, the structuring of an extremely strong franchise community, and the creation of a diversified menu of superior hamburger products and quality specialty sandwiches which are appealing to all consumers.

Founded in 1961, Hardee's operates 2,711 restaurants in 40 states and 12 foreign countries; 893 are company-owned and 1,818 are franchise-owned.

Save Your Vision Week Emphasizes Eye Care Needs

Today's over-40 crowd has a greater need for eye care but a lot more choices than their parents' generation, says the president of the Minnesota Optometric association, noting that Save Your Vision week will be observed March 1-7.

"Changes in vision have always plagued people over 40. It's part of the aging process," said Dr. Skip Tillisch. "But with today's fast-paced and varied lifestyle, these normal changes in near and distance vision are having a greater impact on people's lives."

A pair of reading glasses or standard bifocals used to suffice for most people but not anymore, he noted. They do not meet the needs of people who are using computer terminals and automatic tellers, participating in a variety of sports, engaging in hobbies, doing home remodeling, reading everything from home buying contracts to novels and, in general, leading full, active lives with a wide variety of demands on their vision.

"People over 40 just can't get by with a casual eye care program," Dr. Tillisch said. "They need annual examinations to keep pace with changes in their vision and they also need full service. It takes time and skill to prescribe eyewear that will best meet their work and recreational needs."

Dr. Tillisch said people over 40 today have a wide choice of eyeglasses and contact lenses to meet vision and lifestyle needs. They include reading glasses in full or half-frames; many different bifocal and trifocal designs; blended bifocals; progressive addition lenses; bifocal contact lenses; and a contact lens fitting procedure called monovision, which involves wearing a lens for near vision on one eye and for distance vision on the other.

72 YEARS AGO, this is what Third street in Thief River Falls looked like, viewed from the east at the corner of Third street and Horace avenue. The building on the left, most recently the Pennington hotel, was razed a few years ago to create First Federal Savings and Loan association's parking lot. The building on the right would be on the site of a vacated service station. While the streets are obviously unsurfaced, the sidewalks appear to be made of concrete and the scene is lit by streetlights. The scene is from a postcard dated March 16, 1915, and mailed to Miss Palma Johnson at Golden Valley, MN. At that time there was a community called Golden Valley where Agassiz National Wildlife refuge is now located. Palma Johnson later became Mrs. Thorval Kolden and raised a large family at Thief River Falls. The card was recently discovered by her son Roger amongsome of her belongings.

Board Considers Reduction List For Cost Cutting

Presentation of materials honoring Myrle Carlson to his widow (see story in this issue) and discussion of a preliminary list of proposed budget reductions highlighted the regular meeting of the School District 564 board of education Monday evening at the school district service center.

The proposed budget reductions are arranged in three clusters which total $292,150. Voted on by principals and assistant principals, the clusters represent groupings of cuts. The first cluster ($120,150) would involve items to be the first cut and last reinstated. Second cluster totals $126,000 and the third $46,000.

The reductions assume a reduction in enrollment of 97.7 pupil units, as projected by the district's enrollment figures, to a 1987-88 enrollment of 2,770 pupil units. Levy income is based on a three per cent delinquency rate, federal income is assumed to remain at the same levels as the current year and foundation aid from the state is placed at $1,700 per pupil unit.

Much of the first cluster of reductions includes elimination of partial teaching assignments at Franklin, Lincoln and elementary schools plus one fulltime equivalent fifth grade instructor. Also included are department head pay, clerical aide at Franklin, removal of photo copiers from the teacher work areas at Franklin, elementary supplies and center school fees.

The second cluster includes a swimming pool aide, kindergarten aides, elementary library aide, several partial faculty positions and a full time equivalent math and social instructor at Franklin, developmental kindergarten instructor and developmental kindergarten aide.

Third cluster includes part time German and science instruction at Franklin and a full time equivalent industrial arts position at Lincoln.

The board directed the superintendent to develop an additional list of optional reductions for their consideration. The list is to include non-teaching staff reductions.

Contracts were awarded in the amount of $27,996 to McLaughlin Equipment company for two new bus bodies, $55,975 to Wallwork Truck center for two new bus chassis and $31,880 to Westside Motors for two new Dodge vans.

Harry Sjulson invited the board to a meeting Wednesday at 7 p.m. to discuss the proposed tobacco-free schools policy with judges, law enforcement officials, district administrators and counselors. Also discussed will be drug and alcohol problems in the district.

Dr. Milton Hoff, Franklin middle school principal, presented results of a survey at Franklin which indicated a preference for a trimester system over the semester system.

A request by Della Burstad, aide at Franklin, for an additional year's leave of absence was denied. Authorization was given for the community education advisory council to meet with the outdoor swimming pool committee to establish a relationship between the proposed outdoor pool and the existing facility at Franklin.

Commendation was given by the board to the Lincoln high school girls' basketball team on its excellent (19-1) record on the regular season and an expression of thanks to Northrop students for contributing their work to the board room.

Job Training Plan Establishes 1987 Procedures

Proposed annual update to the program year 1986-87 job training plan for the Northwest service delivery area will describe the administration and program structure for the job training programs to be provided in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

These programs are created through the Job Training Partnership act of 1982 and are governed locally by the Northwest private industry council as the representative of private business and the Northwest Regional Development commission's board of directors as representative of local elected officials.

The plan will establish the major goals of local policy development based on the governor's goals and objectives. Major components of the plan will continue to include an emphasis on positive work attitudes and basic work skills in providing adult, in high school, out-of-school, career education and summer youth services to economically disadvantaged persons.

The plan covers an allocation of $848,925 for adult and youth programs and an allocation of $358,403 for summer youth programs for a total of $1,207,328 in training, supportive services and administration.

The plan designated the Northwest private industry council as the administrative entity and grant recipient for the seven-county area. It designates the department of jobs and training as the program operator for the adult and out-of-school youth programs, the Region I career center as the program operator for area career services and Inter-County Community council as the program operator for the in-school youth and summer youth programs.

The plan will include detailed descriptions of the service system, administrative procedures, local service level to population segments and budget breakdown. The plan is written in response to requirements of the job training partnership act of the governor's job training council.

Anyone wishing to comment on this plan should contact Gail Butenhoff at the Northwest Private Industry Council by writing to 102 North Broadway, Crookston, MN 56716 or calling 1-800-262-6027. The final plan will be submitted on April 1.

Police Incident Reports Increase By 23 Per Cent

Police Chief Kenneth Froschheiser presented startling statistics to Thief River Falls city councilmen Tuesday night, which indicates increases in crime and traffic violations. He reported the total violations increased by 101, a 23 per cent increase over 1985.

Chief Froschheiser said some of the largest increases included: a 22 per cent increase in total offenses; a 56 per cent increase in crimes against the person; a nine per cent increase in traffic accidents; and a six per cent increase in service related calls or assistance.

Froschheiser said juvenile crime was down by 76.5 per cent, but the decrease is accounted for by the courts reluctance to deal with juvenile offenders. Froschheiser said the courts, when faced with smoking violations by juveniles and juvenile runaways, do not know what to do with them and have "simply thrown up their hands and done nothing."

Those two violations account for most of the decrease. Froschheiser said his department plans to meet with school district officials and hopefully court representatives Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the school district service center.

The police department to this date, because the court has been throwing out violations, has confiscated cigarettes from youths and given warnings. Hopefully something can be worked out, Froschheiser said. But his department cannot enforce no smoking in the schools — it isn't in their policy to do so, he said.

Increases in speeding violations, Froschheiser said, were due in part to improved roads. He said he has noticed a lot more violations on Third street, for example.

Non-current registration citations have increased because of economic conditions Froschheiser said. The most common response he has heard, is that the individual could not afford the re-registration fee and was trying to postpone it as long as possible.

The significant 56 per cent increase in crimes against the person is somewhat misleading, he said, because in 1985 there were so few that the few added violations in 1986 caused a significant percentage increase.

Crimes against the person include rape, robbery, aggravated assault, other assaults, crimes against family and other sex offenses. Figures for those classes of crimes were: three rapes in 1986 compared to four in 1985; three robberies in 1986 compared to zero in 1985; eight aggravated assault incidents in 1986 compared to two in 1985; other assaults, which includes 30 battered women compared to 18 in 1985, added up to 71 in 1986 compared to 52 in 1985; 14 crimes against the family in 1986 compared to eight in 1985; and four sex offenses in 1986 compared to zero in 1985.

Crimes against property, on the other hand, remained the same. However, the figures under the classifications, which includes burglary larceny, auto theft, forgery, possession of stolen property, vandalism, fraud, and arson, varied, yet added up to the same number of incidents. Marked increases were seen in shoplifting, and auto thefts. Decreases were seen in just about every other class. Auto theft has doubled over 1985 (These incidents include snowmobiles and ATV as well as regular vehicles).

Narcotic violations decreased significantly, but Froschheiser said it was due to the fact that 1985 was a major year for investigations. Liquor violations also decreased. DWI incidents decreased from 62 in 1985 to 48 in 1986. Other liquor law violations increased from 53 in 1985 to 71 in 1986 and inebriecy incidents decreased from 37 in 1985 to 20 in 1986.

Froschheiser's report further divides the statistics into traffic violations alone. He divided traffic violations into moving violations and non-moving violations. Increases were seen in both sub-classifications. In Moving violations for tickets issued: aggravated DWI tickets decreased from nine to four; gross DWI decreased from 12 to 11; driving while intoxicated decreased from 41 to 33; reckless driving increased from zero to two; careless driving increased from four to five; exhibition driving increased from 11 to 21; speeding increased from 118 to 186; too fast for conditions decreased from two to one; driving over the centerline increased from two to four; failure to heed stop signs or light decreased from 55 to 45; failure to yield the right of way increased from two to four; and improper change of course remained the same at one for both years.

For non-moving violations: leaving the scene of accident citations decreased from 12 to eight; open bottle violations increased from 21 to 26; no insurance increased from 19 to 20; failure to stop for an officer increased from one to eight; fleeing police officers increased from five to eight; handicapped parking violations decreased from 38 to 34.

Probably the single largest increase for the Police department this year was in the total number of calls where some action or assistance was taken. Froschheiser pointed out that ambulance runs increased from 30 to 90, disturbance calls increased from 434 to 503; residence checks decreased from 2,048 to 2,004; while opening car doors increased from 885 to 956.

Other statistics gathered by the department included impounding an increasing number of dogs. The number of dogs impounded increased from 108 to 173.

While the number of incidents and violations increased, the amount of fine monies collected by the police department also increased. Fine monies taken in by parking violations totaled $9,323.55. Total fine monies collected by the police department totaled $37,980.33 an increase over the $37,038.97 collected the previous year.

LOCAL YOUTHS who went on a Boundry Waters canoe trip last summer ended up with extra funds after the trip and decided to donate over $175 to the Area Ag Information center. The canoe trip was jointly sponsored by Redeemer Lutheran church and Thief River Falls Unites Methodist church. The funds for the trip were raised by the youths from a brunch, a car wash, yardwork and babysitting. Pictured from left are: Lana Anderson, research assistant at the Area Ag Information center; Scott Anderson, Kevin Johnson, Dr. Tom Dimich of Redeemer Lutheran church, and Rev. # 'Stray Voltage' Problem In Dairy Herds Checked

Congressman Arlan Stangeland met with a group of area dairy farmers at the Red River Valley winter shows to discuss a problem that many dairy farmers are experiencing called "stray voltage."

Numerous studies have shown that dairy cows exposed to stray voltages may exhibit many undesireable effects, such as reduced milk production and quality, uneven milk-outs, increased mastitis and breeding problems. University people and power suppliers have studied the problem for a number of years. They have also proposed and implemented a number of possible solutions.

Many dairy farmers feel that although the changes proposed have often helped, the basic problem still persists. Because of the depressing and destructive nature of this problem, farmers are desperately seeking assistance to find a solution. They have approached many state and federal legislators to enlist their support in gathering much needed statistical data and generating money for research.

"I am not an electrical engineer and cannot comment on the cause; however, I am convinced that there is an unsolved problem affecting many dairy farms, and I am committed to assist in resolving the problem," Congressman Stangeland said.

He added he would like individuals who have also experienced stray voltage problems to either contact one of his offices or Mrs. Frank Pesola at Route 3, Box 46, New York Mills, Minnesota 56567.

State Tornado Awareness Week Set March 15-21

Tornado awareness will be stressed during Minnesota Tornado Awareness Week, March 15-21, as proclaimed by Governor Rudy Perpich.

A statewide tornado drill has been scheduled for Thursday, March 19, according to emergency services director Tom Motherway of the Minnesota department of public safety. This is the sixth annual statewide drill to be held.

The Minnesota division of emergency services, in cooperation with the National Weather Service and the American Red Cross, has developed the schedule for the drill. Local government, health care facilities, business and industry and more than 450 school districts throughout the state will be using this occasion to test their emergency plans and procedures prior to the onset of the severe summer weather season.

The National Weather service forecast office will initiate the drill by issuing a test "tornado watch" message at 8 a.m. on March 19. The statewide emergency broadcast system (EBS) quarterly test will be conducted at 1:15 p.m. to coincide with the drill. Individuals should monitor their local EBS station for a special tornado awareness message at that time. At 1:21 p.m. the National Weather service will issue a test "tornado warning" message and all communities will activate their outdoor warning systems. At that time, facilities all across the state will be testing their emergency plans.

It is important to remember that a tornado watch means that weather conditions are favorable for the development of tornadoes. A tornado warning means that a tornado has actually been sighted and the public should take cover. When a tornado warning is issued, warning sirens in the affected area are sounded.

The general public should use this occasion to increase their awareness of these storms and review the procedures they would follow at home. Persons wishing information regarding tornado and severe thunderstorm safety rules should contact their local emergency management office, or write to the Division of Emergency Services, B-5 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155.

Interest Payment Often Deductible On Income Taxes

Interest payments on loans from banks, insurance companies, credit unions, loan companies, tuition payment plans, or individuals — as well as finance charges on goods bought on the installment plan or with a credit card, such as a car, appliances, or furniture — are deductible on your 1986 income tax return, according to H & R Block. The interest payments can be deducted if they are separately stated or can be definitely determined.

The interest portion of monthly mortgage payments provides a substantial deduction for many taxpayers. The interest paid is generally shown on the statement furnished by the lender; if it is not, a statement may be requested.

There is usually a separately stated finance charge for items such as jewelry, furniture, appliances, etc. purchased on a store's revolving charge account. This amount may be included as an itemized deduction on the income tax return.

Credit card customers may also deduct as interest the finance charges that are based on the unpaid monthly balances. Designated finance charges charged against your bank account under a bank credit card plan are also deductible as interest as long as no part of the charge is a service charge, loan fee, credit investigation fee or other similar cost.

The same tax rule applies to interest charged on payments to an institution of learning for tuition and lodging.

Load Limits For Marshall County Roads To Begin

Effective date of road restrictions on all Marshall county roads will be concurrent with placement of restrictions on trunk highways in the area, according to Dennis Brekke, Marshall county sheriff.

Restrictions are based on gross axle weight and include weight of both the vehicle and the load it carries. No permits for overweight axle loads exceeding legal or posted axle weights will be issued. Erection of signs on any highway governs the effective date of the restriction. As long as signs remain in place, restrictions are in effect.

"During the period when signs are in place, approximately March 5 through May 15," Sheriff Brekke said, "any county or town road is restricted to 10,000 pounds gross weight per axle. If signs are erected, the restrictions as indicated on the sign shall govern. If no signs are erected, the 10,000 pound gross weight provisions per axle shall apply."

Exceptions to the 10,000 pound gross weight per axle restrictions are the following roads which will be posted to 14,000 pounds:

CSAH 1 from CSAH 4 to the Kittson county line; CSAH 2 from TH 1 to CSAH 12 and from CSAH 12 to TH 219; CSAH 3 from TH 75 at Warren to CSAH 4; CSAH 4 from TH 220 to five miles east of Stephen; CSAH 6 from TH 75 at Stephen to TH 89;

Also CSAH 7 from TH 59 to TH 32; CSAH 8 fron CSAH 28 to CSAH 6; CSAH 9 from Polk county line to TH 1; CSAH 10 from TH 1 at Alvarado to CSAH 5; CSAH 11 from CSAH 2 to Viking Elevator approach; CSAH 14 from CSAH 3 to CSAH 11;

Also CSAH 20 from CSAH 10 to TH 75; CSAH 23 from CSAH 5 to CSAH 24; CSAH 28 from TH 59 at Strandquist to TH 32; CSAH 34 from CSAH 3 to CSAH 6; CSAH 36 from Radium Elevator approach to CSAH 14; CSAH 32 from Pennington county line to CSAH 2; CSAH 54 from Pennington county line to Roseau county line; and CR 138 from Florian Park to CSAH 5.

Hard surfaced county state aid highways located within corporate city limits and segments of selected highways are dedicated as nine-ton roads. These include highways CSAH 28 in Newfolden, CSAH 56 in Alvarado, CSAH in Argyle, CSAH 58 in Grygla; CSAH 60 in Middle River; CSAH 61 in Oslo, , CSAH 62 in Stephen, CSAH 63 in Strandquist, CSAH 64 in Warren and CSAH 36 from TH 1 to Radium Elevator approach.

Registration And Speeding Violations On Courtroom Log

These two violations increased in occurrance significantly during the past year, according to Police Chief Froschheiser. New streets and poor economic conditions were factors in the increased incident reports. Froschheiser said his department has seen faster speeds on Third street because it has been repaired. He also noted that non-current registration citations were due to people wanting to wait as long as possible without paying because they might not have the money to pay for re-registration at the time.

Growers Urged To Become Certified Pesticide Users

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) placed four of the most widely used corn rootworm insecticides on its restricted use list. Many other popular chemicals, such as Bladex are now also restricted use pesticides.

Restricted use means these products can only be sold to farmers who have a private pesticide license, which they received after attending meetings and are certified on safe use and handling.

Cornbelt growers are urged to become certified private pesticide applicators or renew their license before the 1987 growing season if they wish to purchase products with restricted use labeling.

Pesticide dealers are responsible for checking licenses to see if farmers are certified to buy restricted use products.

Growers should contact their county extension agent or pesticide dealer for details on how to become certified. Depending on state guidelines, becoming certified means completing a class or test. Last year, well over 40,000 Midwest growers became certified in order to purchase the restricted use products before the growing season began.

Bears Linebacker Promotes PTA's Awareness Week

Mike Singletary, defensive captain of the Chicago Bears, is going on the offense to ask children and teens to stay drug and alcohol free, in conjunction with the National PTA's third annual drug and alcohol awareness week March 1-7.

Singletary, a spokesperson for the 5.8 million member association's drug and alcohol abuse prevention project, has recorded television public service announcements in which he points out that alcohol is a drug. He urges children to be the best they can be by staying drug and alcohol free.

In the spots, scheduled to air during and following the national observance, Singletary says, "You've been hearing a lot about drugs lately; that they're dangerous and that you should say 'no'. But I still hear kids saying, 'I would never do drugs. I only drink alcohol.'"

Ann Kahn, national PTA president, said the spots were developed because "many young people and their parents don't realize that alcohol is a drug." In addition, she advises parents to be aware of their own use of alcohol and other drugs because "your habits send your children a powerful message."

During drug and alcohol awareness week thousands of PTAs nationwide will be focusing their efforts on reaching parents and encouraging them to learn the facts about alcohol and other drugs. "Since kids begin to feel pressure to use drugs as early as the fourth grade, parents have to help them know what to do before they're nine years old," Singletary said.

"Positive Alternatives: A Community Responsibility," the week's theme, will be addressed by PTA members in their communities by providing children and youth with alternatives to substance abuse. Activities will include participation in sports and other group programs, and holding meetings to teach youngsters how to improve their communication skills and build self-esteem.

For more information contact Jeanne Koepsell, National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611 (312), phone 787-0977.

Prowlers Run Past Middle River 70-36

Twelve different Thief River Falls players put points on the board Tuesday as the Prowlers overwhelmed visiting Middle River 70-36 in a boys high school basketball mismatch.

Chris Nelson led the assault with 19 points. The 6-4 junior forward-turned guard had 17 of those in the first half, then left the game along with the rest of the Thief River Falls starters midway through the third quarter. Jarrod Kalsnes joined Nelson in double figures as the 6-2 senior netted 10 points. Rest of the scoring was spread around as the Thief River Falls offense, the culprit in a lengthy mid-season slump, hit the 70-point figure for the second game in a row after beating East Grand Forks 72-50 Friday night.

Only Middle River offense, meanwhile, came from hard-working 6-1 senior center Tom Gullikson, who netted 14 points around the basket despite being out-sized by four Thief River Falls starters.

Thief River Falls never trailed. The Prowlers had a 15-8 lead at the end of the first quarter, but back-to-back turnaround jumpers by Gullikson started the second quarter after a pair of Thief River Falls turnovers as the Skippers pulled within 15-12.

That prompted a Thief River Falls time-out. The Prowlers listened to head coach Tom Hunt, then promptly went on a 22-1 scoring spree that put the game away, taking that three-point edge and turning it into a 24-point, 37-13 cushion in a span of 3½ minutes. It was 44-21 at halftime, and 60-29 at the end of the third quarter.

"At times we played well," said Hunt. "The No. 1 thing was that the kids played hard. We had a nice run there in the second quarter. We made some nice passes, and got some turnovers off the press."

The press hurt the Skippers. Game-ending statistics showed Middle River with 22 turnovers and Thief River Falls not that far behind with 15. But it was an 18-8 difference when the Prowlers' starters were playing. The Skippers turned the ball over 15 times in the first half, five of them in the face of the press, and the Prowlers turned seven of the turnovers directly into points.

"Their big guys hurt us more than the press did," said Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We were so concerned about stopping the big guys, we got out of position on the press. Nelson just killed us in the first half."

Thief River Falls' size advantage produced a 47-27 rebound edge for the Prowlers. The Prowlers had 15 offensive rebounds; the Skippers had six. Thief River Falls wound up 27-for-70 from the field (39 per cent) as everybody played, and Middle River was 14-for-51 (27 per cent). The Prowlers were 16-for-23 at the free throw line, and the Skippers were 8-for-22, including misses on the front end of seven 1-and-1 opportunities.

Now 10-8, the Prowlers will be at Argyle Friday before finishing their regular season schedule Tuesday at home against Warren. Middle River ended the schedule at 6-14.

Prowlers Draw Lakers

Thief River Falls boys will be opening their 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA high school basketball tournament schedule at Detroit Lakes Tuesday, March 10.

Detroit Lakes is assured of a fourth place finish and Thief River Falls is assured of a fifth place finish in the five-team North Sub-Region 8AA regular season standings. The other three spots are still up for grabs between Moorhead, Fergus Falls, and Bemidji.

Post-season play starts March 10 with the No. 5-seeded team visiting the site of the No. 4 seed (Thief River Falls at Detroit Lakes). The winner joins the other three for the semifinal round Thursday, March 12, at the sites of the higher seeded team — No. 4 or No. 5 at No. 1, and No. 3 at No. 2. Championship game will be played Friday, March 20, at Concordia College in Moorhead.

Fergus Falls lost a 60-53 game to Moorhead Friday, creating a three-way battle for the top seed as the regular season schedule nears an end. Bemidji and Fergus Falls meet Friday. The Lumberjacks could probably take the top spot with a win, but would likely drop to third behind Moorhead and Fergus Falls with a loss.

Thief River Falls lost a 67-62 home court decision to Detroit Lakes back on Jan. 6. The Prowlers went 1-4 against North Sub-Region 8AA competition this winter, beating Bemidji 68-51, but losing to the Lakers, the Lumberjacks 67-64 in a recent rematch, Moorhead 69-45 and Fergus Falls 54-41.

Girls Set Pairings Today

Seeding positions for the 1987 North Sub-Region 8AA girls high school basketball tournament are scheduled to be determined today (Wednesday), although positions were pretty well locked up earlier.

Post-season play will start Tuesday with No. 5 Detroit Lakes at No. 4 Moorhead. Fergus Falls, by virtue of Friday's big 56-53 win over previously unbeaten Thief River Falls, will get the No. 1 seed, while Thief River Falls and Bemidji pick up the No. 2 and No. 3 spots, respectively.

That would produce Thursday, March 5, semifinals of either Detroit Lakes or Moorhead and Fergus Falls and Bemidji at Thief River Falls. Championship game will be played Saturday, March 7, at the site of the highest seeded semifinal winner.

Thief River Falls won two regular season meetings with Bemidji, posting a 45-40 victory here Jan. 5, then netting a come-from-behind 45-35 victory at Bemidji Feb. 3.

Section 8 High School Hockey Tournament . . .

TRF Draws Bemidji Friday

Two-time defending Section 8 champion Bemidji will be Thief River Falls' opponent Friday at 9 p.m. in the opening round quarterfinals of the 1987 Section 8 high school hockey tournament at the East Grand Forks Civic Center Arena.

Thief River Falls, Fergus Falls, East Grand Forks and Brainerd won Sub-Section 8 games Monday to join already-seeded Warroad, Bemidji, Crookston and Roseau in the tournament's quarterfinal field this weekend.

East Grand Forks handled Lake of the Woods 8-2 and Thief River Falls got by Hallock 4-2 in North Sub-Section 8 play Monday, while Fergus Falls edged Alexandria 3-2 in overtime and Brainerd upset Moorhead 4-2 in South Sub-Section 8 match-ups.

Coaches then voted to seed the sub-sectional survivors into the Section 8 field, giving the No. 5 spot to the Prowlers, No. 6 to the Otters, No. 7 to the Green Wave, and No. 8 to the Warriors.

Brainerd draws No. 1-seeded Warroad in the tournament opener Friday at 6:30 p.m., a battle of Warriors to be followed by the Bemidji-Thief River Falls contest.

Saturday's doubleheader will find East Grand Forks taking on No. 2-seeded Crookston at 6:30 p.m., while Fergus Falls goes against No. 3-seeded Roseau at 9 p.m.

Semifinals will be played Monday (Friday winners) and Tuesday (Saturday winners) at 7:30 p.m. Championship game will be played Friday, March 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls will take a 9-11-1 record into the tournament, while Bemidji is 12-8. The Lumberjacks beat the Prowlers twice during the 1986-87 regular season, winning by a 4-1 score at Bemidji Dec. 23, and winning 6-3 when they met again in Thief River Falls Jan. 24.

North Sub-Section 8 Hockey . . .

Prowlers Get By Bears 4-2

Thief River Falls passed its North Sub-Section 8 high school hockey playoff test Monday, but the Prowlers weren't graded very high on their performance as they struggled to a 4-2 victory over Hallock in front of a small Thief River Falls Sports Arena crows.

Upset-minded Hallock had a 1-1 tie going through two periods before Thief River Falls burst the Bears' bubble with a pair of goals in the first two minutes of the third period.

Hallock scored first when senior defenseman Mike Johnson stunned the crowd with an ice-hugging shot from the center red line that went through the pads of Thief River Falls goalie Shayne Anderson at 9:24 of the first period.

Thief River Falls tied it 1-1 on a power play goal at 13:42 as Bob Geatz put a rebound past goalie Shawn Stewart, who had to contend with a crowd in front of the Hallock net.

It remained deadlocked until the 55-second mark of the third period when the Prowlers made it 2-for-2 on the power play as Bill Dicken walked in on the right wing and put a wrist shot over Stewart.

Just 61 seconds later Scott Novak made it 3-1 with a tip-in, and it became 4-1 at 5:25 on a shorthanded goal when Novak centered the puck to Blair Lund in the slot, and he quickly converted the pass into a goal.

Novak, a senior who missed the Prowlers' final three regular season games because of a knee injury, returned to the line-up with a brief appearance at the end of the first period, then skated a regular shift at center the rest of the night, collecting four points in the process. Dicken and Lund both picked up three points.

Hallock cut the deficit to 4-2 at 9:13 of the third period with another long shot, this one by Jonathan Lindahl just as the junior defenseman crossed the blue line on the right side.

"It was not pretty," admitted Thief River Falls coach Wendell Grand. "The bright spot was our play on the power play. I thought we moved the puck pretty well on the power play — we weren't that far from going 4-for-4 with it. But other than that, a lot of things left a lot to be desired."

First period — Hallock, Mike Johnson (un.), 9:24; TRF, Bob Geatz (Scott Novak-Bill Dicken), 13:42.

Second period — none.

Third period — TRF, Dicken (Novak-Blair Lund), :55; TRF, Novak (John Dondelinger-Lund), 1:56; TRF, Lund (Dicken-Novak), 5:25; Hallock, Jonathan Lindahl (Mark Pearson-Kevin Klein), 9:13.

Goalie saves — TRF, Shayne Anderson 3-6-10, 19; Hallock, Shawn Stewart 12-14-6, 32.

Swimmers Edge Fargo South 88-84

A 1-2 finish in the final event — the 400-yard freestyle relay — gave Thief River Falls a dramatic come-from-behind 88-84 win over Fargo South Tuesday in a boys high school swimming meet in the Bruins' pool.

It was a match-up of teams with 8-2 dual meet records, and South took an 82-76 lead into final race of the 11-card event. But the Prowlers' Aaron Tofte, Todd Carlson, Brian Joppru and Ed Krystosek won in 3:52.44, while teammates Paul Glauque, Keith Olson, Dave Novak and Brian Schindler placed second in 3:56.56, well ahead of the Bruins' third place 4:04.05 clocking.

"Our depth was just enough to win," explained Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney, whose team took just three firsts during the meet. "Every point we scored was important."

In addition to the 400-yard freestyle relay victory, the Prowlers had individual winners in Glauque with a 2:18.43 in the 200-yard individual medley, and in Schindler with a 1:11.17 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

MCC Girls Finish At 18-1

Marshall County Central girls extended their winning streak to 18 games Monday with a regular season-ending 60-43 win over Argyle at Newfolden.

The Nordics, who lost a season-opening 43-40 decision to Class AA Thief River Falls, will carry an 18-1 record into the 1987 District 32A tournament this week.

Argyle stayed within 14-12 in the first quarter, but Marshall County Central opened up a 37-24 halftime advantage and carried a 48-30 lead into the fourth quarter.

Jodi Foss and Kari Boe scored 17 points apiece, and Natalie Ueland had 11 for the winners. It was an excellent performance from Boe, a 5-5 sophomore, according to Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde. Her shooting forced an Argyle defensive switch, which opened up things for the rest of the Nordics.

Ueland and Kelli Anderson both had 15 rebounds and played strong defense underneath the basket against leading Argyle scorer Heidi Kasprowicz, pointed out Mjelde, although Kasprowicz still came up with a team-high 13 points.

Marshall County Central was 22-for-70 from the field (31 per cent) and 16-for-29 at the free throw line (55 per cent), while posting a 42-36 rebound advantage. Argyle was 17-for-64 from the field (26 per cent) and 9-for-15 at the line (60 per cent). The Eagles had 23 turnovers; the Nordics had 13.

"I was really pleased with our overall effort," said Mjelde.

Annual Gun Show This Weekend At Armory In T.R.F.

Seventh annual Thief River Falls gun show will be conducted Saturday and Sunday at the national guard armory in Thief River Falls. Doors will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday.

"We expect to have about 115 tables of guns, coins and related items including a few antiques and collectibles," said Hardy Hodge, chairman of the show.

Dealers and hobbyists from Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota have reserved tables for the show, he said, and it is expected another good variety of interesting and unusual as well as popular guns and outdoor equipment will be on display and for sale.

"Of course we encourage anyone who has a gun or two or more to sell or trade to bring it in and show it around," Hodge said. "Part of the fun of the show is to see how items change hands. Many of the exhibitors prefer to go home with different guns than the ones they brought to the show."

But he emphasized that it isn't necessary to get in on the action to enjoy the show. "A lot of people just like to look," he said, "and there's nothing wrong with that. Most of the time if they look long enough they are going to find something they just can't do without."

A one-time admission is good for all day. Lunch and refreshments will be available.

Turnovers Cost Cardinals

Plummer played well, said Cardinals head coach Jim Baron, but not well enough to win a 64-58 game at Gary Monday in boys high school basketball action.

"Overall I was happy with the way we played," explained Baron. "We shot extremely well, but turnovers hurt us."

Plummer shot 63 per cent from the field by hitting 20 of 32 attempts and shot 91 per cent at the free throw line in making 20 of 22 tries, but the Cardinals also had 26 turnovers in dropping to 12-5 for the year.

Gary was 25-for-56 from the field (45 per cent) and 14-for-21 at the line (67 per cent).

Those free throw figures flip-flopped at halftime. Plummer was 15-for-16 at the line in the first half when the Cardinals took a 16-13 first quarter lead and went into halftime with a 31-31 tie. Plummer had a narrow 47-46 lead as the third quarter ended, but with Gary shooting 18 second half free throws the Bulldogs out-scored the Cardinals 18-11 in the fourth quarter for the win.

Shane Freyholtz had a game-high 26 points for the Cardinals. John Fisher added 18.

Plummer will host Oslo Friday, then close out its regular season at Oklee Tuesday.

Preston Stoltman muscled his way to 34 points Tuesday in leading Argyle to a 68-66 overtime win against Marshall County Central.

It was close all the way. Marshall County Central had a 20-17 first quarter lead and a 39-35 halftime edge. It was tied at 51-51 as the third quarter ended, and it was deadlocked at 65-65 when the Nordics' Danni Halvorson threw in a 30-foot shot at the buzzer to force overtime.

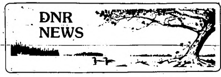
TWO MORE DEER FEEDERS were built this year by the Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association and are being stored by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area. Deer are not in need of food assistance this year, but the association has been building two feeders a year for the past two years to accumulate a supply for use when needed. Materials cost about $200 for each feeder and it is estimated 20 feeders could be used during a severe winter. Money for materials comes from the association's annual fund-raising banquet. The 1987 banquet will be conducted April 3. At present the Thief River Falls chapter has about 225 members.



Minnesota DNR officials caution travelers within the Beltrami Island State Forest to drive carefully. Several incidents have come to the attention of forestry officials, who have had reports of various types of two vehicle accidents.

Motorists traveling the roads must keep their mind open to traffic hazards unique to the area such as wild animals, ATV traffic and poor road conditions. Wild animals like bear, deer and moose can dart in front of a vehicle without warning. Even smaller animals such as skunks can mean a very unpleasant excursion. Although some times only minor damages may result, you may be in for a long walk. Depending on the season, you may encounter wheeled all-terrain vehicles or snowmobiles coming onto the road from a hidden trail.

Forest roads are not maintained as frequently or to the extent of county and township roads. The purpose and quality of maintenance varies with the individual road. These roads are often slippery or impassable, due to mud or snow. You could find the road unplowed, drifted in, very rough, washed out or it may host slow moving truck traffic.

You may find a minimum of road signs in your journey through the forest. There are no posted speed limit signs on forest roads. The traveler should travel at a speed so as to keep the vehicle under control and to avoid any of the above mentioned hazards. Signs that are present have been installed as a convenience to the traveler and not due to policy or law as with most roads and highways.

This summer will bring some reconstruction on these roads along with other improvements such as culvert replacement.

Enjoy your trip on our forest roads and remember to drive safely. If the traveler has any comments or questions about the forest roads, call any of the following field stations: Clear River 386-1671, Grygla 294-6115, Wannaska 425-7666, and Warroad 386-1304.

Fish, Wildlife Alliance

Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance is hosting its Legislative Banquet at 5:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 25, 1987 at the Prom Center in St. Paul. The Minnesota Legislature has been invited, along with representatives of sporting organizations from across the state.

"The $16.2 million appropriated during the 1986 legislative session for the Reinvest In Minnesota (RIM) program was a significant first step toward replenishing fish and wildlife habitat on Minnesota lands. The biggest legislative challenge in 1987 is to obtain long-term funding for RIM," said Alliance president Steve Akre.

First organized in 1985, the alliance is the legislative arm of Minnesota's hunting, fishing and trapping community. It includes statewide sporting associations, hundreds of individual Minnesota sportsmen and women, and many local clubs and chapters.

Prom Center is located at 1190 University Avenue in St. Paul. The reception begins at 5:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:00 p.m. Tickets are $30 and can be ordered by calling (612) 925-1923.

Survey Hunters, Trappers

Department of Natural Resources is asking the cooperation of 6,000 small game hunters and trappers who will be receiving questionnaires regarding their success last year.

Roger Holmes, chief of the Section of Wildlife, said information from the annual mail survey is essential for scientific wildlife management.

"The surveys provide an estimate of the harvest as well as information on hunting pressure," he explained. "This information is necessary to plan future hunting and trapping sessions."

Those surveyed are selected at random from among all license buyers. Holmes asked those who receive a questionnaire to fill it out to the best of their knowledge, and return it promptly. He said it is essential for people to return their questionnaires even if they didn't actually hunt or trap.

"Traditionally, hunters and trappers are enthusiastic about providing this information," he said. "They realize that this is their opportunity to assist in managing the wildlife resources of Minnesota. They are proud of their heritage and go out of their way to help."

Experimental Deer Feed Project

Area Wildlife Manager Rich Staffon and the staff of Jay Cooke State Park are using artificial feeding to lure deer away from areas where their concentrations have caused overbrowsing damage.

Feeding is projected to continue for three to four years, when it is hoped the deer's migration patterns will have adjusted so they naturally are attracted to the new feeding areas. In addition to artificial feeding, some shearing is being done to establish better natural food for the deer.

The public is requested to cooperate with park personnel and not feed deer in the campgrounds, River Inn or Oldenberg Point. Anyone wishing more information should call Jay Cooke State Park at (218) 384-4610.

— Outdoor News —

Minnesota Chapter of the Wildlife Society recently awarded the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance its 1986 Conservation Organization Award, recognizing contributions of the group in working for the passage of the RIM program.

"The Alliance epitomizes the adage, 'strength in numbers' since they provide a unified voice for Minnesota's hunting, fishing and trapping community," said Dan Svedarsky, Chariman of the Awards Committee.

The 1986 RIM legislation provided $16.1 million for fish and wildlife habitat improvement on state and selected marginal agricultural lands throughout Minnesota. Additionally, a $2.5 million public-private matching account was established for acquisition and development of critical habitat and another $2.5 million for special fish and wildlife management projects.

Minnesota Chapter of the Wildlife Society is the professional organization of Minnesota wildlife biologists, wildlife managers, researchers, and teachers dedicated to improving the fish, wildlife and plant resources of the state. Each year the group recognizes the top individual and organization who have made significant contributions to wildlife management in the state.

Pioneers Will Make State Meet Trip

already been decided.

Northland faced first-round foe Willmar during the regular season, dropping a 55-52 decision on the road back on Dec. 7. "It'll be close again," predicted Engelman. "Both teams realize they will have to play hard to win."

A year ago Northland reached the MCCC title game before losing an 84-81 overtime decision to Northwest Division rival University of Minnesota-Crookston. The Pioneers beat the Trojans 72-66 last Thursday in a regular season-ending showdown that sent Northland back to the state tournament while ending the UMC season.

At 12-11 the Pioneers do not have the kind of record that would draw a lot of pre-tournament hype, but Engelman says Northland has been in that position before and fared well in post-season play. Northland had back-to-back consolation titles before last year's runner-up finish.

"We're not going down there to lose," said Engelman. "We're going to try to bring back some hardware."

Northland's three-guard starting line-up includes sophomore Greg Campbell (Canton, OH), plus freshman Scott Groven (Goodridge) and Ray Davis (Inkster, MI) in the back court, along with 6-11 sophomore John Logan (East Grand Forks Sacred Heart) at center and 6-4, 235 pound freshman Anthony McCullough at forward. Campbell, the only player back from last year's team, leads the team in scoring with 16 points per game. McCullough has a 13.6 scoring average and Davis has an 11.2 figure. Campbell and McCullough were named to the MCCC All-Northwest Division team last week.

Those five don't have a lock on playing time, though. Engelman regularly uses 10-to-11 players each game, most of them making an appearance before the first half ends.

Latest MCCC poll announced Monday had Itasca in the familiar No. 1 spot, followed by No. 2 Fergus Falls, No. 3 Normandale, No. 4 Inver Hills and No. 5 Willmar.

MCCC women's state tournament will be conducted at the same time in Anoka. First round quarterfinals Thursday include Fergus Falls vs. Inver Hills at 1 p.m., Worthington vs. Vermilion at 3 p.m., University of Minnesota-Crookston vs. Minneapolis at 7 p.m., and Mesabi vs. Willmar at 9 p.m.

Thief River Falls THE TIMES

ODDLES OF NOODLES are just an example of bulk items available to North Country Cooperative members. Sylvia Rondorf, Bev Swanson and Dave Mugaas are shown above weighing and measuring the noodles into more manageable quantities. Workers wear hair nets to keep food sanitary while they "break-down" the bulk foods into smaller bags. The North Country Cooperative is the oldest food cooperative in this area, celebrating its eighth birthday next month.

Green Spaghetti, Anyone?

by Sharon LaCoursiere
Times Reporter

Anything from soup to nuts may describe the list of items available to North Country food cooperative members. The food co-op has been active in the Thief River Falls area for eight years, since its inception in March of 1979. It is the oldest food cooperative in the area.

The cooperative formed with an aim of combatting the rising price of food, but has remained active through the years because of the quality of the food, the availability of unusual food items, and the variety of foods, as well as the lower cost of buying in quantity.

Members stress that the cooperative does not take the place of the local grocery store in their household. Cooperative items are different in that they are organically grown and contain natural ingredients, with either less, or no, preservatives, sugar or salt. Considered a health food cooperative at the beginning, the co-op now offers a wide variety of natural foods with an eye toward special dietary demands and desires.

The co-op currently has 28 members, 10 of whom were among the original group. At one time the co-op has had up to 100 members. President Linda Ronchetti said the membership fluctuates as members "float in and out," depending on home and work situations.

All members must contribute time and effort in the co-op, since all work is performed by the group. Each is expected to put in a certain number of hours working at either ordering time or when actual delivery of food is made.

Buying in quantity means lots of bookkeeping work too, since the co-op deals with thousands of dollars and food by the truckload. Members do their shopping about three weeks ahead of delivery, since delivery of the food takes place once every eight weeks. Ordering also is done once every eight weeks, so members must plan well ahead in their home cupboard calculations.

Last month the members of the co-op purchased only $1,000 worth of food. The order before, the pre-Christmas order, was a whopping $4,000. But that latter figure may be deceiving, as the North Country food cooperative lost half of its members just after Christmas. Red Lake Falls area members decided to form their own separate cooperative so North Country membership was cut considerably in January.

Orders are delivered by truck at Valhall, about five miles southeast of town, chosen as a focal distribution point for the area. Members are ready and waiting when the truck comes in, scurrying to unload the food items into the hall. Inside the hall, more cooperation is seen in weighing and repackaging of bulk items. Both male and female members don aprons, gloves and hair nets to keep everything spick-and-span and sanitary as they weigh and measure the food and repackage it in smaller containers.

Members come and go, each one putting in his or her allotted work time and then being relieved by other workers. An atmosphere of happy cooperation is evident, but, as one worker quipped, "That's the cooperative spirit." Members of the cooperative are from different backgrounds and different areas, brought together by their interest in the co-op products. Many see one another only at the co-op meetings, so they make the most of their time together while they work, discussing families, friends and (what else?) food.

In trying to explain the intricacies of bulk buying and ordering, and the cooperative spirit, Bev Swanson gave me a good example. Instead of ordering six pounds of pecan halves, she had slipped down one notch on the order sheet, checking 60 pounds. When her order came, she found herself the surprised owner of 60 pounds of pecans, with a billing of $200. But she said other co-op members came to her rescue, helping her by buying up the excess pecans in no time.

Much of the food comes in bulk, such as 25-pound packages of peas and beans, cases of canned and bottled goods, pounds of spices, 15-pound blocks of cheese, five and 10-pound boxes of baking soda and cornstarch, gallon jugs of cooking oil and natural fruit juices, 25-pound bags of pancake and waffle mixes, 30-pound boxes of dried currants, dates and raisins; 35-pound tubs of peanut butter, almonds, brazil nuts, cashews, filberts, peanuts, pecans, pistachios and walnuts in 25 and 30-pound boxes and bags, and boxes filled with pasta products in more strange colors than you can imagine. Naturally, the larger the order, the lower the price, so at the co-op, bigger is better — but much more work, although a joy for a food lover to behold! (And aren't we all?)

Chocolate lovers may fantasize about 25-pound boxes of chocolate chips and 10-pound boxes of chocolate malt balls, peanuts, raisins or almonds, but members of the co-op can obtain them.

> "That's the cooperative spirit."

Some of the food items are uncommon in this area. Consider arrowroot powder, sea salt, carob candy, yogurt chips, black-eyed peas, garbanzo beans, lentils, barley coffee, cherry cider, pineapple-coconut juice, jasmine tea, kashi breakfast pilaf, halvah candy, tofu, tempeh, licorice bars, and pasta made from whole wheat, spinach, corn, sesame or assorted vegetables.

Can you imagine the aroma of spices like chamomile (remember, Peter Rabbit"), alfalfa leaf, catnip, comfrey, ginseng, fenugreek, fennel, juniper berries, lemon grass, golden seal, gotu kola, whole lavender flowers, seedless rosehips or whole rosebuds, whole savory, slippery elm bark powder, valerian root, or kelp powder?

Coordinator Linda Ronchetti stated that the co-op is especially helpful to families with special dietary needs, or families who prefer natural, organic foods with no preservatives. Many products contain no sugar or salt, and several products are geared toward the family that chooses an organic, whole grain, more natural diet.

People Are Looking Up!

Optimism is a joyous emotion. Yet, what a ridiculous phrase we coined for expressing it.

Things are looking up

Things can't look up! Only people can.

Across much of the world today there is a resurgence of religious interest. Some think it a reaction to materialism. Folks are discovering what one believes can be more important than what one has.

Others say it's the quest for values that endures in a changing world. Values to be cherished today—and passed on to future generations.

People are looking up! Finding in God's Truth the blessed Hope that inspires life here, and promises life hereafter. Optimism never had a more joyous foundation.

Spaghetti Noodles Can Be Green Too

Recently, however, the supplier of the co-op has been adding more modern products requested by today's consumers. Soda pops are available, containing no artificial colors or flavors and no sugar or preservatives; along with canned pizza sauce and spaghetti sauce, some salt-free; snacks like animal cookies, cheese puffs, corn chips, potato chips, and a variety of cookies, all with natural ingredients and sweetened with fruit juice; and even frozen pizza with no nitrates or additives and pot pies made with whole wheat flour. Convenience foods are offered in packaged mixes and dinners, Mexican food, canned soups and soup mixes, ready-to-eat cereals and pancake and waffle mixes.

Foods are ordered from Common Health Warehouse in Superior, WI, which serves a radius of 1,000 miles from Superior, distributing food to regional cooperatives in North Dakota, Michigan, Montana, Minnesota and Wisconsin. The organization publishes a newsletter every two months, telling of specials, price changes and new foods, giving recipes and printing newsy letters from food cooperatives throughout the service area. All members are presented with a copy of the newsletter when they pick up their food orders, along with a price list and order form for the next ordering session.

All ordering is done at a group meeting held at the Law Enforcement Center in Thief River Falls. The meeting resembles a large auction, with members coordinating their orders and also urging other members to order the items to facilitate a lower price on larger bulk amounts. There are minimum orders for items, so this necessitates some "bartering" among members so that an order can be placed for the special food item they want.

The next ordering session will be held March 12, with delivery and "break-down" of foodstuffs April 2 at Valhall.

Anyone wishing more information about the food co-op may feel free to contact the following members: Linda Ronchetti, coordinator, 681-3782; Bev Swanson, break-down chairman, 964-5679; Sylvia Rondorf, ordering chairman, 681-5510; Judy Mosloff, secretary, 681-7727; or Jim Dalager, treasurer, 681-4417. Barb Seeger is coordinator of the Red Lake Falls co-op and can be reached at 253-4471.

The co-op welcomes members from all around the area. Goodridge, Middle River, Warren, Grygla, St. Hilaire, Red Lake Falls and many other area towns have been represented in co-op membership over the years.

Aids Learning Necessary

Scarcely a television newscast, daily newspaper or family magazine is presented that does not include at least one story or article about the disease AIDS. The tendency of too many people has been to believe that it is something that does not concern them. Nothing could be further from the truth.

While we may feel isolated from the disease way up here in the corner of Minnesota, it is a false sense of security. Even if all of us are spared actual contracting of the disease (the Center for Disease Control believes some 1.5 million Americans now carry the AIDS virus but display no symptoms of it), the toll it will exact on a national basis is certain to affect us to a great degree.

Living in trembling fear of what may happen is not healthy, of course, but it is a good idea for people to be as aware as possible of the threat the disease presents and the best means to avoid it. Again that burden must fall heavily on our schools, if not in the curriculum then certainly through the services and facilities they can provide. We agree with the editorial by Sue Webber, editor of the New Hope-Golden Valley Post. The editorial follows:

Statistics on the 100 per cent fatal virus, presented in the Jan. 12 cover story of "U.S. News & World Report," are startling:

- So far it has infected 29,137 people in the U.S., and 16,481 of them have died.
- By 1991, 270,000 people will have been stricken, 179,000 will have died, and new cases involving heterosexuals will have multiplied 10-fold.
- Almost 4,000 babies have contracted the AIDS virus while still in their mothers' wombs.
- According to the Center for Disease Control, 1.5 million Americans now carry the AIDS virus but display no symptoms of it.
- David Baltimore, a microbiologist and Nobel laureate, is quoted in the magazine's cover story as saying that AIDS "will probably be the most important public health problem of the next decade and going into the next century . . . It threatens to undermine countries."

Mortimer B. Zuckerman, chairman and editor in chief of "U.S. News and World Report," followed up the magazine's recent story on AIDS with his own comments. "AIDS isn't just a gay disease or a drug users' disease. It's everybody's disease," he said, predicting that by 1991 AIDS will be "one of the worst epidemics in U.S. history.

Zuckerman also suggests that the U.S. government "has been too passive in the face of this terrible disease", and he advocates that President Ronald Reagan demonstrate his concern and leadership by forming a national commission on AIDS.

Many of the people now afflicted with AIDS are fighting for their rights to housing, schooling and jobs. And it is likely that future funding for AIDS research and education will come too late to help them.

Minnesota — frequently in the forefront on health issues — may well serve as a model for the rest of the nation in its handling of the AIDs crisis. First, Minnesota is one of only a few states that offers to contact previous sexual partners of people known to have become afflicted with AIDS. Second, the University of Minnesota Hospital has been granted federal funding to become the midwest's first treatment and research center for AIDS.

Third, an important educational program on AIDS — and perhaps the first of its kind to be presented in a Minnesota high school — is taking place this month at Robbinsdale Cooper High School under the sponsorship of the school's site council. Especially notable is the fact that Cooper's information program on AIDS was requested by the students themselves.

At 7:30 p.m. tonight at Cooper, Richard Danila, supervisor of the AIDS unit in the acute disease section of the Minnesota Department of Health, will present current information about the disease at a meeting which is open to the public. Cooper staff members received a similar briefing and the school's student body will hear Danila's presentation at two sesions.

We commend the students and staff at Cooper High School for offering an important public service to the school and the community; one which is likely to become a model for schools throughout the state.

Cheating Gets Tougher

"We realize there will always be those who are unwilling to do their share and comply voluntarily with the law. However, we intend to find them and collect what is due the state, including interest and penalities." This is the flat statement of John James, assistant commissioner of the Minnesota department of revenue who is in charge of the compliance program.

According to information received from the department, the new initiatives authorized by the legislature in 1986 are paying dividends in collection of tax revenue due the state. It's getting tougher for tax cheaters to get away with depriving the state of revenue due under the law, and that's good news for those who pay their share as the law requires.

There is nothing enjoyable about paying taxes — except the knowledge that the only way to avoid them legally is not to have any resources. But the only thing less distasteful than paying taxes is seeing someone else avoid them. The 30 initiatives now available to the department of revenue provide all kinds of angles for the tax collector to get his hands on money before the delinquent taxpayer.

The single most successful tool now available to the department allows it to take money directly from the bank accounts of tax delinquents. In 1986 the department collected more than $1.8 million from 3,800 tax delinquents in this way. There must be a lot of individual business owners who would like to have that kind of authority to collect past due accounts.

The department gets computer data from the Internal Revenue service that lists income from interest, dividends and commissions and other nonwage income, then matches it against its own list of tax delinquents. If the delinquent doesn't pay when contacted, the department has the amount withdrawn from the delinquent's bank account and sent to the department.

"This initiative has been very successful at collecting from high income delinquents," James said. We'll bet it has!

There are a number of other intrusions the law allows for the state to exact its tribute. The law restricts liquor wholesalers from selling to retailers who owe back taxes. It requires state tax liens to be paid when a home is either sold or refinanced and requires clearance by the state before operating licenses can be renewed to real estate agents, insurance agents, physicians, chiropractors, dentists and licensed accountants.

More people are also watching you with a view toward tax compliance. The department added 25 per cent more investigators, six collectors to its regional offices and filled 64 vacancies and 10 temporary positions in 1986. "We simply put more people on the problem and it's paying off," James said.

Also by using information provided by the IRS on federal audits, the state generated 378 more corporate tax audits and collected $1.3 million last year.

Tax cheating still remains a major problem. James said more than $183 million was owed at the end of 1986, even though the department collected more than $110 million during the year, not counting the initiatives.

It may seem devious for the revenue department to dip out of the individual's bank account, intercept state tax refunds, tie up the sale of a home, intimidate suppliers of liquor retailers, withhold required licenses to earn a living and the like. But we must be aware that the cheaters are cheating all of us in failing to pay their commitment to the state. Such means are apparently necessary to accomplish the desired goal.

We are a little apprehensive about the computer compilation of private information on individuals by the federal government and the apparent willingness to pass that information along to others. Privacy rights, as they relate to the government, are being eroded from the individual and the private business.

But we favor the effort to assure that everyone pays the state what is due under the law. There is no reason to believe that some should and others shouldn't.

Borrowed Nonsense

They say the economy in one part of the country is so bad that a man jumped off a bridge into the river. Another man jumped in after him. "No, no, leave me alone!" the first man cried. "I want to drown!" "I'm not trying to save you," the second said. "Quick, tell me, where were you working?"

Student: "Probably from very ugly sheep."

---

Coming home from a doctor's appointment, the man lamented that the physician said he would have to take big white pills for the rest of his life. "What's so bad about that?" his wife asked. "Lots of people have to take pills all their lives." "I know," the husband agreed, "but he only gave me six."

Deposit Law Not Needed

by Shawn Newland
Northwest Beverage, Inc.
Thief River Falls

I've been following with much concern the development of a Minnesota mandatory deposit law. Passage of such a measure would damage the state's economy, raise prices for virtually everyone and hurt my business. In reality it amounts to a tax increase.

All of us in Minnesota share a love for the beauty of our state and want to preserve it. But deposit legislation contributes little, if anything, toward reducing overall litter, while it does create a number of hardships.

Studies show that improperly disposed of beverage containers represent less than one-fifth of the total litter stream. And in Minnesota, successful voluntary recycling programs, including curbside recycling in the seven populous counties in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, already take care of much of this problem. But mandatory deposits jeopardize the success of voluntary recycling and damage the groups which derive income frm such efforts.

Mandatory deposits also create a rash of problems for a limited number of beverage wholesalers and retailers. Each can and bottle must be handled twice instead of once, thus dramatically increasing man hours. It may be true that deposit legislation creates low-paying, manual labor jobs. But very often such legislation causes higher-paid technically oriented jobs to be lost because retailers decide to handle a limited number of packaging options, forcing suppliers and manufacturers to cut back.

In addition, retailers and wholesalers have to find additional space to handle the empties and there are special inventory and packaging requirements.

Often these special storage areas for empties are breeding grounds for rodents and insects attracted by the sticky, smelly residue in unwashed beverage containers. Pest control costs go up while special precautions must be taken to ensure that the vermin — or the pesticides used to control them — don't spread to fresh food supplies.

All these factors add up to higher prices for consumers, far above just the amount of the deposit. We conservatively estimate this bill would result in $38.6 million annually in price increases for Minnesota beer drinkers. And that does not include the amount of the deposit!

These higher prices mean reduced sales. Beer sales have declined in every state where deposit legislation has been enacted. That means less revenue for the state from excise taxes and sales tax.

In fact, this bill could result in reduced revenue for Minnesota for several reasons. Experience shows that people are willing to drive across state borders to avoid the higher prices and inconvenience caused by deposit laws. And while they are there they spend money on other shopping and dining. This could prove especially damaging in Minnesota where a large percentage of the population lives within easy driving distance of the Wisconsin border.

Perhaps the most troubling aspect of the bill being supported by Governor Perpich is a provision for the state to escheat the unredeemed deposits. This money rightfully belongs to the wholesalers and has never belonged to the state. In all other states, this money is used by wholesalers to help offset the added expenses of operating under deposit legislation. Seizure of these funds raises serious legal questions and amounts to a de facto tax increase.

As you can see, the proposed mandatory deposit law would cause more problems than it would solve. I urge our legislators to take whatever steps are necessary to defeat this legislation.

Thanks for taking the time to consider these facts.

To The Editor:

Hats off to Dwight's Hartz Market who sponsors the trading post on KTRF each morning at 8:30 a.m. Also hats off to KKAQ who sponsors Buy and Sell at 12:30 p.m. They are great public service programs.

Boo, hiss to the Thief River Shopper for charging for their personal ads. We all know prices go up everywhere, but since the charges were instituted the purchase of personal ads has been severely curtailed. To me they made the Shopper worthwhile. Now I don't bother to read it anymore and I used to read it from cover to cover. That included commercial and personal ads both.

Please bring back the free ad. Some non-monetary things do pay off in the long run.

Sincerely,
-s- Dian Wilde

CAPITOL COMMENTARY

by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

The Farm Financial Data Collection Task Force was created to supply information to the legislature so accurate and good decisions can be made affecting rural communities. This past year it conducted an in-depth study of the financial condition of Minnesota's farm families, and its findings are grim.

Although one-quarter of Minnesota's full-time (not hobby) farmers had a net farm income of less than $2,700 last year, the average of all Minnesota farmers was $21,000. Including money from off-farm employment, the statewide average rises to $27,881. If you add, as income, money raised by selling some assets, the average rises to $30,900.

The task force sums it up this way: "Even with the additional income from the sale of assets, most farmers had difficulty 'making ends meet,' especially cash grain operators." In fact, on a statewide average, a farmer's income was only able to cover 63 per cent of his or her obligations.

Another measure of how we are doing is a farmer's "debt-to-asset ratio" — a comparison of what we owe to what we own. Last year the debt side jumped 18 per cent, not because we are trying to borrow ourselves out of debt, but because the value of our assets took a nosedive.

The task force report had some positive things to say about the legislature's attempts to ease the crisis. The interest buy-down program that the 1986 legislature designed is an effective means of providing cash flow relief to credit stressed farmers.

The task force indicated other programs will be helpful as well, such as farmer-lender mediation, the farm advocate program and the rural finance agency.

The task force also recognizes the limited resources of the state and predicted with gloom: "higher family income is needed, or ... a large exodus from farming is likely."

We all know that "higher family income" for farmers will only be possible after a complete change in federal farm policies.

In Washington, the President has submitted a federal budget that will spend $30 billion more than the U.S. government takes in. That $30 billion deficit is three times more than Minnesota's entire state budget for two years.

In Minnesota, the legislature is forbidden by law from spending more than it can raise. If state revenues are down or if we want to reduce taxes we have to cut spending.

The debate and disagreements, of course, come over where the cuts should be made. Balancing the state budget becomes an even more complicated task for the Minnesota legislature because by cutting state spending we can actually increase taxes.

That is true because about two-thirds of the state spending is returned to the local communities in the form of local aids and property tax relief. Twenty years ago 80 per cent of the money spent by township, county school boards came from your property taxes. Today, local units of government only have to raise — through property taxes — 20 per cent of their budgets. The rest is state spending.

If that doesn't cause enough problems, the legislature has a hard time finding out, with any accuracy, how much the state will collect. You have probably seen some of the recent reports where the state collected $93 million more in taxes that it expected during the last quarter of 1986 but we may lose $200 million because of federal budget cuts. The state may gain $700 million because of change in the federal tax code but the Minnesota treasury continues to lose large amounts of tax revenue due to the stagnant farm economy.

Some have suggested a "budget resolution" approach where the legislature would decide at the beginning of each two-year budget cycle the total amount of state spending. That's a little hard to do when the army of "experts" can't seem to tell us how much is available near the end of the two-year cycle.

Most legislators, county officials, school districts and township officers, as well as health care providers, farmers and almost everyone else in Minnesota will be keeping an ear tuned into the governor's budget proposal that he will give on January 26. It will take awhile to study its content but soon afterward we will see who will be affected.

I don't pretend to know all of the answers and I would welcome your help. What priorities should the state legislature establish in our tax and spending policies? And, if we must spend for specific programs where will the money come from. If we are going to cut taxes, not only which taxes should be cut first, but which programs should be cancelled to pay the bill? I would appreciate your comments. Feel free to contact my office at: 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call (612) 296-8660.

My initial reaction to the governor's proposed budget is that he is turning a difficult budget situation into an opportunity for dramatic changes — especially in our tax system. He's making some very bold moves toward more fairness and equity between Minnesota taxpayers. On the whole, it means that taxpayers with the same income and resources will have about the same tax liabilities.

Now, that's also going to upset a lot of people who have a vested interest in special tax treatment, but I figure that if it makes everybody mad, including big government, big business, big labor and big utilities, it must have some good proposals to consider.

It is, of course, too soon to make any conclusive judgments about spefic aspects of the governor's proposal and the tax and finance committees will be hearing a lot of discussion about it. Undoubtedly, there will be some areas to which we'll take exception and which we will want to modify.

In the meantime, the most postive aspects of the proposal are the governor's strong committments to education and to improving the economy in Greater Minnesota, as well as his far-reaching approach to tax reform. He appropriately addresses all four of our major sources of revenue.

On the corpoarte income tax side, currently 51 per cent of the corpoartions doing business in Minnesota, making millions of dollars in profits, are not paying any taxes. The governor's substantial revisions in corporate income taxes would mean that those corpoartions will finally be forced to pay their fair share.

With respect to personal income taxes, by proposing to conform to the federal tax changes — and thereby eliminating most exclusions and deductions — the system would be, simpler and more fair for everyone. The lowered tax rates, with a top-rate of eight per cent, would bring our tax rates down to less than one-half of what they were just a few years ago.

Cutting the number of property tax classifications from some 68 to five would make the system more understandable to the taxpayer. Other changes would give local officials more authority over tax credit and make them more accountable for their budget and property tax decisions.

Finally, the closing of some loopholes on the sales tax side would make our revenue system more stable during difficult economic times.

The governor's proposed budget is tough. It puts a lid on most areas of state spending, with the exception of important areas like education, job creation and medical assistance for the poor and elderly.

Overall, we definitely have our work cut out for us over the next few months. Many groups will have a special interest in this proposal and we'll probably hear from all of them — it's a full-employment bill for lobbyists.

I would appreciate your comments. Feel free to contact my office at 306 State Capitol Building, St. Paul, MN 55155 or call (612) 296-8660.

I am pleased to report this week about some initiatives to focus greater state attention on economic development activities in rural Minnesota. They are making their way through the 1987 session of the state legislature. Perhaps the most comprehensive of these is the Rural Development Act, otherwise known as S.F. 1.

This bill has three major parts. First, given the changes in our economy and changing international trade relations, it is becoming increasingly clear that Minnesota can no longer rely on agriculture, forestry and mining to support the rural economy. We must diversify our industry. Second, we need to take a community-based approach to economic development.

Finally, I believe we need to use the resources which are already available instad of trying to create something we do not have naturally. By far, the most important and readily available resource is our hardworking men and women of rural Minnesota who are ready and very willing to get these rural areas back on the road to recovery.

I'm excited about the rural development bill because it approaches our rural problems with three tried and true tools: training, research and development and financing.

The training tool would be utilized in a number of different ways if this bill is enacted. First, supplemental grants would be provided to displaced workers (including farmers) to allow them to get classroom training at any of our higher education institutions. The aim of further training would be to allow displaced workers to acquire the knowledge and skills for new jobs or professions. The state would also provide additional training resources directly to businesses to train their employees for new technologies or expanded production methods. This training would be designed to fit specifically with the additional training needs of the new or expanding businesses who participate.

The second tool, research and development, recognizes that our state needs to tap new ideas in rural industries. This R & D initiative would support new ideas, new processes and new technologies which hopefully would spur that diversification.

Finally, the legislation provides a good deal of financial support for local communities for roads, highways, sewage systems, water facilities and the like. I would also like to point out that there is a challenge grant program established under this new law. State money would be matched by private money. This money would be available for start up, expansion or gap financing needs of new or expanding businesses in rural areas. This would not be a program run from St. Paul; it would be administered locally.

As I indicated before, I am excited about this legislation and will provide updates as it progresses in the legislative process.

I invite you to call me at (612) 296-8660 or write to me in Room 306 Capitol, St. Paul, MN 55155 with concerns, questions or ideas you may have.

REPORT From The MINNESOTA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

by Rep. Wallace Sparby
District 1B

With the rising cost of money a few years ago, the state's major retail stores pressured the Republican-controlled legislature into raising the interest you have to pay on your credit cards in places like Dayton's and Sears. Despite the DFL's opposition, the Republicans allowed the state's largest retailers — those with annual sales of more than $25 million — to raise their interest rates to 18 per cent.

Since then, the cost of money to those stores has fallen dramatically, but most credit-card interest rates have remained at 18 per cent.

At the time, the prime interest rate was around 11 per cent, and the retailers were saying that they were losing money on their credit operations, despite record sales. Today those retailers are in the banking business, lending you money and collecting big bucks in interest.

They didn't need the 18 per cent when it was passed, and they certainly don't need it today. A bill we are considering in the House of Representatives would limit credit-card interest rates to within two per cent of the prime rate for the major retailers.

Limits would be set on the charge. Retailers wouldn't have to charge less than 10 per cent and they would be prohibited from charging more than 18 per cent, regardless of what the prime rate does. With the prime rate near 7.5 per cent, they'd still make money on their credit cards in today's money market.

Smaller retailers who have to pay more for their money and who don't have the same resources on which to extend credit would be allowed to charge interest rates that are four to six per cent above the prime rate.

Some of us are studying what other states are doing to control consumer interest. We've found that Arkansas, for example, limits all consumer credit rates to 10.5 per cent regardless of the prime rate and the state of Illinois has withdrawn its money from those banks that charge excessive rates for their credit cards. Believe me, the rates are coming down at many of those banks.

Credit card companies have come up with some aggressive marketing techniques using direct mail and television that push services many consumers don't fully understand until they're hooked into paying 20 to 26 per cent interest on huge loans. We need some control over this runaway situation.

Thief River Falls THE TIMES

VITA Offers Free Tax Help In TRF

by David Hill
Times Reporter

VITA bets you like its service. Actually V.I.T.A. doesn't stand for a new type of cereal but Volunteer Income Tax Assistance. Don't stop reading because the word "tax" was mentioned.

A group of all vonunteers has set up shop at the library in Thief River Falls and Northland community college recently to provide free income tax assistance. Yes that's right, I said volunteers. You might look askance at someone who volunteers their time to help other people do their tax forms and wonder if they are a brick short. But these volunteers take to heart their spirit of assistance.

Four volunteers, Ann Bredeson, Lois Brown, Charles Richards and Darrin Sumner, have been certified by the IRS to prepare and assist with preparation of all 1040 forms, schedules A, B, C and R, and the child care credit, as well as the earned income credit, which is available even to those who do not have to pay taxes.

"It's a nice service to have available in the community," said former Sheriff Charles Richards. Richards, who retired this year, enjoys helping others whenever he can.

For Darrin Sumner, an AVTI accounting student, it provides an excellent opportunity to find out more about a possible career choice as well as teach him more about taxation.

Lois Brown, a homemaker and mother, filling out tax forms is part of learning too. Brown has done her own taxes for 10 years and doesn't mind helping others with their taxes.

"It has been an interesting experience, which has shown us that the IRS is really human," said Sumner.

Ann Bredeson doesn't like to talk too much about it, but enjoys helping others too. Personal experience has shown her how valuable a little help can be. She learned how to do her own taxes as a result.

Before you rush off to get some free hlep, you should know that they cannot complete tax forms for the self-employed or anything involving farm income. The group also does not offer guarantees.

The four make no claims or guarantees like a certified-professional accountant or tax consultant. Brown pointed out they are not allowed to make any guarantees and are not held liable in case of a mistake. Brown said if they are faced with a problem they don't understand they refuse to work on it.

Each of the four members were trained by the IRS. They received three days of instruction in filing federal forms and a day course on the state form. Their only prerequisite to assisting others as volunteers is the successful completion of tests on the information they picked up during training.

The VITA program is aimed at low income, elderly, disabled and non-English-speaking families, but is open to everyone.

Anyone seeking their assistance should remember to bring their last year's tax form, 1099 interest and dividend forms, W-2 forms and anything else that would help especially if they plan to itemize deductions.

VITA has also been known as TCE (Tax Counseling for the Elderly), but their service is available to anyone.

The volunteers will be available from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Thursday at Northwest Regional library in Thief River Falls, and from 7 to 9 p.m. every other Monday, beginning February 9, in room 101 of the Thief River Falls AVTI.

VITA volunteers are available to meet with groups by special arrangement. For more information, contact Lois Brown at 681-8867.

V.I.T.A., Volunteer Income Tax Assistance, is a new group of volunteers that have set up shop at the library in Thief River Falls and Northland community college to provide free income tax assistance to anyone. Four volunteers that make up the group include: Ann Bredeson, Darrin Sumner, Lois Brown and Charles Richards.

Dessert Ideas

Cheese and Fruit

A dessert of cheese and fruit is superbly simple and nutritious. Americans often serve fruit and cheese with dry wine or coffee. The French serve cheese first with fresh, crusty French rolls, butter and dry wine, followed by fruit and the rest of the wine. In England the cheese is served with plain crackers, a sweet wine and fruit.

Whichever pattern you choose, for best flavor serve dessert cheeses at room temperature. Cover them with a glass dome or plastic wrap to contain their aroma until they are served. Almost any cheese will do. Dessert cheeses like Camembert or Port du Salut are good, but blue-vein cheeses, Cheddars or Monterey Jack are equally suitable. Try new cheeses as you discover them.

The fruit should be selected to complement the cheese. Grapes, pears and apples are classic choices. Pineapple and honeydew are remarkably compatible. Use seasonal fruits. In the winter add nuts in the shell and dry fruits. Try green grapes with Camembert, apples with Cheddar or Swiss, pineapple with Port du Salut or pears wtih blue cheese.

Fruit Desserts

Few desserts are as elegant as those made from fresh fruit. A stemmed glass of raspberries or a wedge of melon with a simple garnish is equal to the most impressive entree you might serve. Have fun during summer when so many fresh fruits are available. In winter, turn fresh or canned fruits into hot, crispy desserts.

Peaches, pears, bananas, apples, nectarines and avocados will darken after they are cut. To prepare these fruits in advance, toss the cut fruit in lemon, orange or grapefruit juice, or stir it into a sauce made with sour cream or yogurt. Sweeten the sauce with honey or brown sugar, if you like.

Ice Cream

Served plain, ice cream is an effortless dessert. With a little thought it becomes a special dessert like Cherries Jubilee, Baked Alaska or Peach Melba.

Take care of ice cream to preserve its flavor and creamy texture. Buy only what you can use in a month and never let it thaw or refreeze. After you have scooped what you need from the carton, press a sheet of plastic wrap against the surface of the ice cream to prevent the formation of icy frost.

Plan To Attend Heritage Open House Friday

Friday, February 20, has been set as the date for the public open house of the Heritage Community center located on Fourth street east of Horace avenue in Thief River Falls and operated by the Pennington county council on aging.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony is being planned for 10 a.m. with Mayor Bob Carlson and Morris Howick, president of the council on aging, to be among those involved in the event. Guided tours of the building and coffee and doughnuts will be available throughout the day.

Main event will be a dinner at 6:30 p.m., followed by a program. Tickets at $5 each are available to the public and are limited to the seating capacity of approximately 150 for the center. Tickets must be purchased in advance and are available at the center, Larson Music company and Ekeren Drug. No tickets will be sold at the door.

Musical groups headed by Duane Vatsaas and Eldon Moe will perform during the day and a dance will begin at 9 p.m. Other events are also being planned by various committees of the council on aging.

Regular senior meals program will be conducted on the day of the open house and persons planning to be served that day must make reservations a day in advance by calling 681-2793. The craft shop will be open during its usual hours of 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Heritage Community center was constructed with contributions from many organizations, business and professional groups and individuals in the community. It was first opened for serving of senior meals on January 4 and has had increasing use since that time, according to members of the council on aging. Sue Erickson, who supervises the senior meals program, is also the building director.

Taxes And Seniors

When taxpayers reach the age of 65, they become eligible for several special tax benefits. Knowing about these credits and other tax tips can help seniors avoid paying more taxes than necessary, according to the Minnesota Society of CPAs.

One very important source of income to most senior citizens is their Social Security benefits. But, just because they decide to retire and collect Social Security benefits does not mean that they have to stop working altogether. Senior citizens can continue to work and collect these benefits as long as they do not exceed income requirements. Persons between the age of 65 and 70 are allowed up to $7,800 of income in 1986 while still collecting full benefits. Those age 70 or above can work and earn as much as they want and still receive full benefits.

When seniors receive money from sources other than wages they might find that it will affect taxability of their Social Security benefits.

Single taxpayers 65 or older do not have to file a tax return unless their gross income is $4,640 or more in 1986. Married couples where one spouse is 65 or older do not have to file unless their joint gross income is $6,910 or more. If both spouses in a married couple are 65 or older, together they can earn up to $7,990 before they have to file a return. In any of these situations, taxpayers must file a return to receive any refunds. They must also file to qualify for any deductions or credits.

If you are 55 years or older and sold your home in 1986, you may avoid taxes on profits of up to $125,000. To qualify for this tax exclusion, not only must you or your spouse be 55 years or older at the time of sale, but you must elect to take this exclusion, which is only offered once in a lifetime, and have lived in the home as a principal residence for three out of the past five years.

There are other tax benefits available only to older Americans. If you are 65 or older, or if you are under 65 and totally disabled, you may qualify for a special tax credit. Known as the credit for the elderly or disabled, qualified individuals can reduce their tax bills depending on the amount of tax-free Social Security benefits they receive, their adjusted gross income and their filing status.

Along with these credits, seniors are eligible for an exemption simply based on their age. All taxpayers are entitled to take a personal exemption worth $1,080. However, taxpayers 65 and older on or before January 1, 1987 qualify for an additional exemption. Joint filers can take two additional exemptions if both are 65 or older.

Walking, A Healthy Alternative In TRF

Regular exercise is important to better health. That fact is known. However, when confronted with the hundreds of ways to go about better health and the often outrageous costs that accompany these activities, many will opt for a more comfortable activity in front of the television. But there is one simple way to improve health withouth taking on big challenges or reaching too deep into pocketbooks.

When exercise is mentioned, walking is seldom discussed, but the benefits can be just as rewarding. The more than 100 participants of the "Walk for the Health of It" program at the Thief River Falls sports arena, will support that conclusion.

Sponsored by Northwest Medical center, Falls clinic, division of Dakota Clinic Ltd., Northwest Radiology associates and the Ramsay Eye clinic, this program is open to walkers of all ages. It is the first of its kind in the area and has been designed and implemented to encourage people to walk on a regular basis as part of their exercise and fitness program.

The program is being held within the Thief River Falls sports arena so that anyone, no matter what their age, may undertake a walking exercise program no matter what the weather. It also doesn't require any special shoes or equipment so it costs less than most sports.

Many physicians are prescribing a walking program for their patients because of the cardiovascular benefits. Walking may also increase endurance and stamina, improve muscle tone, maintain joint flexibility and help control weight. Though designed for all ages, physicians will say that a more vigorous activity is probably better for younger people.

Studies have shown that people with positive health habits such as regular exercise have fewer health problems, feel better, are more productive and perhaps live longer.

Dr. Jim Langland of Falls clinic said walking can be a benefit to young and old. "But the benefits of exercise are available only to those who exercise regularly and maintain a program throughout their life," he said.

Anyone wishing to participate is encouraged to call the arena office if they have questions or watch local newspapers for announcements. A $1 registration fee can be paid at the arena office. Participants will be requested to log their own miles in a log book provided at the arena office. As part of the program, 10, 100 and 500 mile awards are presented as incentives.

Any questions may be directed to Gail Holland, public relations coordinator at Northwest Medical center, 681-4240, extension 210.

Northland Hospice Also Serves Area Seniors

Northland Community Hospice, a program for people in our community who face terminal illness, has worked directly with the elderly since its inception in 1983. Director Darla Twomey states, "In 1985, 80 per cent of the persons served by Hospice were over the age of 60. In 1986, 84 per cent of those served by Hospice were over 60. In addition, many of the invaluable Hospice volunteers are senior citizens." citizens."

In a brief explanation of Hospice, Darla said, "The primary function of Hospice is to coordinate and provide care for terminally-ill persons and to provide support to their families or loved ones. The premise of Hospice care is that terminally ill persons should have the option of living their remaining time to the fullest in the comfort of their own homes, if they and their families choose, with the support of professional and volunteer care-givers.

"The physical, psychological and spiritual comfort of the patient and his family should be primary concerns of the health and medical team, keeping in mind the main objective of relief from pain. Hospice attempts to affirm life and encourage the patient and his or her family to live life to the fullest until death."

Northland Community Hospice is a non-profit, community-based organization. This means that it is not affiliated with any other organization and receives its support directly from the community.

There is presently no charge for Hospice services. Director Darla Twomey is employed to organize the Hospice team, develop community involvement in the program, and coordinate volunteer services. R.N. Laurie Anderson is available to make initial assessments of patients and to supervise patient care.

There are about 35 trained Hospice volunteers serving Thief River Falls and surrounding communities. Volunteers attend an 18-hour training session before they may serve in the program. After training, they offer comfort and support to both the patient and the family, helping in a variety of ways. They also allow family members a break from the constant care of a loved one by taking over for brief periods of time.

Hospice care does not end with the death of a patient, but can continue on with the family for up to a year after the death. During this time, periodic visits and contacts are made with family members to help them cope with the grief process.

Darla stated, "Hospice will continue to offer services to the terminally ill and will serve the elderly in the area as long as the need exists."

MMA Task Force Reports MN Health Care In Trouble

Minnesota Medical Assciation (MMA) task force on rural health released a report, "Averting a Crisis in Rural Health Care," indicating that health care in rural Minnesota is in trouble particularly because of access difficulties to mental health services, increasing numbers of patients without health insurance, and a Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement system that restricts economic resources available to rural patients.

The MMA report states that although a statewide crisis doen not exist at this time many danger signs are revealed by a rural physician survey. Among them:

+ 31 per cent of the polled physicians report a decline in the use of preventive care such as well-baby exams;

+37 per cent of the physicians not a growing number of patients delaying needed treatment;

+46 per cent report an increase in the number of patients lacking basic health insurance (60 per cent in Northeast, Northwest and West Central Minnesota);

+ 68 per cent of the physicians have an increase in the number of Medical assistance patients (In Northeastern Minnesota 73 per cent of the physicians report an increase 40 per cent describe the increase as large);

+ 51 per cent of the physicians indicate a difficulty in accessing mental health services ranging from accessible with effort to practically inaccessible while 28 per cent an increase in the number of patients requiring mental health care;

Recommendations from the MMA on preventing a rural health care crisis, 25 in all, include: establishing a statewide coordinating office and hotline for mental health referrals; providing crisis intervention continuing medical education courses in mental health; conducting a study of small, rural hospitals by the MMA and the Minnesots Hospital Association to define specific problems; asking the legislature to investigate requiring a higher level of mental health coverage for third party payers;

Also, calling for a commission to study duplication and conflicts between the provision of public and private health services; developing a program for the provision of care to the uninsured; adjusting reimbursement to physicians who provide care to large numbers of Medical Assistance patients; reviewing Medicare reimbursement policies which short-change rural providers; requesting that the governor investigate ways to improve data collection and regional economic analysis to identify distressed areas and focusing the effort on those areas.

Dr. James Knapp, Detroit Lakes family physician and chairperson of the Task Force said, "The Minnesota Medical Association desires to work with Governor Perpich, the legislature, and the department of health and human services, local governments, provider organizations such as the Minnesota hospital association and community organizations like the Minnesota coalition on health to implement these recommendations."

Nursing Service Helps Deal With Health Problems

In 1986, 359 people age 65 and over benefited from the services provided by Inter-County nursing service. Of these, 153 people were 75-84 years old, and 104 were over 85 years. Inter-County Nursing was organized in 1969 and has been providing home health services to area residents ever since.

Registered nurses in Pennington and Red Lake counties are available to care for people in their own homes. Besides doing skilled nursing procedures, these nurses also help people arrange for other community services that may help them, such as chore services and meals-on-wheels. Home health aides work under the supervision of the nurses and are there to help people with personal cares if needed.

Two services were added in October, 1986, to help people even more. Now, through a cooperative arrangement with Northwest Medical center, physical therapy can be provided to people at home. "We expect that this will be real important to people who are not able to get all the physical therapy they need in the hospital because of all the new regulations," stated Susan Olson, nursing service director. Also, in anticipation of more and more people using the HMO for their health care, the Nursing Service has signed a home health care provider contract with HMO Minnesota. This means that home health care can also be a part of HMO health coverage.

It is important for people to remember that all home health care service is provided under the direct orders of each person's physician and according to the regulations set down by Medicare, the HMO or any other insurance. Mrs. Olson emphasizes the fact that, "Even if a person's needs do not meet Medicare or HMO guidelines, the agency can still work with people to help them get care."

Other ways that Inter-County Nursing continues to serve elderly residents in the area are by having blood pressure clinics at Skylite apartments, Riverside Terrace, and now the new Heritage center. The nurses always take as much time as possible with each individual to help them learn about their blood pressure and some things they can do in their daily living to maintain controlled blood pressure. In connection with the blood pressure clinics, people also have the opportunity to have their feet soaked and nails trimmed by the nurses. This is a real advantage to those who may have difficulty doing this for themselves.

"We offer our congratulations to the senior citizens of Thief River Falls upon completion of the Heritage center," states Mrs. Olson. "We believe that it will be a real asset in providing and coordinating services of all kinds to people."

BETTY WESTBERG will present a special program on the Hjemkomst ship, 2 p.m. February 19 in the library meeting room of the Thief River Falls public library. Westberg, a Warren resident, will present a special program describing the historic trip of the Hjemkomst from America to Norway in 1982. Westberg is the sister-in-law of the late Bob Asp who built the Hjemkomst.

"Hjemkomst" To Be Presented At TRF Library

Thief River Falls public library announces it will have a special program presented by Betty Westberg on the Hjemkomst ship on Thursday, February 19 at 2 p.m. in the library meeting room. This program is presented free of charge and the public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The Hjemkomst is the ship that was built by the late Bob Asp which sailed to Norway from Duluth. Since Bob Asp was Mrs. Westberg's brother-in-law, she and her husband Roy have been involved with the Hjemkomst in many ways. They assisted in the launching and sailing of the Hjemkomst on Lake Superior at Duluth. Later they went on to Bergen, Norway, where they watched an impressive ceremony when the Hjemkomst arrived on July 19, 1982.

The late Bob Asp started building the ship in 1972. He named it "Hjemkomst" as this means "coming home" in Norwegian. The Hjemkomst was christened July 27, 1980 at Duluth. Bob Asp died from leukemia December 27, 1980, before his ship sailed to Norway. His family decided to carry on his dream. Several of his children were members of the crew when the Hjemkomst sailed on May 6, 1982. The Hjemkomst Viking ship is now home at the recently built Heritage-Hjemkomst Interpretive center at Moorhead, Minnesota.

Mrs. Westberg, who is from Warren, has given many presentations on the Hjemkomst and as a family member has intimate knowledge of her subject. The library invites one and all to attend this delightful presentation. For more information, please contact the Thief River Falls library.

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

by Gretchen Beito

DEAR OLD GOLDEN RULE DAYS

When we got inside the one-room school, my mother had tears in her eyes. "It is so much like the one I remember," she exclaimed.

We were in a large, airy room with windows lining two walls. We saw straight rows of desks with each top attached to the chair in front; a portrait of George Washington by Gilbert Stuart; a large map case with a colorful map pulled down; a heavy crock with a spigot at the bottom. Indeed, each detail of an old school room had been lovingly re-created in Pioneer Village here in River City.

So when The Times asked me to write a special column for the Senior Citizen issue, I thought back to that building in Pioneer Village. The one-room school has been the foundation for many lives well-lived. Many people share memories of such a place; however, even more cannot imagine what it was like.

And I have always been curious about it. Although the day of the one-room school was past when I was studying at the University of Minnesota, it was held up to us as a model to emulate in our future one-grade classrooms.

I decided to write about what it was like to teach in a one-room school. I called on Olga Engevik.

In the early 1930s Olga Bordson Engevik taught at West Valley School near Newfolden. Later she was hired to teach east of Gatzke at Wildwood School. I asked Olga how her class of twenty students, ages six to sixteen, was organized.

"The first day the children would come early to find a desk that would fit them. That was no easy task because of the wide range of heights of children with an age range of ten years.

"Grades one through eight were taught in my room for eight months a year, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. I taught by grades, and one grade at a time would come up for 10 to 15 minutes with me. This meant that only one to three children would work with me at one time. Then they would go back to their seats and work alone. Children who finished their work early helped those who needed it. Learning was also accomplished by listening to other grades recite their lessons.

"Language included parts of speech, grammar. My students did know English, although some also understood Norwegian and Swedish too because those languages were spoken at home.

"We had spelling every day, which was done by grades. Occasionally we would have a spell-down.

"Everyone memorized a poem each month. They would recite them to the class. 'My Captain, My Captain' and 'My Shadow' ('I have a Little Shadow that goes in and out with me') were favorites.

"In mathematics, I would put problems on the blackboard where I could see when students needed help. Older children would help the younger by drilling them on things like the multiplication facts and tables.

"Geography was different for each grade — the state set out a curriculum. Since each grade had different subjects, I had many kinds of papers to correct each week.

"Science would often be included in reading assignments. Upper grades had a science book. History was a separate subject for older children.

"All ages participated in the same music and art. We would sing a patriotic song in opening exercises after the Pledge of Allegiance.

"Art was once a week — on Fridays. We would do freehand drawing, and make seasonal decorations such as May baskets and Halloween masks from construction paper.

"Once a week we had a special class to teach cursive writing to everyone except for the youngest children.

"Recess was fifteen minutes morning and afternoon. Children played outdoors together. They enjoyed games like Fox and Geese and softball.

"Report cards came out every month. Letter grades were given for all ages. Younger children would get a Good or Very Good.

"We used the state curriculum. After school was out in the spring, state board exams were given to eighth grade pupils.

"They could review old state board exams. Tests were Basic Skills. There was one test for geography, another for grammar, for history, arithmetic and spelling.

"When they passed those they received a certificate and were deemed ready for high school. Most passed. If they did not, they could come half a day the next year and take classes they had failed, such as math or language. Few went on to high school. That was because they would have to move and pay room and board in town.

"The teacher was it. The only other educator that came to the room was the county superintendent. He would arrive unannounced once in the spring and another time in the fall to observe teacher and class for an hour or so.

"Parents of students furnished wood for the stove. They got together to take it out of the woods and to haul it in to the school.

"I did my own janitor work. I would sweep the floor. One of the children would stay after school to clean blackboards.

"I built the fire in the stove, and students helped keep it going. The stove had a circular cover with a jacket around it. Heat came up from the top. It would be cool winter mornings, and all would stand around the stove to keep warm. Children would carry in wood at recess time.

"An older man lived where I boarded, and he would make kindling for me, and I'd carry that to school.

"Children helped with chores. Drinking water was carried from a nearby home — that could be one-fourth to half a mile away.

"Most walked to school. They were bundled up against the cold. The girls wore dresses with wool socks, and everyone wore long underwear. Wool scarves and caps were hand-knit. Buckle overshoes were worn by everyone. At Gatzke, one father took his children to school in a caboose-like sleigh with a heater. It was horse-drawn.

"I too walked a mile to school, and if someone were hauling wood to school that day, I'd get a ride on the sleigh. The place I stayed was a half mile from the road that was plowed. The snow was deep, even on the road."

I asked Olga what advantage the one-room school had. She said she felt cooperation among students was its most outstanding quality:

"Older children helped the younger ones along.

"Everyone would do things together. There was a helpful attitude, a family feeling. The whole school was family-centered rather than individual-centered. All would play together on the playground, rather than by age group.

"One nice thing was that children of the same family would be in the same room. They would bring lunch buckets; sometimes they all had their lunches in the same bucket. If one family forgot their lunch, others would share.

"The biggest disadvantage was the outdoor bathroom. Pupils would need permission to leave. However, most waited until recess in the morning and in afternoon. They went outside no matter what the weather. Most had to go to the bathroom anyway."

This sounded like a tremendous amount of work, yet pay was low: Olga got 50-60 dollars a month, and would pay 15-20 dollars per month for board and room at a nearby home.

She said the school board would write out orders, and she would have to get the order, and go to the treasurer's home to get the check. Her education was one year of Teacher Training in Moorhead after High School in Alvarado.

Olga quit teaching when she married. But later when the family was having a hard time making it farming, she went back to teaching, an occupation she loved. When her youngest child, Kathy, entered high school, Olga began to teach seventh grade in the Grygla school. At the same time she went to Bemidji college summer sessions and to off-campus classes at Roseau to complete her four-year degree.

Today her daughter continues the family tradition. Marjorie Espe is in her eighteenth year of teaching at Middle River.

I became so interested in the one-room school that I went to a history book to see how Olga's story fit in with the national picture.

As it happens, Olga Engevik's description is the same as that of the typical one-room rural teacher.

The book said that the rural school and its young teacher played no small role in American social history, exercising an influence over a large proportion of the population. In 1934, 57.6 per cent of all American public schools were still one-room, a decline of thirty per cent from twenty years earlier.

By the time that Olga taught, this type of school was looked on as a "problem" to be solved, a progress usually connected to reforming the young lady schoolteacher. Untrained teachers and one-room grouping of children did not fit the industrial model. Teachers themselves were apt to support this criticism, and to believe that teachers should improve themselves with professional training.

Today we are told that the industrial model is of the past and schools must change to meet the challenge of the information age. It is interesting to read that today U.S. educators go to Japan to learn from their success. In Japan an elementary classroom is divided into "han," small groups of five to six each. Tasks are assigned to "han" rather than to individuals. The "han" leader — who is called a "hancho" — is like a kid teacher who helps bring up the slow students. The system works, the Japanese say, because it takes the pressure off the individual.

Japan's classrooms of 1987 seem to be a little like Olga's one-room Minnesota school of 1932.

KERMIT GENEREUX, local president of the Jaycees, presented a check for $200 to Falls-Delivered Meals, represented by Quentin Jones. Jones said practically all the clubs in Thief River Falls assist with either delivering meals or donations or both. The organization began its service sometime in the mid-seventies and since that time delivered meals to individuals who cannot go out or make their own meals. A person who wishes to participate in this service must have a recommendation from a doctor. Today the organization delivers an average of 30 meals per day throughout the year. Jones said volunteers are always needed and anybody wanting to help or anybody who would like to have meals delivered can contact Quentin Jones at 681-1778. The organization also meets 7 p.m. the first Thursday of every month in the meeting room of the Thief River Falls public library.

Senior Lifestyle Alternative — CCRCs

America's retirement age citizens are getting an extra lease on life. Studies show that they are living longer, healthier lives. By the year 2030, it is expected that the number of those age sixty-five and over will double to more than fifty million.

All this good news, however, also poses a dilemma: how and where to best live out these remaining years? Many senior citizens cannot live alone, yet they may not be so dependent as to require full time nursing home care. In the last decade, an increasing number of the elderly have found an alternative in Continuing Care Retirement Communities, or CCRCs. For an average entry fee of $35,000, plus monthly periodic fees, these facilities provide residents with a comfortable apartment in an attractive setting, meals, and, if necessary, medical attention.

At present, some 90,000 people live in these retirement communities. Jarvis Farley, a resident of North Hill, a CCRC in Needham, Massachusetts, points out some of the advantages. "One attractive option for my wife and I was the visiting home service," he says. "With a little help in dressing and other basic functions a person can often stay out of a nursing home and on their own indefinitely." Besides medical services, Farley says he and his wife take advantage of North Hill's active social life that includes trips to the symphony, opera, and the movies.

While CCRC subscribers like Farley are happy with their decision, others have experienced the dark side of this new retirement "dream." Since the mid-seventies, about fifty CCRCs have declared bankruptcy or experienced severe financial difficulties. When these facilities fail, residents are often left without legal recourse to recover their investment.

Apart from a small percentage of illegitimate operators who have bilked unsuspecting citizens, most CCRC horror stories are the product of naivete or miscalculation on the part of the life care providers. Overestimating demand for their product, and underestimating month-to-month operating expenses, including the high cost of nursing services, has contributed to the demise of many facilities. Inadequate regulation of lifecare developments is also a problem; presently, just eleven states have laws governing CCRCs. Significantly, only seven states require CCRCs to maintain reserves to cover financial emergencies.

Despite this sobering assessment, many CCRCs nationwide are legitimate, financially sound institutions. Knowing what qualities to look for in a facility, in addition to consulting with a lawyer before commiting, is the best insurance against making a costly mistake.

Another important consideration is whether the CCRC had employed a professional actuary in its long range financial planning. Actuaries project the effect of life events — birth, marriage, sickness, accidents, fire, liability — on insurance and other benefit plans. Since CCRCs are based on the risk sharing principles of commercial insurance, actuarial review is indispensible.

Barbara Snyder, a spokesperson for the American Academy of Actuaries in Washington, D.C., advises CCRC candidates to ask for a report from an actuary attesting to the solvency of the institution. "Financial planners are fine for calculating the general expenses of a CCRC," she notes, "but they lack experience in calculating the demand for nursing home services, which is the area where many CCRCs go wrong. This is the type of thing that only an actuary can effectively analyze."

How To Eat Alone . . . And Like It

Things to Do While Eating

Use your eating-alone time to develop your sense of taste and awareness of food. Savor every bite! You'll be eating less and enjoying it more.

Make plans for the future. In particular, make plans for things you want to do after you eat, even if it is just to go shopping, work on a project, attend a lecture or see a movie. Brainstorm a problem, plan your vacation or just work out tomorrow's schedule.

Watch television. Plan your cooking and eating time to coincide with favorite shows.

Read the paper, a book, the mail, a catalog or the latest magazine. Do the crossword puzzle.

Telephone a single friend for a little mutual dinnertime conversation.

Listen to language records or favorite music.

Plan Some Special Times

If there is one day or evening of the week that seems too quiet, always have something planned for that time such as:

Join a club or take a class and get together with some of the others for dinner before or after.

Buy season tickets with a friend to a musical, theatrical or sports event for that evening. Or get two series tickets and invite different friends.

Start a bridge or poker group.

Plan some self-improvement nights — fix up your wardrobe or do some personal grooming projects.

If you're bothered by loneliness during a particular time of the year, pick that time to take a cruise, go to a spa or take a tour with a group. Or use the time to catch up on all your entertaining. Have dinner guests or invite friends from out-of-town for the weekend.

Another Solution: Don't Eat Alone

Invite another single person to dinner. Maybe you can work out a regular exchange.

Allow some couple an evening alone together by inviting their children or live-in relative for dinner.

Join a club that has an eating facility and eat there occasionally.

Find a good local coffeeshop and eat there enough to get to know the people.

Develop a list of restaurants you'd like to try. Know what dishes you would like to order before you go. Go to dinner alone and learn all you can.

Cooking Small Can Be Fun

"Dinner for Two" evokes an image of flickering candlelight, soft music, sparkling crystal and intimate conversation. Unfortunately, the fantasy often lasts just long enough to empty the food budget and fill up the refrigerator with aging produce, off-flavored cream and untold containers of leftovers. Well, don't let that fantasy go. Let's turn on the lights and look at the pros and cons of cooking for 1 or 2.

ADVANTAGES

— You have more time to prepare special recipes and add extra touches to your meals. "Wait a minute," you say, "I'm a very busy person and I have only 24 hours in a day like anyone else." But time is so relative. If you had to cook for four people in the 30 to 60 minutes you allow for meal preparation, you'd have to settle for streamlined menus. When you're cooking for just one or two, you have time to work through a new recipe, remove the choke from an artichoke or give special attention to the table setting. When two are cooking together, the possibilities are doubled.

— It's easier to afford more expensive ingredients. Government reports claim single people and couples pay more per person for food than families. But the very fact you are shopping for only one or two means food takes a much smaller bite out of your total budget. So, if a basket of strawberries in January or an occasional lobster tail makes you happy, it is a luxury you can afford.

— You have more freedom to experiment. Without the special dietary requirements of a whole family to consider, you can bring home some unknown taste experience or an exotic new recipe and have a good chance it will be accepted. If you miss, it's no disaster. At the very worst you might have to throw away one or two servings of whatever it was.

— You can eat what you want when you want. With fewer schedules to accommodate, you can adjust the size, timing and content of your meals to suit yourself. You can go on a special diet, gorge on a favorite food, or skip a meal entirely.

— Cooking becomes a relaxing emotional release and a creative experience. After work, let your kitchen be a retreat where your creative juices can flow. There are no committee compromises, no executive vetoes, and not a single "I told you so." Not only that, cooking is the only job I know where the threat of having to eat your mistakes is no threat at all.

DISADVANTAGES

— Leftovers, spoilage and waste. These problems are all part of the same cycle. When we buy or cook more food than we can use, part of it stays around the refrigerator long enough to spoil and become waste. The alternative is to eat the over-supply — which leads to...

— Monotony. Monotony is eating the same casserole every night until the last mouthful is consumed, so it won't go to waste. Monotony is serving steak every night because at least it all gets eaten. It's easy to fall into a dull eating routine. It's hard to break the pattern because...

— Few foods are packaged for one or two people. The food industry has begun to recognize and cater to smaller families, so our choices are improving. But even then...

BEEF STEW

VALLEY HOME king and queen for Valentine's day this year were Bennie Johnson, 92, and Mary Strom, 98. They will compete for the title of area nursing home king and queen this fall. Mary has lived at Valley Home since January of 1985 while Bennie has been a resident since October of 1986. Bennie's sister and sister-in-law are also residents there. The special Valentine's program at which the king and queen were honored was conducted on Thursday.

BEEF STROGANOFF

1 (½ pound) boneless sirloin, loin or tenderloin steak
1 tablespoon oil
1 to 2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup minced onion or 2 tablespoons minced shallots
½ cup sliced fresh mushrooms
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup beef stock
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon salt pepper to taste
dash ground red pepper
⅓ cup dairy sour cream, room temperature buttered noodles or steamed rice
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Cut steak into ½ by 2 inch strips, ¼ inch thick. Heat 1 tablespoon oil in a medium skillet over medium high heat. Dry all surface moisture from steak strips with paper towels.

Quickly fry in hot oil on both sides until lightly browned. Place on a plate. Reduce heat to medium low and add 1 tablespoon butter to skillet.

Saute onion or shallots and mushrooms until translucent and tender. Place on plate with steak, leaving as much butter in skillet as possible.

Add butter, if necessary, to make about 1 tablespoon. Blend in flour. Cook until frothy. Blend in beef stock, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper to taste and red pepper. Simmer and stir until thickened and smooth. Add beef, onions or shallots and mushrooms to sauce and heat through.

Remove from heat and blend in sour cream all at once. Warm to serving temperature. Pour over noodles or rice. Garnish with minced parsley. Serves 2.

Up until 1830 when anyone purchased a bar of soap, the grocer simply hacked off a chunk from a large block.

What Is A Grandmother?

A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other peoples little boys and girls. A grandfather is a man grandmother. He goes for walks with boys and they talk about fishing and tractors and things like that.

Grandmothers don't have to do anything except to be there. They're old so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the "pretend horse" is and have lots of dimes ready. Or, if they take us for walks, they should go slow past things like pretty leaves and caterpillars. They should never say, "hurry up!"

Usually they are fat, but not too fat to tie shoes. They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't typewrite or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like, "why dogs hate cats?" and "how come God isn't married?" They don't talk baby talk like visitors do because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or try to read the same story again.

Everyone should try to have one, expecially if you don't have television because grandmas are the only grownups who got time.

ED DELAP explains the steps and movements in square dancing to new arrivals to square dancing. Last Monday night was the first session for square dancing at the recently opened Heritage community center. Pictured listening to Ed DeLap are Owen and Madeline Scramstad. Square dancing is just one of the many activities at the Heritage community center and just one of the many organized activities available to seniors in the community.

MOM'S VEGETABLE SOUP

1 pork bone (a ham hock is great, but a pork chop bone will do)
salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons bacon fat (if using pork chop bone)
2 large very ripe tomatoes
½ cup fresh lima beans
½ cup green peas
½ cup yellow squash
½ cup fresh corn
1 cup okra, sliced crosswise
1 clove garlic, grated
1 bay leaf

If you're using a pork chop bone, salt it well and brown lightly in the bacon fat. Discard the fat. If you're using a ham hock, just put everything in the pot and simmer gently until some juice begins to form. Stir only to prevent sticking. Taste occasionally for salt and pepper and doneness. Serve this with hot corn bread, a big slice of sharp cheddar cheese, and a glass of buttermilk on a crisp fall day. Serves 8.

One serving (⅛ of total) contains 10 grams carbohydrate, 3 grams protein, 2 grams fat and 70 calories.

CHICKEN LITTLE

1 broiling or frying chicken, cut in serving pieces
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon oil
juice of one-half lemon
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon dried savory
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
1 clove garlic (optional)
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium green pepper, cut in strips
¼ pound mushrooms (optional)

Sprinkle chicken with salt, pepper and paprika. Brown in skillet in the oil for 20 minutes, starting with skin side down. Add lemon juice, water, herbs and garlic. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Add vegetables, cover and cook 10 minutes longer, or until chicken is tender. Serves 4.

One serving (3 ounces of chicken plus ¼ of the vegetables, including mushrooms) contains 6 grams carbohydrate, 23 grams protein, 12 grams fat and 223 calories. (Remove the bones of the chicken before weighing. A thigh or drumstick of a 3-pound chicken will usually contain about 1½ ounces of meat.)

Shopping For One Or Two People

+ Keep a pad and pencil in the kitchen to note food items you're about to run out of. Nothing is more aggravating than going back to the store for that one item you knew you needed all along.

+ Before you shop, take a quick survey of the pantry, refrigerator and freezer. Note anything you need to use with leftover perishable foods. Make sure you have plenty of your basic stock foods. Generally note what food items you have so you can avoid buying duplicates.

+ Select one food store for most of your grocery shopping. Unless you have unlimited time and cheap transportation, select a convenient store with the services, prices and the quality and variety of food you like. When shopping for just one or two, it's hard to justify standing in several check-out lines to save a few cents.

My favorite services are a meat counter where I can buy one-quarter pound of shrimp or two boned chicken breasts, and a fresh bakery where I can buy two French pastries, six cookies and one cheese Danish.

+ Shop at off-peak hours when you're not hungry. It seems easiest to shop on the way home from work, but that's when markets are most crowded and you're probably famished. Hungry people often buy more on impulse than people who have eaten.

As an alternative, keep an ice chest in you car and shop at noon, picking up a bag of ice to keep perishables cold. Or stop for a bite of dinner after work, run a few errands and then shop after the rush hour. Weekend mornings or evenings are better for many people.

+ Resist the temptation to buy in quantity. Even with unlimited storage space, quantity buying for one or two people is rarely an advantage. Supplies aren't used fast enough and many items aren't as nonperishable as we'd like to think.

It's smart to buy economy sizes of truly nonperishable things or products you use all the time. A large roll of aluminum foil occupies about the same space as a small roll and costs less per foot. If you eat corn flakes every morning, buy the biggest box you can accommodate.

+ Buy small sizes of produce items and condiments. If you buy small tomatoes, onions and oranges, you can avoid a lot of half pieces in your refrigerator. A small tomato will be consumed in one salad, and a small onion will easily be used in one or two recipes. Small sizes are often less expensive and frequently better quality.

You may have to pay a little extra for small containers of condiments, but you'll save by avoiding the waste that comes from throwing out bad food — or worse yet, eating it!

+ Buy only very fresh, undamaged food products. Avoid foods that are already overripe or possibly deteriorated. Don't buy canned or packaged goods that are even slightly damaged. Ice cream in misshapen containers or frozen peas that don't rattle in the package indicate these products may have been thawed and refrozen. One exception: day-old baked goods can be a bargain if you use them immediately or freeze them.

+ Don't go overboard for bargains on perishable foods. Buy produce only in the amount you can use. This is one place you don't pay more for small quantities.

+ Pick up your perishable foods last and rush them home. Plan your route through the market. Pick up produce, deli, dairy and meat products after non-food and packaged items. Add frozen foods last. Go straight home. An hour in the trunk of the car on a hot day can really shorten the life of a quart of milk or a bunch of watercress. Wrap your perishable foods for storage as you unload the grocery bags.

SENIOR CRAFT SHOP, sponsored by Inter-county community council of Oklee, is now located in the Heritage community center. Crafts donated by a large number of senior citizens include afghans, wood carvings, pictures, doilies, stuffed animals, log cabins, picture albums and many more. Each item is hand crafted. Friendly and courteous assistance is provided at the shop by (from left) Bernice Hultgren, volunteer helper; Laura Tiede, shop manager and bus coordinator for Tri-Valley bus service; and Lorine Baumeister, sales. Laura Tiede is also a volunteer for Valley Chore service out of Crookston. The service is provided to seniors at a nominal cost. It is available for seniors who need help with chores they may no longer be able to do themselves such as shopping, laundry, cleaning and other chores about the house or apartment. For more information about the chore service, the craft shop or Tri-Valley bus service give Laura a ring at the craft shop located in the new Heritage community center.

BANANA CREAM PIE

½ cup evaporated skim milk
1¼ cups fresh skim milk powdered sweetener equivalent to ½ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sliced bananas
1 tablespoon lemon juice
9 inch graham cracker crust

Beat eggs with salt and evaporated milk until well mixed. Add fresh milk and powdered sweetener. Cook in top of double boiler until mixture is consistency of soft custard. Add vanilla, mix well, and remove from heat. Toss sliced bananas with lemon juice and arrange in bottom of graham cracker crust, reserving several slices for garnish. Pour custard mixture over the bananas. Arrange reserved slices over the top and chill until set.

This basic recipe can be used for almost any cream pie. For coconut cream pie, use 1½ cups freshly grated coconut or unsweetened coconut found in health food stores instead of the bananas. Mix 1 cup of the coconut with the cream base and use the remaining coconut to garnish the top. Those who can have saturated fat only in extremely limited amounts should not use the variation because of the high saturated-fat content of coconut.

GRAHAMCRACKER CRUST

1½ cups fine graham cracker crumbs
4 tablespoons margarine

Mix well and press into 9 inch pie plate. Use another plate of equal size to pack crumbs firmly. Chill or freeze until ready to use. Serves 8.

One eighth of the crust contains 22 grams carbohydrate, 7 grams protein, 16 grams fat and 260 calories.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

2 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1 tablespoon liquid sweetener
½ teaspoon vanilla
8 ounces cream cheese softened
